Healthy Happy Children

AS everyday food for growing children, good bread and butter is much more wholesome than meat. It is lighter in the stomach, more easy to digest and furnishes every element of health and strength necessary for the growing child, provided the flour is rich in that fine quality of high grade gluten which distinguishes Ogilvie's

Royal Household Flour.

It is this rich nourishing element which makes children grow fat and happy when given plenty of bread made from this finest of all flours. Children thrive on it. It puts flesh on their bones and brings the rosy flush of health to their cheeks.

This is not so with bread made from inferior flours. It falls very far short of being whole food and fails to build up strong, vigorous growth. For the children's sake buy the best flour—Ogilvie's Royal Household. It counts for health and happiness. Best and most nutritious for pastry as well as for bread.

Electric lamps are inserted in the floors of passenger elevators so a person entering a car at night will know just where he is to step. The light is switched on or off automatically as a car stops at or leaves a floor.

An automatic burglar-proof lock has been patented for freight trains If broken, it sounds an air whistle and sets the brakes on the train.

He Will Have a Western Colleague, However, In the Person of Rev. S. D. Chown—Chown's Place on Moral Reform Committee Will Be Taken by Rev. T. Albert Moore—Carman Is Elected for Eight Years.

Victoria, B.C., Aug. 25.—Rev. Dr. Carman has again been elected general superintendent of the Methodist General Conference, and associated with him in office will be Rev. Dr. S. D. Chown of Toronto, who will take charge of the west. Dr. Carman has been elected for a term of eight years, while Dr. Chown will fill his office for four years.

Rev. Dr. Chown is succeeded as secretary of the conference and moral reform department by the appointment of Rev. T. A second ballot resulted in the election of Dr. Chown as assistant general superintendent, he receiving 217 votes out of a total of 288.

No Clue to Murderer.

Kingston, N.Y., Aug. 25.—No trace had been found last night of the kidnapper and murderer of Peter Fabian, four years old, son of Frank Fabian, an Italian. The boy's body was found yesterday in an outhouse in the rear of his home, cut and strangled. He had been dead but a short time, although missing since last Friday.

Detectives were interested in the coincidence that an Italian clairvoyant, whom Fabian consulted in New York City on Tuesday, when he first became gravely alarmed, foretold that the boy would be found near his home.

There is great indignation among Italians in general, but no violence is feared.

Osler to Investigate.

Washington, Aug. 28.—Dr. William Osler, the famous scientist of Baltimore and Oxford, was in Washington yesterday for the purpose, it is said of investigating the cause of infantile paralysis, which is epidemic here, and in Ontario, Canada, particularly in Hamilton.

The Medical Association here has undertaken an extensive study of the infantile malady, which so far has baffled physicians of this country. The medical fraternity is divided on the elementary questions as to whether infantile paralysis is contagious or infectious.

Infants Has Paralysis.

St. Catharines, Aug. 25.—That dreaded disease, infantile paralysis, has made its appearance in St. Catharines A three-year-old child of a farm laborer living in the city was taken to the hospital Tuesday afternoon, suffering from the disease.

The parents were immigrants, who arrived from England two months ago. Another case has developed in a family who arrived in the spring from Scotland.

Yesterday morning the little daughter of a local druggist and an ex-alderman, showed symptoms of the ailment.

Not Much Smuggling.

Ottawa, Aug. 25.—Dr. J. A. Smith, collector of customs at Windsor, is in the city on business with the Customs Department. He states that last year over four million people crossed from Detroit to Windsor. Questioned as to reports of smuggling, they were exaggerated. "Some of it may be going on which escapes detection," he said, "but it is of a petty character. In whatever there is, Canada gets the better of it."

Chief Thompson's Coming Honor.

Syracuse, N.Y., Aug. 25.—The International Association of Fire Chiefs gave up the entire day to watching exhibitions of fire apparatus and tests of automobile fire engines.

The election of officers will be held Friday. Chief John Thompson of Toronto, Ont., is expected to be elected president.

The chiefs are divided in opinion as to the use of automobile fire engines.

Crushed to Death.

Beamsville, Aug. 25.—With his body crushed and broken between a traction engine and a separator, and scalded by escaping steam from broken valves, Albert Moyer, aged 56, a well-known Clinton Township farmer, met death about eight o'clock yesterday morning.

Killed by Wasp Sting.

Watertown, N.Y., Aug. 25.—Mrs Frank Dimmock, aged 66, of Natural Bridge, while picking berries in a field near her home, was stung on the arm by a yellow wasp, walked a few feet and dropped dead.

UP TO THE EMERGENCY.

Mistah Hilsondigger Fails to Get a Place, but Obtains a Handout.

"Mawnin', sah!" saluted a ramshackle looking negro, addressing the cashier of a certain small town bank. "Mawnin'—dat is, sah, if yo' isn't too busy. An' does yo' need a nigger round de place yuh—nigger wid a ree-commend, sah, 'dustrious, hon'able cullud man—to wash de winders an' po'tah round? "Ah-h'm!" commented the banker as he scanned the proffered paper. "So your name is Hilsondigger?"

"And the colonel writes here"—

"He sho' does, sah!"

"He says— Look here! Can you read?"

"Who—me? Nussah. Dat is to say, I kain't read writin'."

"I thought not. Well, the colonel says, 'The bearer hereof, Gabe Hilsondigger, is personally known to me'"—

"Desso, sah! Aw, de cuhnel knows me!"

—"'as a liar and a thief and too utterly worthless to set a good dog on.' Well—ha, ha!—it appears that the colonel does know you. Ha, ha, ha!"

"Well-uh, well-uh—now, now—if dat ain't s'prisin'! But—uck!—dat's de way I likes to heah a white pusson laugh, sah; I sho' does! Takes away deir troubles, sah—makes 'em fubgit deir tribbylations. Cheering Up Thuse.

James Whitcomb Riley was going up the steps of the statehouse in Indianapolis one day when he met his friend Warren G. Sayre. The two had been close friends for years.

"Good morning, Mr. Riley," said Mr. Sayre in greeting.

"Why, hello, Warren!" Mr. Riley replied. "How are you?"

"Never felt better in my life. You are looking well."

"I don't know," said the poet; "I sometimes feel the weight of years, for you know I am getting old."

"Nonsense! Nonsense!" Mr. Sayre remarked with considerable emphasis. "You don't look old. In fact, you don't look a bit older now than when I first saw you."

"Perhaps that is true, but I feel age coming on. I was just thinking as I came up these steps about old Methuselah. I imagined I could see him driving along the road in his big wagon. He met an old friend who was sitting on a rail fence at the side of the road. 'Why, hello, Thuse!' says the friend. 'How are you?'

"'Oh, pretty fair for an old man,' said the patriarch. 'But I'm getting along in years.'

"'Oh, bosh, Thuse! You don't look old. How old are you, Thuse, anyway?'

"'I'm 969,' he answered.

"'Well, well, I never would er thought it!' said the friend. 'Why, Thuse, you don't look a day over 968.'"—Harper's Weekly.

Dangerous Sport.

First Lady (reading a newspaper)—This golf seems to be a very dangerous game. Did you see what happened to a man named Taylor? He went into bunker and was in two when he came out.

Second Lady—How dreadful!

"Yes; here are the words: 'Taylor getting out in two, Braid secured a half.'"

"Does it say what happened to the other half."

"No, but there was worse to follow. According to the report, Taylor then fell altogether to pieces."—Word of Golf.

How He Got Her.

Laura—It is said that some people cannot look from a height without wishing to jump down.

Yearuso—I had that sensation when I looked down from a sixth story window and saw you in the street.

A Sea Change.

Fuddy—So Bix has given up his floorwalking job and become a purser on a steamer?

Duddy—Yes; from seeing the sales he's turned to sailing about the seas.—Boston Transcript.

Ticklish.

The little fly a joker is;
Quite frolicsome is he.
He loves to see you swat yourself
Just where he used to be.
He is immensely tickled when
You slap yourself with vim,
So every time he tickles you
You also tickle him.
—Kansas City Times.

A new machine separates the whites and yolks of opened eggs by allowing the former to pass through a sieve and automatically ejects bad eggs, which will not separate, their weight tripping a tray.

A COLD STORAGE ROMANCE.

Bill Bailey was a bachelor, forsaken and forlorn.
He used to eat a single egg for breakfast every morn.

He bought his egg one morning from the shop across the way.
The sign above them read, "These Eggs Are Strictly Fresh Today."

Bill Bailey's wonder and surprise were more than we can tell
When he discovered some one had been writing on the shell.

In fact, it seemed a woman had inscribed upon the egg
Her autograph. The name he found was Clementina Clegg.

He wrote to the address she gave and registered a vow:
"This is the woman of my choice. I'll find a partner now."

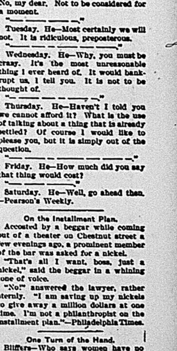
For weary weeks he waited, though the maiden had forgot,
And then his hopes were shattered by the answer that he got:

"Dear sir, your letter is at hand, and in reply would beg
To state that there is no one here named Clementina Clegg.

"Some of the oldest people here admit they used to know
A bunch of Cleggs who peddled eggs, but that was years ago.

"They tried to run a poultry ranch, but couldn't make it pay,
So sold to a cold storage plant, and then they went away."
—Spokane Spokesman-Review.

A Feminine Failing.



First Sportsman—Well, how do you like that new mare of yours?

Second Sportsman—Oh, fairly well. But I wish I had bought a horse. She is always stopping to look at herself in the puddles.

A Shaded Story.

Joseph Alexander is a pickaninny of many virtues, but sadly given to exaggeration. One day when I had him pulling weeds in the front yard he ran into the house with eyes big as moons and cried:

"Law, Miss Minnie, what you think! I dun kilt three big rattlesnakes out in the yard."

"Now, Joseph," I replied, "you know that is not so."

"Well, now, Miss Minnie," he insisted insinuatingly, "it wuz two turrible big snakes, an' I killed 'em fo' sho'!"

Determined to convict him, I insisted, "You know you did not kill two snakes, Joseph."

He thought a moment, then said impressively, "Well, now, I did kill one powerful big snake in dat very front yard."

"Go away, boy! You are an outrageous story teller!" I cried indignantly. He was not one whit abashed by my vehemence, but cheerfully replied:

"Well, 'clare for goodness, Miss Minnie, hit was a powerful big worm!"—Delineator.

Weak Woman Against Strong Man.

Monday. He (of the iron will)—No, my dear. Not to be considered for a moment.

"—— —— —— —."

Tuesday. He—Most certainly we will not. It is ridiculous, preposterous.

"—— —— — —— —— ——."

Wednesday. He—Why, you must be crazy. It's the most unreasonable thing I ever heard of. It would bankrupt us, I tell you. It is not to be thought of.

"— —— —— — —— —."

Thursday. He—Haven't I told you we cannot afford it? What is the use of talking about a thing that is already settled? Of course I would like to please you, but it is simply out of the question.

"—— —— — —— —— —— —."

Friday. He—How much did you say that thing would cost?

"—— —— ——."

Saturday. He—Well, go ahead then.—Pearson's Weekly.

On the Installment Plan.

Accosted by a beggar while coming out of a theater on Chestnut street a few evenings ago, a prominent member of the bar was asked for a nickel.

"That's all I want, boss, just a nickel," said the beggar in a whining tone of voice.

"No!" answered the lawyer, rather sternly. "I am saving up my nickels to give away a million dollars at one time. I'm not a philanthropist on the installment plan."—Philadelphia Times.

One Turn of the Hand.

Bliffers—Who says women have no heads for business? There's a woman made $50,000 by simply turning her hand over.

Bliffers—She turned it over to Mr. Bullion, and now she's Mrs. Bullion.—New York Weekly.

A Good Landing.

"That's all right, mister. I'd rather be with pa, anyhow."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

To facilitate the seating of patrons of moving picture theatres where there are no reserved seats without the use of ushers, a New York man has patented a system whereby an incandescent lamp remains lighted on the back of each seat as long as it remains unoccupied.

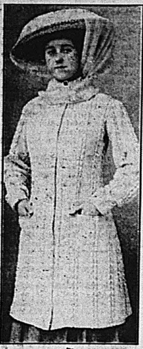
A NEW WEAVE OF SWEATER

The Long Effect In These Coats Is Smartest.



FOR THE GOLFING GIRL.

If any girl can go through the summer without a sweater she is a rare specimen of femininity. Its uses are infinite and too many to enumerate. Each year the type of sweater varies. Last season we had the long style, and this summer the longer lengths are still modish, but the difference in this year's sweater is in the weave. The illustration shows one of the newest and smartest of the season's weaves, a broad fancy stripe, which is very becoming to the figure.

Charge It to the Woman.

That cheerful farce known to the public as an "inquiry into the causes of the cost of living" assumes more amazing proportions day by day. Somebody or something is to blame for the prohibitive prices which mock our indigence, and under no circumstances may the sensitive feelings of the protectionists be hurt. Consequently political economists who are not calm enough to share the frank indifference of congress offer us strange and artless solutions of a problem which has grown too formidable for play, says Agnes Repplier.

The most original of all these suggestions comes from an instructor in economics in the Wharton School of Finance at the University of Pennsylvania, who holds that food is dear because women buy it and women "have no basis for estimating the value of what they spend." Money to a man represents so many hours or days of labor. Money to a woman stands for no economic effort. The price of all commodities is unreasonably dear because of the "extravagant willingness of women to pay for them."

If this be true all that is needed to reduce the cost of living is that men shall shop and market. The poulterer will not venture to ask $2.50 for a pair of chickens; the dairyman will blush at the mere thought of demanding 50 cents a dozen for eggs when confronted by the wage earner of the family. Hogs were quoted recently at a figure calculated to make these lordly animals swagger in their sties, but they will soon be reduced to humility and moderation if the father of the family buys the morning sausage. Even the cook will cheerfully accept $4 a week instead of $7 when her master pays her wages, especially if she can be brought to understand that he is philosophically indifferent to his food and that it was only the "extravagant willingness" of her mistress to pay her $7 which made her ask so much.

The Charm of Enthusiasm.

Have you ever realized what a charm there is in enthusiasm? Life is so often monotonous that we like occasionally to be wakened up with interest, and the person who is radiant over small things is always a delight.

The girl who carries enthusiasm into her work as well as into her play will find that she holds a winning card. Work that is done for the "joy of working" is likely to be well done. Lack of interest makes for dull routine, remarks a writer. It brings discontent and often failure. The men who succeed are the ones who can inspire both themselves and others by their magnetic personality, and there is nothing so magnetic as enthusiasm. People will follow us, like us and admire us if we have it. It is worth cultivating if it is not natural endowment.

Pleasantness a Tonic.

Don't be afraid of being pleasant. It cannot hurt you and will be as good as a tonic for all you meet.

What though you do think yourself superior to most of your acquaintances, is it good taste to placard your belief by a freezing countenance?

There is nothing like affability to conceal one's family skeletons. A haughty manner is a direct bid for the rest of the world to rake up ancestral secrets that you thought buried.

A Great Assistance.

"Good morning!" greeted the young man in the threadbare suit.

The millionaire turned around in his plush chair.

"Er—I think you have the advantage of me, young man," he said distantly.

"Why, don't you remember me, sir? I am broke. Two years ago you told me if I ever went broke to come around and see you."

The millionaire beamed a benevolent smile.

"So I did, my son; so I did. Here is the envelope all ready for you."

The young man took the bulky envelope, and his spirits rose like the mercury on a July day.

"Ah, a little assistance, I suppose?"

"No; a great assistance. It is a valuable little pamphlet I wrote during my spare time entitled 'How to Be Broke and Happy.'"—Chicago News.

Persian Shawls.

The "shal" of Kerman—whence our word "shawl"—is made of goats' hair. Like the carpets, the shawl patterns are learned by heart, and the work is even finer. Children also do this work. It is estimated that Kerman turns out $300,000 worth of shawls, handmade, a year. The finest product is a fir cone pattern, a rich color effect, made especially for the governor of the province, who wears it as a robe of honor on the Persian New Year's day.

He Got Her.

"It's so long since you called upon me," said the girl as she came down to the young man in the parlor, "that I was beginning to think you were forgetting me."

"I am for getting you," replied the smart youth, "and that's why I've called tonight. Can I have you?"

PHILIPSTON.

After a brief illness of a few days of infants cholera the little baby eight months old of Mr. and Mrs Frank Ketcheson was called home on Saturday morning about one o'clock. The Angel of death relieved it of its suffering here. Although all was done that could be done by parents, friends and physician, Dr. Hill being called yet God needed one, my Angel child in the circle in Heaven. On Sunday service being conducted at the house by the pastor of the circuit, Rev. Mr Ward. Well chosen remarks were given. After which interment took place in Mona cemetery. The bearers were Mr. Earl Sayers, John Roblin, Ewart Sills, John Robson. May God comfort the parents in this sad trial and hour of affliction. He alone can bind the heart that is broken. Much sympathy is extended to all in this trial.

White kid slippers are not new and strange accessories of the smart toilet, but these same slippers when hand painted in floral effects are very stunning, and, what is equally important, they are new.

Any small blossom will serve as a motif, and the coloring should be such as will tone in with a certain costume or be inconspicuous enough to "jibe" well with most of the gowns in one's wardrobe.

Women Who Watch For Celebrities In a New York Restaurant.

"I always wonder," said a New York woman who lunches out a good deal, "what satisfaction the women get out of life who flock to a certain fashionable uptown restaurant at lunchtime just to see celebrities.

"They look as if they cannot afford to be there, and the truth is they do not apparently go there for food. I have watched them ordering and noted what was brought them, and almost invariably it is some such thing as cafe parfait, or an ice of some kind, or a cup of tea or of chocolate and a sandwich.

"They sit and look. The moment some stage celebrity comes in there is a craning of necks, and you hear excited whisperings, 'Oh, there's So-and-so!' mentioning an actress or a matinee idol, and the neck craning keeps on until a fresh subject for scrutiny comes in.

"You can see this sort of thing every lunchtime at this restaurant. There is a regular contingent of these rubberneckers, and they are not visitors from the far west, either."—New York Sun.

A NOBLE RED MAN.

He Was Not the Stately Chief Wolseley Expected to Meet.

Lord Wolseley was stationed in Canada many years ago. On one occasion he spent a holiday in the wilds, building a wigwam and practicing generally what we should now call the "back to nature" cure.

It was soon after his arrival in the country, and as the means of communication were still somewhat primitive he had never seen an Indian and was most anxious to make the red man's acquaintance. Some friends of his promised to send one or two to see him, as there was an encampment not very far away.

At last one morning Lord Wolseley was informed that a chief had called to see him. With his mind full of the conventional Indian, a man of commanding presence, arrayed in all the glory of paint and feathers, he eagerly stepped outside his wigwam to make his acquaintance. But he received a rude shock when he found a wizened gentleman dressed in a tattered frock coat and ancient waistcoat.

However, the general stifled his astonishment and played the genial host, although horribly bored at the incessant chatter of the Indian, who had been in the service of the Hudson Bay company and therefore could speak broken English fairly fluently.

At length, anxious to get rid of his visitor, he took a twenty-five cent piece out of his pocket and, fearing he might be grossly insulting his visitor, presented it to him.

The latter took it, looked at it carefully, felt the edges and then said:

"Can you mak' it half dollar?"

THE WET RAIN.

There Are Several Varieties, and All Have Their Whims.

Rain is principally composed of water, but it should not be confused with mining stock.

Rain always comes on Sunday afternoons and wash days.

Wash day may be changed to any day in the week, systematically or indiscriminately, but the rain will come.

Sunday afternoon, however, cannot be changed to any other afternoon. The rain will hold off until you are ready to go driving, and then the word will be passed along the mysterious currents of the air, and a double order of cirrus and cumulus will be hurried in from the west.

Also in the morning, when you leave home and carry your umbrella and raincoat, the rain will go away and sulk. But if you take heart of the fair sky and leave the umbrella and other trimmings then the rain will wait until you leave the office and then get you. Incidentally it will tuck a few grip and rheumatism germs into your system.

Rain is good for the crops, but why it takes you for a crop is hard to understand.

Rain never brought fame to any one except Noah. Probably on the day the flood began he watched the last picnic party drive out of town in a bus, shouting sarcastic things at him through the dust.

There are several varieties of rain, but the one most popular with the weather bureau is called "Probably."—Chicago News.

BASEBALL.

The Downfall of the Flats.

The Coleman's Flats met their Waterloo at the hands of the Stations yesterday afternoon, going down to defeat by a 9-1 score. The winners are now tied with the Park Nine for first place in the City League. There were many new faces on the Station team, and their pitcher, Saunders, of Kingston, had it over the Flats "like a tent." Four hits were all they were able to grab off. In the field the Flats certainly did not play up to form, as their 15 errors will show. Their pitcher, Hopkins, was only hit for 10 safeties, but his support was, at times enough to drive a total abstainer to drink. His catcher, Campbell, however, played a good game, as did the famous Dick Turpin, of Cobourg, who first based for the Flats. The rest of the lads did not by any means play their usual game. The Stations had a fine first baseman named Gage, who it was said, hangs his hat up in Hamilton when he is at home. An Auburn haired comedian named Dixon, also of Hamilton, it is said, played the difficult corner, and, in addition to handing out a fine line of baseball tore off a few yards of low comedy talk which amused the crowd hugely when the leather-lunged rooters gave them a chance to hear it. Saunders struck out 12, and 13 were killed on the bases, so it will easily be seen that the pitcher was king-pin The fielders had nothing to do but look handsome. The Stations scored in every inning but the 1st, 2nd and 8th, while the Flats were blanked with monotonous regularity till the 9th. In the first, after two men were gone, Dick Turpin leaned against the ball for a two-bagger, but the next man fanned. In the 9th Finkle reached first on Sullivan's error. Turpin reached first on a fielders choice Finkle going out at second. Bateson hit one through V. Brown's legs, Turpin scoring. Jarrell made a hit, and Bateson was out trying to reach third Hopkins fanned and it was all over. The Stations played a snappy game and with the same battery will make any team travel fast to beat them The score follows:

Things are Getting Red-Hot in City League Doings.

Any local lover of sport can tell you that things are getting red-hot in connection with the local City League. There are three fixtures yet to play, as follows:

August 27 — Ontarios vs. T. A. S.
August 31 — Park Nine vs. Coleman's Flats.
Sept. 3 — G. T. R. vs. T. A. S.

The Park Nines and Grand Trunks have each won 6 and lost 3. Should each club win the games scheduled above they will be tied. In that event the tie will be broken by a game between the teams on Monday, September 5th, Labor Day. A local base ball supporter thinks the match, if it is played, should be pulled off on the Driving Park, and the crowd should be kept outside the fence.

If the match does take place it will likely be a great game.

"That Grand Trunk team, with Saunders dispensing the slants, is a hard one to beat," said the writer to Eddie O'Flynn, manager of the Park Nines.

But Eddie only winked the other eye.

"Don't think for a moment that we are not wise to that fact," he said "but take this little tip from your Uncle Edward — the Grand Trunks won't beat us 9-1."

AQUATICS.

Canoe Club Had Exciting Race.

The local canoe club was to have had a series of races under its auspices yesterday afternoon, but owing to the fact that the wind died away only one event was pulled off namely, the 14-foot dinghy, but that finished barrels of excitement. There were three entries:

McGie's Gie.
Waters' Jack the Second.
Gorman's Good-By.

McGie's boat came in with a five-second lead over Gorman's, in fact the three craft were bunched like lovers with only one umbrella in a rainstorm.

A protest was entered against the Gie, it being alleged that she fouled the Good-By at one of the turns.

The Canoe Club is making great preparations for its Labor Day regatta, when about 30 outside paddlers and dinghies are expected, from Trenton, Picton, Deseronto and other places. There will be a whole day of aquatic sport and a big dance at night.

Trenton HadBi Day Of Sports.

Trenton had a big crowd of visitors yesterday for its big day of sport and many Bellevillians went and enjoyed themselves. Some local men were entered in the races.

A. Steele, of this city, was second in the 100 yards and also second in the mile race, Gorman, of Trenton taking first in both events.

H. Vickers, of this city, won the 5-mile race with ease. It was like playing tag with a lot of blind men

The Park Nines and Ontarios, both of Belleville, played a 7 innings baseball match. The former won by 5 to 3. Batteries — for Park Nine, Gerow and Connolly, for Ontarios, Moore and Hagerman. Eddie O'Flynn was umpire.

OBITUARY

O. R. McCurdy, Church street. The deceased lady, who was 65 years of age, had been ailing for two years, suffering with cancer of the stomach. The late Mrs. Pringle was born in the Carrying Place, Prince Edward County. Deceased was a Methodist, and an adherent of Bridge Street Church. Besides the sorrowing husband, two sons and one daughter are left to mourn the loss of a gentle and loving mother. The sons are John C., of Brandon, now in this city, and Harry N., of the G. T. R. staff, Belleville; the daughter is Mrs. J. O. R. McCurdy. To the bereaved relatives will be extended the sincere sympathy of many friends.

MAY BUILD LINE FROM TORONTO TO BELLEVILLE.

Toronto, August 24 — It is rumored that the Canadian Pacific is to build a new line from Smith's Falls to Toronto, and that the survey has already been made from Belleville to this city. The new road will branch off the present Smith's Falls-Peterboro route at either Perth or Bathurst. It will then run southwest across the country to Belleville, through a territory as yet untouched by railway From Belleville it will come into Toronto along the lake front, parallel with the Grand Trunk.

No official information of the report could be secured in Toronto. One official said that he had not heard of it, but that is not unnatural, for all such plans and surveys are made from the Montreal end of the line.

"I do know, however," said the official "that the road is to be doubled tracked from Perth to Bathurst."

Bathurst is a short distance west of Perth, and this double tracking leads support to the new line theory, and to the rumor that it is going to branch off at Bathurst.

The towns along the lake front would be delighted to hear that they were to have a competitive line. Several years ago the C. P. R. were considering the project of building along the shore, but the scheme was abandoned.

For the last few months it has been rumored that the C. P. R. was going to double its line from here to Peterboro, but it is more probable now that it will build an entirely new line.

The Members of The Legislature For West Hastings Highly Honored

The International Tax Convention composed of delegates appointed by the Governors of the various States and by the Governments of the several Provinces of Canada, will meet in the City of Milwaukee, Wisconsin next week. TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

Rev. Ian Campbell, Bishop of Glasgow and Walloway, will attend the bicentenary of the Canadian church at Halifax.

The plant of the Huntsville Engine Works Co. was partly destroyed by a fire which originated in the moulding department.

A memorial tablet has been placed in St. Andrew's Church to the late John Bell, K.C., who died in Belleville in June, 1906. He was general counsel for the G.T.R., and for many years was an elder and trustee.

Representatives of the daily newspapers of the Maritime Provinces are meeting in Truro to consider the question of better telegraphic news service, and to move toward united action with the central and western associations of Canada.

The Petit Parisien's Rome correspondent says that the Duke of the Abruzzi and Miss Katherine Elkins have been engaged unofficially for more than two years with the approval of King Victor Emmanuel, who stipulated that the official announcement should not be made until the duke had attained the rank of rear admiral at the end of this year.

Gives Up Milk Charity.

New York, Aug. 25.—A cable message, received in New York last night, from Nathan Strauss, the millionaire philanthropist, announces that next year he will abandon his distribution of pasteurized milk in New York City because of opposition in certain quarters.

Mr. Strauss is now in Boston, where he recently opened a milk depot similar to those in New York. He has maintained 17 stations in New York City, selling pasteurized milk by the glass at one cent, besides giving free bottle milk for needy babies.

Scientists are divided on the value of the pasteurized product, and Mr. Strauss has met with much opposition from the more radical of those who do not share his views.

Canadian Navy Impostor.

Portsmouth, N.H., Aug. 25.—Portsmouth and Boston navy yard men are alleged to have lent considerable sums of money this week for car fare to the nearest naval station, "and return," to a man who claimed to be a Canadian naval officer.

The return trip in each case was not made. The man, who gave the name of Lieut. Gill, announced that he was the advance representative of a Canadian commission, which was to inspect American navy yards.

Enquiries at Montreal brought the information by wire yesterday that the man was believed to be an imposter, and that there was no such commission as he claimed. The present whereabouts of the lieutenant is not known here.

Painter Electrocuted.

Cobalt, Aug. 25.—Albert Lefebvre, 38, a painter, was electrocuted while painting the transformer house at the Tretheway Mine about eight o'clock yesterday morning. The man was filling in a spare moment by painting the shed over the two big transformers which cut the voltage of the current from 11,000 to 550 volts. Although he had been warned that death lurked in the wires, he did not seem to realize his danger.

Death was instantaneous. The corpse was awfully burned and roasted when it finally dropped to the ground. Lefebvre leaves a widow and six children, the oldest of whom is fifteen.

A.O.H. Officers.

Kingston, Aug. 25.—At the closing sessions of the provincial board of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, Hamilton was selected for next year's convention.

Officers were elected as follows: President, C. J. Foy, Perth; vice-president, John Nellingan, Hamilton; secretary, Allan J. Tobin, Ottawa; treasurer, N. J. Kennedy, Toronto; medical supervisor, A. W. Dwyer, Perth; solicitor, N. J. Gleason, Ottawa; chaplain, Rt. Rev. M. F. Fallon, London.

Ziegfield to Fly High.

New York, Aug. 25.—Florenz Ziegfeld, jr., the theatrical manager, has joined the ranks of amateur aviators. When he returned here on board the Kronprinz Wilhelm of the North German Lloyd line, from a trip to Paris, he announced that he had purchased an Antoinette monoplane, selected for him by Hubert Latham, and that it would arrive here early next month on board a French line steamship.

Brookins' Latest Stunt.

New York, Aug. 25.—It took Walter Brookins just five and a half seconds to negotiate the smallest circle that man has ever traveled in midair at Ashbury Park. So abrupt was the swing around an imaginary pivot that other aviators who were on the field said that if anyone except Brookins attempted to make such turns it would probably cost him his life.

To Have Auto Ambulances.

New York, Aug. 25.—Three new electric automobiles have been put in use by the Presbyterian Hospital for ambulance service to replace the combination horse and automobile service the hospital has been using. The hospital authorities have come to the conclusion that automobiles are more reliable and economical than horse and wagon outfits.

Hotelman Sentenced to Jail.

Owen Sound, Aug. 25.—Andrew Fogarty, proprietor of the Albion Hotel, was sentenced to four months in jail by Magistrate Creasor in the Police Court. This will be the second term he has spent in jail for the same offence.

Fogarty was charged with illegal selling of liquor under the local option law.

DEATH LIST OVER 200

Nearly All Who Perished in West Are Fire Fighters.

Supt. Weigel, of the U. S. Forestry Service, Announces That Casualties In His Department Have Reached 111, and Fear Is Expressed For the Safety of a Ranger and 74 Men—Only One Woman Among Dead.

Wallace, Idaho, Aug. 25.—Forest fires have slain more than 200 persons, nearly all fire-fighters, in Idaho, according to figures compiled last night from latest reports.

Supt. Weigel of the Cour d'Alene National Forest, after receiving many reports of disaster from various parties of his 600 employes, posted a bulletin last night in his office at Wallace, announcing the death of 111 of the men. He also expressed grave concern for the safety of Ranger J. B. Palm and 74 men, who were surrounded by fire Saturday night in the forest on the Big Fork of the Cour d'Alene River, near where another party lost 18 men.

Palm was for four years the best football and baseball played of the Washington State College at Pullman.

The charred bodies of 20 fire-fighters were found Tuesday on Setzer Creek, in the St. Joe country.

Two severely scorched Japanese dragged themselves to Avery, Idaho, Tuesday night, and told of the death of ten of their companions. The 12 men, employes of the Chicago, Milwaukee and Puget Sound Railroad, had gone out to fight fires. They were surrounded by flames and only two escaped.

The number of deaths in Washington was yesterday reduced to three, all in the Pend d'Oreille Valley, near Newport. One of these victims, Mrs. Ernest Reinhardt, wife of a rancher, is the only woman known to have been burned to death in any of the fires.

The names of many of the dead will never be known. The rangers employed all the men whom they could press into the service. When the groups of fire-fighters were overwhelmed the camps were also destroyed, the clothes were burned off the bodies of the men and the bodies were so greatly charred that searchers stepped over them, thinking they were burned logs.

Spanish Government Stops Meetings.

Madrid, Aug. 25.—Defeated in its plans for a monster pro-church demonstration at San Sebastian on Aug. 7 the Spanish clerical party is completing arrangements for a tremendous showing of strength throughout the entire country in September. Instead of one gigantic demonstration which, as in the case at San Sebastian, the Government showed it could prevent by seizing the means of transportation, hundreds of smaller meetings will be held.

Pittsburg Defaulter Arrested.

Windsor, Aug. 25.—Monzio Ferella, an Italian steamship agent and private banker of Pittsburg, who is charged with embezzling between $25,000 and $40,000, was arrested in the Windsor postoffice yesterday morning by local officers under the guidance of Fred A. Morgan.

WOULD YOU BE STYLISH?

Then Carry a Raffia Parasol.

THE NEW SUNSHADE.

Raffia makes our porch cushions this summer and the newest of our parasols, and a pretty, dainty, light kind of sunshade it is, to be sure, one that will stand any amount of wetting. Indeed, the raffia parasols may be carried right into the surf without damaging their beauty or usefulness.

In the illustration the model is in natural colored raffia, and the long fringe is an attractive finish. The handle is of brown wood and elaborately carved. The handle is long, as is the case on all the best parasols of the summer.

To Save Alcott Home.

Efforts are being made to inaugurate a movement for the preservation of the old Alcott homestead in Concord, Mass., where Bronson Alcott lived and died and where Louisa Alcott created the immortal children that run through the pages of "Little Men" and "Little Women." The place at present is fast falling into hopeless decay, and action must be started soon if it is to be preserved at all. "Perhaps if Miss Alcott had been dead two centuries instead of only about thirty years her former home would not be in such a dangerous plight as it is in today," said a New York woman who is trying to interest others in its preservation. "But by and by Miss Alcott will have been dead 200 years, and if Orchard House is not saved now American soil in future generations will be the poorer for our neglect. We never shall raise a harvest of ancient association for our land unless we take care of the associations while they still are comparatively modern."

Useful Trifles.

A small brush, such as is used in a mucilage bottle, is just the thing to remove caked salt from shakers or to keep the lips of pepper shakers clean.

If you use glass jars for storage purposes and cannot insure careful handling it is well to protect the edge with pasted strips of adhesive plaster unless you do not object to chips of glass in your food.

For a leftover salad mold cold spinach in a shallow custard cup, turn off on hearts of lettuce, sprinkle with the yoke of hard boiled egg, run through a vegetable press and cover with mayonnaise.

Vegetable salads will be more appetizing if the mayonnaise contains onion juice. Where the taste of onion is not liked a flavor can be given by rubbing the bowl with garlic.

Gardening For Nervousness.

Gardening as a curative pastime is the newest idea introduced by the head of a fashionable sanitarium for nervous women, and each patient has her particular plot to look after. She is even given the task of spading up the ground and is expected to spend a certain amount of time daily cultivating it regardless of the weather. On clear days, after the garden hour, the entire force of fair women is supposed to turn to and rake and burn leaves and fagots and play they are amateur farmers. The benefit that the out of doors life and interest do to the nerves is incalculable, and the novelty of it makes it something to be looked forward to.

A Dainty Fragrance.

To impart the delicate fragrance of any flower to one's letters the oil of any desired flower can be added to the writing fluid. Scent the blotter and place it with the letter paper, but do not put flower oil or perfume upon the paper. A package of invitations can be scented by keeping them overnight in a closed jar containing oil of flowers on white wool or cotton.

ROSEBERY'S GRAND UNCLE.

He Was a Canadian Lawyer Who Lived and Died In Quebec.

Few are aware that the great publicist, Lord Rosebery, had a grand uncle who played a prominent part in the public life of Lower Canada half a century ago. He was the Hon. Francis Ward Primrose, advocate, who lived most of his life in the city of Quebec and died in 1860 at the age of seventy-six. The deceased gentleman was the second son of the then Earl Rosebery, and might, of course, have had a prominent career in England. He came to Quebec in early manhood, for reasons which made it inconvenient to live in England. For many years he stood at the front of the legal profession in Quebec, and that he earned and retained the good opinions and respect of his fellow practitioners, is illustrated by the highly flattering and complimentary resolutions adopted by them after his death. His remains were interred in Mount Hermon cemetery. Mr. Primrose maintained no correspondence with his family in England during his residence in this country. Prior to coming to Canada he sat with honor in the Parliament of Great Britain and Ireland, where he was a consistent supporter of Liberal principles. An obituary notice published in The Quebec Telegraph at the time of his death, said: "He was one of the junior counsel of the unfortunate Queen Caroline, and in youth was a prominent cadet of a great Whig family, and, even then, a trusted member of the Whig party. Like his brother, the present Earl of Rosebery, he was an intimate friend of Lord Brougham's, when Brougham, a rising barrister, was struggling at the bar without his noble and honorable friends's advantages of birth and station. He was equally intimate with Denman and a whole galaxy of the forensic talent of the day. In Canada he wore the robe of Queen's Counsel with dignity, conducted the crown business for a brief space impartially and well, and was an advocate of the first rank, uniting the fire and energy of youth to the caution and experience of age, as all will admit who heard his full and elevated voice and noticed his vigorous and appropriate action on his very last appearance before the courts, or noticed how he could quote old statutes and old authors from the capacious stores of his vivid and accurate memory, while young men with book in hand painfully toiled after him, or the manner in which on occasions he poured forth the lessons of constitutional and Parliamentary law from the deep and rich lore of English history."

JUDGE HAGARTY'S MASTERPIECE

From time to time there reappears in the press allusions to a celebrated paraphrase on "The House that Jack Built" which contains a wealth of synonyms not less remarkable than its mock, pompous and grandiose descriptions of the commonplace incident. It was published anonymously and went around the world but is generally admitted to have been the work of the late Chief Justice Hagarty of Toronto.)

Lo! here, with hirsute honors doffed succinct
Of saponaceous locks, the priest who linked
In Hymen's golden bands, the torn unthrift,
Whose means exiguous stared through many a rift,
Even as he kissed the virgin all forlorn,
Who milked the cow with complicated horn,
Who in fine wrath the canine torturer skied
That dared to vex the insidious muricide,
Who let the auroral effluence through the pelt
Of the sly rat that robbed the palace Ian had built.

The loud cantankerous Shanghai comes at last,
Whose shouts aroused the shorn ecclesiast,
Who sealed the vows of Hymen's sacrament,
To him, who robed in garments indigent,
Exosculates the damsel lachrymose,
The emulgator of that brute morose,
That tossed the dog, that worried the cat, that kilt
The rat that ate the malt that lay in the house that Jack built.

Indian Drama.

Oberammergau gets the credit for being the home of the Passion Play—perhaps not altogether justly so. This year the great drama is being produced once more there. But Canadians won't need to cross to Europe to see it. The Passion Play is due to come off on the British Columbia coast—acted by the Skale Indians who hunt and fish on the Fraser. For several days the Fraser has been black with hundreds of redmen speeding from Puget Sound in their canoes. The big United States reservations in Washington and Oregon are silent places now, depleted of the Indians, who have been granted permission to attend the religious celebration of the Canadian tribesmen. Even up in Alaska, Indians are hastening to join the babel of tongues. The British Columbia village has become a vast, picturesque panorama; Skwa, which ordinarily is the usual western fur station—shops, shacks, houses; withal a touch of romance in the little painted church from whose steeple booms for fifty miles into the mountains, the first brass bell that ever went over the trail to the northwest.

Watched It Grow Up.

A certain local character in a New Brunswick village whose statements were often more emphatic than truthful was once a witness in a petty trial involving the ownership of an auger, and positively identified it as the property of one of the parties to the suit.

"Do you swear that you know this auger?" asked the attorney for the other side.

"Yes, sir."

"How long have you known it?" continued the cross-examiner.

"I have known that auger," said the witness in an impressive tone, "ever since it was a gimlet."

Close Investigation of the Wreck Near Durand Being Held

(Intelligencer Special.)

Durand, Mich., August 26.—With the railroad, the county and the state making independent investigations of the Grand Trunk wreck at Duffield, near here, it is evident that stringent action will follow. Secretary Kelly, of the State Railroad Commission, is investigating for that body, and Chairman Glasgow in Lansing, declares that if the Grand Trunk is found to have used incompetent men after the edict during the strike against incompetent strike breakers, the road will be prosecuted. Brakeman Graham, of the Montreal express, a strike breaker who was held over since the settlement, says that the tail lights of the express were burning. Engineer Spencer of No. 4, says that no tail lights were burning. The Grand Trunk will begin its enquiry before Superintendent Erick, at Battle Creek, to-morrow.

The Wreck Near Durand

(Intelligencer Special.)

Toronto, August 26.—While the official report of the result of the wreck near Durand now gives six killed and eight injured, three probably fatally, the list may be increased. George J. Jeffers, of Washington, D. C., was on the wrecked car. She was coming to Toronto to visit her sister, but nothing has been heard of her since the wreck. If she has been cremated in the wreck others may have perished.

HEAVY STORM ON GEORGIAN BAY

Intelligencer Special.

Owen Sound, August 26.—The heaviest storm of the season raged on Georgian Bay last night. The steamer Germanic sighted a large schooner in distress near Cape Rich. The schooner had got away from her tow barge, was helpless in the storm and drifting to a treacherous shore. The Germanic was unable to render assistance owing to the severity of the storm, but reported at Meaford at eight this morning.

The steamer Meaford left at nine.

The schooner's name is unknown, but she had a small crew. She was heavily laden.

The Germanic had a bad time during the night.

Close Confinement For Abdul Hamid.

Intelligencer Special.

Constantinople, August 26 — Ex-Sultan, Abdul Hamid, is reported to have been smuggled from Villa Allatini at Salonika and shut up in some place known only to a few high government officials.

The reason for the supposed transfer of the former Sultan to another prison is found in the constant plotting of reactionaries for Abdul's release and in a conspiracy against the young Turkish Government.

(Intelligencer Special)

Byng Inlet, Ont., August 26 — The Toronto-Winnipeg train, with many passengers, including the railway commission, was held up five miles south of this point by a washout from heavy rains.

Sectionmen discovered the danger and when the Toronto train arrived the eastbound train was waiting.

The passengers and baggage were transferred and the trains reversed.

For the Girl Who Golfs.

Golf perhaps more than any other pastime demands absolute control of nerves and temper. The handicap, an essential feature of golf, is almost impossible to arrange with perfect fairness. And in golf a change of wind, a shower or the slightest accident will change the aspect of a good player's game to marked infirmity.

Many a golf player errs in behavior less through ill intent than through ignorance of what the etiquette of the occasion demands. These rules may enable the beginner to avoid many a pitfall:

No player should play from the tee until the party in front have played their second strokes and are out of range nor play up to the putting green till the party in front have holed out and moved away.

Three players always should let a pair of players pass them. A single player must give way to all larger parties.

It is no disgrace for a beginner to make short strokes and many of them or to use the wrong club at the wrong time, but it is considered an unpardonable sin to speak or move when watching a fellow player make a drive.

When a man and woman are playing golf the latter should always be allowed to precede on the first drive off from the tee.

Never make unfavorable criticisms of others' play.

LAURIER AT WESTMINSTER.

Demands "Stagger a Progressive But Economical Government."

New Westminster, B.C., Aug. 26.—The royal city gave Sir Wilfrid Laurier a hearty welcome. The visit here was not on the original schedule, and was made possible by the fast trip of the G.T.P. steamship "Prince George" down from Prince Rupert to Vancouver. During the trip Sir Wilfrid passed President Hays and Chairman Smithers of the Grand Trunk Pacific, who were en route to terminal city.

Like Vancouver, this city asked for harbor improvements, which would make New Westminster the "Montreal of the West," and put the Frazer River on an equality with the St. Lawrence. The local Trades and Labor Council asked for the abolition of the bonus to aid immigration, exclusion of all Orientals, an eight-hour day law, public holiday for elections, and abolition of property qualification for candidates for Commons. They described the Lumbermen's Association as an "essential trust," and they condemned the Belcourt Anti-International Union Bill. They also asked for the Dominion co-operative act, and commended the appointment of the Commission of Technical Education.

Sir Wilfrid, regarding bonuses, explained that bonuses were given only for agricultural laborers, and not for artisans. Demands for harbor developments he met by the statement that he was "willing to do every thing that is to be done," but added that these demands "staggered a progressive but economical Government." (Laughter.)

J. D. Taylor, Conservative M.P., took a leaf out of Premier McBride's book and occupied a seat on the platform. J. D. Thornton, M.P., of Ontario, accompanied Mr. Taylor.

MAKING SURE OF MOIR.

Murderer Is Conveyed From Hamilton to Central Prison.

Toronto, Aug. 26.—It will be a great surprise to many to learn that Moir, the insane murderer, who recently made his escape from the Hamilton Asylum, is again away from that Institution, but this time under supervision of the necessary authorities. On Wednesday afternoon he was brought down from Hamilton on the C.P.R., and is now located in a cell at the Central Prison.

The removal was effected secretly and it is believed that the Hamilton authorities considered him too dangerous a man to have in an asylum. It is believed that Moir is eventually to be taken to the Kingston Penitentiary, but no details of any further removal could be gained.

It was supposed that the provincial Cabinet would pass an order in council, creating an insane ward in the Central Prison, but at the conclusion of the Cabinet meeting yesterday afternoon Hon. J. J. Foy, acting Premier, refused to say anything about the matter.

Warden Gilmour decline last night to say what special arrangements were being made for looking after Moir.

"The unfortunate man has been given too much notoriety already," he declared.

Earl Grey May Hurry Back.

Ottawa, Aug. 26.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who will conclude his tour by a speech at Medicine Hat on Wednesday, will at once return east, with a view of reaching Montreal in time for the opening of the Eucharistic Congress.

It is also stated that Earl Grey has his eyes upon the big gathering in Montreal the week after next, and unofficial advices have reached here that His Excellency will cut out his visit to Newfoundland, and will reach Montreal early in September, instead of on Sept. 15, as originally contemplated.

Power and Light Suffer.

Hamilton, Aug. 26.—A severe wind and electric storm visited this neighborhood yesterday evening and did great damage. The Cataract Power Co. and the Bell Telephone Co. seem to have been the worst sufferers. The former had several transformers blown out, these were stopped and the lights out for a short time, while the Telephone Company had a number of its wires crossed. One of the police boxes and a circuit of the fire department systems were put out of business by the storm.

Roosevelt After Grafters.

Buffalo, N.Y., Aug. 26.—Theodore Roosevelt pledged himself to the men of Buffalo yesterday to help them and all sincere citizens to fight crookedness wherever it was found.

"I'll help you just as I did in the past," he said, speaking to the Ellicott Club, whose guest he was at breakfast an hour after sunrise.

Russia Needs Iron.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 26.—The Minister of Commerce yesterday called a meeting of representatives of the metallurgical industry to discuss a proposal for the temporary free importation of pig-iron to relieve the iron famine and counteract the excessively high prices of iron in Russia.

The argument advanced in favor of a new phonograph which has its records in the form of endless belts is that it is possible to provide much longer selections than by the older methods.

FIRE IN WELLANDPORT

Warrant Is Issued For Arrest of 16-Year-Old English Lad.

Mysterious Blaze Wipes Out Half of the Business Section With a Loss of Thirty Thousand Dollars — Arthur Powell Has Left the Vicinity, Taking With Him One of His Employer's Horses.

Welland, Aug. 26.—The village of Wellandport suffered a bad fire early yesterday morning, whereby all of the northern half of the business section was wiped out, with a loss of $30,000, one-third covered by insurance.

The origin is a mystery. It broke out in Goring's general store about 3.30. There were no lights or fires about the place and everything was in good shape when Goring had locked up at 11 p.m.

Suspicion exists that Arthur Powell, an English lad, aged 16, employed by Emerson Jamieson, a farmer, knows something about the affair. Powell disappeared from the Jamieson home about midnight, taking one of Jamieson's horses and a buggy. Yesterday morning at nine o'clock he was seen driving west at Smithville. A warrant has been issued.

Manager Urquhart of the Sterling Bank was awakened at 3.30 by breaking glass, and found the front of the Goring store ablaze. In half an hour the flames were being fought by two or three hundred villagers. Being without regular appliances there was nothing for it but to form a bucket brigade. In two hours the fire had burned itself out, for the buildings were all frame. The south side was saved largely by reason of the wind, though Walter Misener's house, the Empire store, Flatt's house, and a store owned by Sutherland, caught at different times.

Losses are: J. R. Goring, postoffice and residence, value $1,800, insurance $1,200; W. E. Ricker, house and barn, value $1,500, insurance $1,000; R. J. Goring, store building, general stock, value $15,000, insurance $4,500; J. Huber, barn and dwelling, value $1,000, insurance $650; W. T. Sutherland, shop and contents, harness and implements, house and contents, value $5,000, insurance $1,500; Walter Abel, residence (J. A. Ross, M.P.P., owner), value $900, insurance $500; F. Flatt barn (H. B. Brooks, owner), value $1,500, no insurance; Bell Telephone Co., office and fixtures, $1,000.

The Gore Mutual of Galt carried most of the insurance. R. J. Goring announces that he will not rebuild, but James A. Ross, M.P.P., has decided to at once begin the construction of a brick block for stores and offices.

Adam Beamer, a farmer four miles north of Wellandport, brought into town a number of charred shingles that had dropped on his farm.

In 1882 almost the entire village was destroyed. J. R. Goring is the only one who suffered in both fires.

Conflagration Due to Poor Water.

Syracuse, N.Y., Aug. 26.—In a paper read before the International Association of Fire Engineers yesterday, Chief Edward F. Croker of New York declared that the most disastrous fires that have visited this country have been due to inadequate water facilities, and that mains, ordinarily good, fail in great conflagrations, and that to this is due the failure to cope with them.

Chief Croker said the fire departments should not hesitate to ask for all needed improvements for fire fighting and that cities should grant appropriations for such.

In a discussion of telephone alarms, the chiefs declared preference for box alarms, as telephones caused trouble and was often indefinite. They were good as auxiliary alarms only, they held.

Chief John Thompson of Toronto, Ont., will be elected president. The only contest is for the second vice-presidency, between Chief Thomas W. Haney of Jacksonville, Fla., and Chief H. F. Magee of Dallas, Texas.

There is said to be no opposition to Milwaukee as the next convention city.

Football Injuries Fatal.

Brantford, Aug. 26.—Ernest Savage, son of George Savage, farmer of Hatchley, is dead from injuries received while playing football in a game between Harley and Hatchley teams at Morris Woods on Friday last. The game was very rough. Savage made a check on Charles Radford, a Harley player, who had the ball, and it is thought he received Radford's knee in the stomach, causing internal injuries. A young man named Robinson was also badly injured, but will recover.

Duke of Norfolk Will Not Attend.

Montreal, Aug. 26.—The announcement made last night on behalf of Archbishop Bruchesi, that information had been received from England stating that the Duke of Norfolk could not attend the Eucharistic Congress, has caused keen regret among Roman Catholics.

German Gets Busy.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 26.—William Manley German, Liberal member for Welland, is in Ottawa, holding a conference with Deputy Postmaster-General Coulter regarding free mail delivery for this city.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY.

Prince Consort born, 1819.
Gen. Sir R. Biddulph born, 1835.
Great fire in Hakodate, 1907.

CURRENT EVENTS.

A Daily Health Hint says—Many persons do not drink a sufficient supply of water to maintain health Six glasses a day is sometimes necessary to help carry off the impurities of the human system. We know of systems in the immediate vicinity that six glasses of water would only stir up impurities to say nothing of helping to carry them off. Better try four times six.

The Chief of Police of Newport, R. I., signed a warrant for his own arrest for assaulting a former Mayor, arrested himself, pleaded not guilty continued his case for a week and bailed himself out. Fine system. According to this there is nothing to hinder a judge from suing for damages, finding for himself and going out and collecting.

Garden Thieves Get Busy.

A market gardener of this city complains that thieves are busy on his premises in the eastern part of the city. They were evidently frightened by something as they left behind them a bag containing corn, onions, tomatoes, etc. They may have the bag back again if they will apply for it and prove the property.

Drunkenness Curable.

Drunkenness is no longer considered a crime; eminent scientists and physicians have agreed that it is a disease and must be treated as such.

The home treatment that has been used for a number of years, and is highly successful, is Orrine. It is sold under a positive guarantee that if it does not effect a cure your money will be refunded. When desiring to give secretly purchase Orrine No. 1 and if patient will take treatment Orrine No. 2 should be given. Orrine costs but $1 per box. Mailed on receipt of price. Write for free booklet on "Drunkenness." The Orrine Co 963 Orrine Building, Washington, D. C. Sold in this city by J. S. McKeown.

Carried Off Safe.

Winnipeg, Aug. 26.—Burglars visited five places of business at Brandon Wednesday night, but the prizes were small, except on the McLean Piano Co.'s premises where, unable to break open the safe, they removed it bodily, having a wagon handy, apparently. The safe, which weighed about a quarter of a ton, only contained about $70. The only clue is the wagon.

Bought Sweetheart With Beer.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Aug. 26—"Why, no, he let me have her for a quart of beer," Isadore Heinrich, German brewery worker, told Judge Piper, when asked if he had not stolen Joseph Siebold's sweetheart, Lena Webber. Isadore wanted to swear out a warrant charging Siebold with assault, but the julge placated him.

Dies From Blood Poisoning.

St. Catharines, Aug. 26.—George Bowman, the 14-year-old son of Jos. H. Bowman, has died here from blood poisoning. The boy cut his foot slightly ten days ago, and he opened the wound to let the matter out, with a needle. Very soon symptoms of blood poisoning appeared.

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

In a recent issue I find a man with two nephews who pine for the country I lived on a farm once myself — for four months. We had ham and eggs for breakfast and rose at six o'clock A. M.

We worked and we worked and we worked and arrived at supper about half past six P. M. We washed in the sink. Supper was like continuous vaudeville, except that you did not have to pay ten cents to enter. Children of all shapes and sizes would be doing their lessons around the one and only lamp on the one and only table. We were all in the kitchen because this was winter, and the only place you could keep alive was near the stove.

Dog burst through a broken pane of glass in the window and chases the cat across the room. Chanticlers cackling in the back yard. I have the misfortune to be city bred. Maybe that accounts for me not being able to keep my attention fixed on my book. I should have done as one of the farmhands, I suppose. He sat and leaned his head against the wa'l and never said a word till nine P. M when we all went to bed.

Bless their honest hearts! Send them to the farm — large farms, small farms on West Farms. It matters not We are a little cramped for room in Ontario, and we can spare them.

Leave me in the city, please where I can meet with men my superiors and equals and learn something fresh every day. The city where the gentle cats howl me to sleep and the chug! chug! of the automobile, etc., are my earthly lullaby.

I'd rather be an advertisement in a subway car than be a whole baggage agent in Mudville. I could at least stay on the car till I got somewhere (probably Brooklyn.) I can take a Coney Island boat when I want some fresh air — or, better still, let the boat take me. No! I turn my back to the farm. Ontario is good enough for me.

Evil Days Come To Once Famous Star.

Never were the ups and downs of a music-hall artist's life more pitifully illustrated than in the case of Mme. Senia, at one time world-famous as "the Witch of the Air", who has just died in an infirmary in London. In private life Mme. Senia was Mrs. Hall, and at the time of her death she was 69. In her time she was the famous tight-rope walker and trapeze artist. She was the central attraction of all the big circuses and of her the theatrical boast of "appearing before the crowned heads of Europe and Asia" could be said with a large amount of truth, for she travelled extensively and appeared in most of the big cities of the world. She performed before Queen Victoria, and also before King Edward and Queen Alexandra when they were Prince and Princess of Wales. As "Witch of the Air" she was known everywhere, and one of the late King's horses, it will be recalled, bore that name. Through no fault of her own, Mme. Senia lost all the money she had massed, and for the past 15 years has passed through terrible vicissitudes. Those who knew her speak of her as a good woman, and commend highly her integrity and her zest for work. She sustained a very bad accident, and had to give up her work in the air, and from that time evil days fell thick upon her.

Her later days were made brighter and happier by the unobtrusive generosity of Mrs. Lawrence and her daughter Miss Vesta Victoria. It seems that the little son of some people whose premises backed on to Albert-mews, near Chapman road, was in the habit of throwing away remains of food. And one day an old lady came up to him, begging that he should give it to her for her dogs. The little fellow did so, and he watched. He saw the old lady eat the best part of the waste food, and it so touched him that he went to his mother and told her of the incident, praying her that each day he might give the old lady some food. This the little fellow did for many days. Then one day an old lady was discovered by a local green-grocer to be lying stiff and almost frozen to death in a stable. He took her to his house, placed her before the fire and gave her warm food. These facts came to the knowledge of Mrs. Lawrence and Miss Vesta Victoria, and they recognized that the old lady of the mews and the stable was the famous tight-rope walker whose name once was a household word. They discovered too, that Mme. Senia for many years had earned a precarious living by taking performing dogs around the streets. She had four beautiful dogs, who were passionately attached to her, and she saw that the animals had food even if she starved herself. Both Miss Vesta Victoria and her mother were much touched by the stress of the old lady's circumstances, and they saw that she was cared for and wanted for nothing to the day of her death. The rent of her room and the rent of her stable for the dogs were paid for her. For the past month Mme. Senia had been lying ill at Lambeth Infirmary, and before she died she begged Mrs. Lawrence to see that her faithful canine companions should be destroyed, with the exception of one, and that one she asked Mrs. Lawrence to keep. "I cannot bear to think that they may not get a good home, and it is better they should be destroyed," she said. The dog retained by Mrs. Lawrence is Pigeon, a clever animal who can turn all sorts of somersaults.

CHILDREN'S TERRORS

How Unnecessary Fears Are Bred in Infant's Minds.

It must be remembered that explicit utterance is not essential for the conveyance of ideas; for in the child a vague general notion is quite as effective for producing emotion as is a clear cut concept. Now the explanation of this is very simple; it depends upon the fact that gesture precedes speech as a vehicle of thought. The infant comprehends the varying attitudes and vocal tones of its mother long before it can distinguish different words. If I say to a small boy that a bear will eat him up the effect upon his emotions entirely differs whether I make the remark with portentous gravity and horror or whether I say it with bubbling joviality, as evidently a huge joke. In the first eventually the boy will rush to my side in terror and try to be saved from the bear, and a phobia is in course of construction; with the latter procedure the boy will laugh consumedly, and it would not take much to make him enter the cage and strike the bear. But even when terrified a child feels a refuge in the protection of his elders during the day, when they are rarely absent.

At night, however, the child is alone and his little consciousness cannot find the easy support of others. Before the kaleidoscope of his dreams pass the various images and accompanying emotions of his waking life, so that if any of these images has become linked with fear it is certain to bring with it terror as it serges into dream in the night, and the child jumps up awakened in panic, finding no one near him upon whom to lean.

It should not be difficult to see that these night terrors are the product of a suggestion while awake, implicit or explicit. It should not be difficult for those who are forewarned to prevent morbid fears of this type. I may cite the case of a Southern lady who could never enter a dark place without feeling an indescribable horror. No hereditary psychopathy could be invoked to explain her dread, for none of her three daughters had the least fear of the dark, and indeed they used to be sent by their school-fellows into dark and eerie places without experiencing the least trepidation. The difference was that as children they were protected by their mother from the tales of the plantation negroes, who knew that dismissal would follow transgression of the prohibition.

The formation of a night terror was nipped in the bud in the case of my own boy, then aged three and three-quarters I shall try to explain the method. For several weeks he had been visiting the zoological garden every afternoon in the company of a French maid of exceptionally forceful character and apparently free from the superstitions of the average nurse. For a long time all went well, until one evening the boy began to cry in bed soon after he was left for the night. At this unusual occurrence I mounted the stairs and enquired the cause of the boy's trouble. He said there were lions in the house and that he did not want to stay alone, as he was afraid they would eat him. The source of the idea had been that the lions had roared more loudly than usual on that particular afternoon, and he had been much impressed, standing for some time quite motionless before the cage, though unterrified.

I soon convinced the boy that the lions had to remain in their cages, and could not get out, hence there were none in the house, so that there was no occasion for fear. Of course, it was first necessary to give him the feeling of security gained by embracing me, and secondly, to begin the conversation by talking of something else, I have forgotten what. In this way the state of terror was dismissed and the feeling of protection was induced before we returned to the subject of the lions; then we made rather a joke of the funny roaring of the lions before we had finished, and he finally lay down with solemn purpose to go to sleep and think, as I suggested, of the tramcars and motors passing outside his open window. It was the prevention of what might have become a serious psychosis if injudiciously handled.—Medical Record.

Crown Attorney Anderson received notice that a man was found dead on the C. O. R. track, on the 23rd He died from exposure. The man's name is Arthur Milligan.

Those Children.

Do you remember that they need to romp to develop their muscles?

They also actually need to make a noise once in awhile, a great big ear splitting noise, and that something is the matter with them if they don't break over and do it occasionally.

So don't say "Don't!" every time they attempt it.

If you live in a flat and you're afraid they will bother the neighbors move, but don't continually say "Hush!"

Those children also need to walk, but most grown people don't know how to walk with them. They walk too fast, and short legs take short steps; hence there have to be twice as many of them to keep up.

Do you ever stop to think of that when you walk with a child?

Right Position For Bed.

A child's bed should be kept several inches from the wall, and if it is a brass or iron bedstead a heavy shawl or blanket should be thrown over the headboard. Young mothers have sometimes wondered why their little ones after going to bed perfectly well wake up sneezing and coughing. Upon moving the head of the bed several inches from the wall and covering the open-work headboard these pesky colds will probably cease.

The G. T. R. Bargain.

The grain growers' associations throughout the West are demanding of Sir Wilfrid Laurier that the Government build and operate the Hudson Bay Railway as a Government enterprise. The Laurier Government will find it very difficult to comply with this request.

There is this great difficulty, that unless and until a local traffic is built up the Hudson Bay Railway will be a line of intermittent traffic. There will be a rush in the wheat-shipping season, and at other seasons little or nothing. If it is managed as a Government line it will need a lot of rolling stock at one period of the year and other periods the rolling stock will stand idle, deteriorating and losing money. Mr. M. J. Butler, until recently Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals, put this case and argued that the line should be turned over to one of the big systems, which could turn all the cars needed into it at the rush season and use them elsewhere at other times.

This dilemma is a natural result of the Government's G. T. P. bargain. In 1903 the Laurier Government could have put the Intercolonial through to the West. It had only to buy an existing railway which was in the market to be extended to Depot Harbor on the Georgian Bay, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier refused, on the express ground that he didi not believe in Government ownership. Apart from this, the Government in 1903 when it planned the Quebec to Winnipeg trunk line could have made that part of the Intercolonial. Even if it had decided to allow the Grand Trunk Pacific to use the trunk line, it could have bargained for running rights for the Intercolonial over it, and so put the I. C. R. trains into Winnipeg. But it refused, and preferred to spend $200,000,000 in building the Eastern division of the G. T. P. and handling it over wholly to a private corporation. Then it helped the G. T. P. from Winnipeg West by guaranteeing three-fourths of the cost; had it arranged to put the Intercolonial into Winnipeg it could have made the G. T. P. pay for the assistance it received by allowing running rights. Then the Hudson Bay Railway could have been run as part of the Intercolonial—exactly what the Westerners are asking.

But instead, this is what is happening:—

1. The people of Canada are spending $200,000,000 on the Winnipeg to Moncton Railway.
2. When that line is finished the G. T. P. will be given full control of it.
3. The Intercolonial, the People's Railway, will not be allowed to use the road built with the people's money.
4. The G. T. P. gets Government help in financing three-fourths of its Western lines, and yet owns these lines outrights
5. The people's credit has been pledged, the people's railway cannot use the lines so built, and the people's newer railway, the one to Hudson Bay, is crowded into a corner and frozen out.

The West has now a plain object lesson as to what the G. T. P. bargain meant.

HONORED BY THE KING

Victorian Order Conferred Upon Conductor of Grenadier Guards Band

Distinguished Musical Career of Lieutenant Albert Williams

The rank of "lieutenant," when conferred on a bandmaster of the British Army, is a token of high musicianship. Every bandsman entered the service of the King just as does a private soldier. He is sworn in the same way and is subject to the same penalties for desertion. He remains in the position of a non-commissioned officer like a corporal or a sergeant even when he rises to the post of bandmaster. When, however, he attains real distinction as a musician he is gazetted a lieutenant and becomes entitled to the same recognition under the former rules of military etiquette as though he were a commissioned officer with a full military training and social prestige. The number of men who have received this honor at the hands of the British War Office could be counted on the fingers of both hands. One of them is Lieutenant Albert Williams, of the Grenadier Guards. He, though a young man, succeeded the late Lieut. Dan. Godfrey, in the conductor's post of the foremost musical organization of the British Army. This is but one of the honors he received. He is a musical doctor of Oxford, a distinction only won by great scholastic attainments and facility in original composition; the present King, in his birthday honors, made him a member of the Royal Victorian Order, and the Kaiser has conferred on him the Order of the Prussian Crown. By royal assent Lieut. Williams and his famous organization will give daily concerts at the Canadian National Exhibition.

For the Children

Training Scouts in Ambulance Work.

The boy scout movement, which has become so popular in this country, originated in England about three years ago. General Baden-Powell, who won fame in the Boer war, organized the first corps. Any number of boys between the ages of ten and eighteen may agree to enroll themselves as boy scouts, paying 2 cents a week to the common fund. But before being allowed to join the organization he must know the scouts' laws and signs and salute, and he must know how to tie four common knots. The scouts' motto is "Be prepared," and this means that the recruit must always be ready to do his duty, that he must obey orders and that he must be prepared for any emergency liable to arise. Ernest Thompson Seton has contributed many features to the plan in England and is helping spread the movement here. In August he will make up a party of scouts from the various associations in this country and will teach woodcraft, Indian games, building tepees, natural history and kindred subjects to the youngsters. The picture shows a patrol of English boy scouts being trained to ambulance work.

The Spitting Snake.

Lieutenant Sefton of the British army says that the African cobra is known as the "spitting snake" on account of its power to throw its venom quite a distance into the eyes of its enemy. It is a lazy reptile, save when stirred to anger, when it cannot be equaled for swiftness and accuracy in spitting at or biting its victim. The spitting is accomplished by expelling the breath sharply through the mouth, so that the soapy venom flies straight as a pea thrown from a pipe into the victim's eyes. This cobra attains the length of six feet and is large and powerful. It is doubly formidable from the fact that it can swim in the rivers very swiftly and has no fear. In swimming the cobra moves along very rapidly and with its nose and beady eyes just above the water's surface. Lieutenant Sefton declares that the bite of this snake will kill an ox and never fails to be fatal to a white man. There is a vine which, when the young leaves are crushed and applied as a poultice, will extract the poison, but it seems to act only on the native blood, since, of two men bitten and treated in exactly the same way, one, a native, recovered and the white man died.

Raining Trees.

After a frosty night, when the sun comes out, the frost melts and falls from the trees in drops. Even in summer, when there has been a heavy dew on a cool night, this falls later like a fine spray of rain. But there are countries that have little rain and much warmth, yet these countries have trees which seem to gather moisture when the sun has set to distribute it upon the thirsty land during the next day. Some kind of trees attract more moisture than others, and these have been called rain trees. The dry plains of parts of South America are said to be refreshed by the drippings from an acacia tree. Occasionally moisture falls which is caused by insects. Travelers have seen a species of cicada, or grasshopper, swarming upon young shoots in hot countries and squirting out juice as they feed.

The Jamaica Firefly.

The Jamaica firefly, a species of insect over an inch in length, emits a very brilliant light, which comes from the sides of the head and beneath the thorax. The light is a fluctuating one, not the steady glow of the glowworm. A very remarkable fact is that this fluctuating or pulsating light may continue after the death of the insect. If it is supposed that the light of the living insect is due to oxygen supplied under its control to the luminous matter, a conclusion may be reached to the effect that after death the oxygen of the air might obtain access to it and produce a like effect. It is difficult, however, to account for the pulsations in the light of the dead firefly.

A Cross Trick.

How to make a cross with three pennies: Take up the three pennies between finger and thumb and make the sign of a cross on the table.

The Piper.

Tom, Tom, the piper's son,
Learned to play when he was young,
But the only tune that he could play
Was "Over the Hills and Far Away!"

Tom with his pipe made such a noise
That he pleased both the girls and boys,
And they stopped to hear him play
"Over the Hills and Far Away."

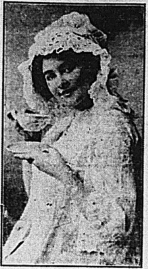
THE SMART CAPER.

Wear a Breakfast Cap and Look Dainty.



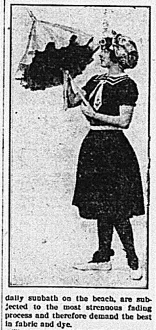
THE NEW BREAKFAST CAP.

Old time fashions are being revived in all departments of dress, and the last new old fashion to appear is the breakfast cap. Some girls prefer to call them colonial caps, for they were worn by the ladies of the Revolution, who looked charming in the dainty lace headgear. Every one is familiar with the pictures of Martha Washington in her mob cap. Well, you can make your new breakfast headpiece just like hers if you want to or you can copy the peasant headdress of Holland, which is a delightful model.

All kinds of odds and ends of lace and muslin are brought into commission for these caps, and it is only the work of a few minutes to make a lovely creation all lace, frills and flowing ribbons. The illustration will give a good idea of a modish cap.

And, by the way, these caps are being presented to summer brides and to young mothers and debutantes.

The Bathing Suit.



The better the material the more durable the bathing suit or beach gown. Clothes for the seashore, whether for the actual sea dip or for the merest daily sunbath on the beach, are subjected to the most strenuous fading process and therefore demand the best in fabric and dye.

The costume pictured is both practical and pretty.

Arranging Flowers.

No trouble is too great to the genuine lover of flowers when arranging them. The utmost pains will be taken to choose the most suitable glass or jar receptacle. A large bunch of sweet peas looks well if placed on an old china mug or bow pot. Roses are equally effective if set in specimen glasses or carelessly grouped in a porcelain bowl.

Lilies of the valley are a host in themselves. Poppies seem to require clay pottery or the bottle green vases that are so general nowadays. Forgetmenots look well in small, low glasses. Mignonette is best in a bowl by itself, as it is said to kill flowers that are put with it. The old fashioned clove carnation looks well with a spray of white jasmine. Scarlet geranium should always have a spray of its own leaves.

Maidenhair fern, so lovely as foliage, is properly associated with hothouse blossoms, but orchids should be excepted from this suggestion. They are best as nature intended them to be. Indeed, it is always more artistic to give each flower its own foliage.

Pongee Petticoats.

Paris says the pongee petticoat is new. It is made of the natural colored silk, with a scant ruffle, and is very closely fitted over the hips. Its only trimming is an insertion along the ruffle's edge of coffee colored linen lace or a few rows of ecru colored soutache braid.

By using a pattern for the homemade petticoat there is no reason why it cannot be made to look quite as well as those made by the skirt expert.

A transformer built to test high voltage insulators in a German electric plant develops the enormous pressure of half a million volts across its terminals, the sound of the discharge being olmost deafening

Baby's First Shoes.

Many young mothers treasure the first tiny shoe of soft kid worn by their baby son or daughter above all other infantile belongings. In keeping with this sentiment has come about the practice of silvering one of these little shoes in order to make its preservation permanent.

Mint Tea For the Nervous.

Mint has many virtues and a few vices, says the New Orleans Picayune. Well washed, the leaves pulled from the stems, slightly mashed and boiling water poured over there results a "mint tea" that is a sovereign remedy for nervous as well as stomach troubles. Served in a thin glass with cracked ice and a little sugar in it, it cools and quiets the system generally.

In preparing the mint tea the bowl is kept closely covered until the contents are cool, then strained, poured into a bottle that can be closely corked and set on ice. When wanted ice should be pounded very fine and a little sugar added if liked. Some prefer the tea unsweetened.

The Mote In Your Own Eye.

If you find yourself thinking more of the bad points of your friends and relatives than of their good ones, just stop a moment and ask yourself how you would like people to get into the habit of doing the same with you. Then start again right away and do better next time. Everybody has good points. Try to see them.

What a Kaiser Is.

"And now," said the teacher, "we come to Germany, that important country governed by a kaiser. Tommy Jones, what is a kaiser?"

"Please, ma'am, a kaiser is a stream of hot water springin' up an' disturbin' the earth."—Everybody's Magazine.

To Help Out.

When there is a small allowance of fruit on hand and sponge cake and whipped cream are to be had cut the cake into slices, turn the fruit over it and surmount the whole with whipped cream. Strawberries and pineapple alone or mixed are delectable in this way.

Aids Nature

The great success of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in curing weak stomachs, wasted bodies, weak lungs, and obstinate and lingering coughs, is based on the recognition of the fundamental truth that "Golden Medical Discovery" supplies Nature with body-building, tissue-repairing, muscle-making materials, in condensed and concentrated form. With this help Nature supplies the necessary strength to the stomach to digest food, build up the body and thereby throw off lingering obstinate coughs. The "Discovery" re-establishes the digestive and nutritive organs in sound health, purifies and enriches the blood, and nourishes the nerves—in short establishes sound vigorous health.

If your dealer offers something "just as good," it is probably better FOR HIM—it pays better. But you are thinking of the cure not the profit, so there's nothing "just as good" for you. Say so.

The ...Veiled Lady...

I shall cut my leave of absence short, and join you as soon as I can. This will be your last chance for years to see Belvoir, as I mean to stay on the plains. Belvoir is good enough for a retreat when I am a retired Colonel!—I will not miss this Washita campaign!—Come now!—My mother's state demands my care. I will telegraph my return from St. Louis. Now try a Kentucky welcome!"

"Maxwell," said Seaton, "let us go. You have your preparations to make for your frontier service in Arizona. I am out of place in all these summer pleasures, and among your merry friends. I will go west with you. I will meet you after we leave Belvoir and go on to San Francisco. Something tells me that I am drawing nearer my poor lost one." He turned away his voice faltering.

"Very well! Beverly!" heartily answered his friend. "You write to Jack, and we will meet him as he wishes. You must, however, be on your guard with Gordon. His winning courtesy may lead you towards confidence. Remember? Your present silence is the price of finding your lost sister in the future."

Seaton's lip quivered. "I am on guard, day and night, dear old boy," he rejoined. "I could not bear to tell Gordon this trouble! I rest my hopes on you alone." His voice was almost tender. "I will find her yet! But Gordon must never know! I will wait and watch in silence! I will wait until—" he paused.

"Until when, Beverly?" Maxwell queried.

Seaton's eyes flashed fire. "Until I can say, 'I have avenged the Past!' It is my right,—mine alone!" he cried, turning away. Maxwell sighed in silence.

Bright and joyous, (the picture of his gallant father,) was Lieutenant John Gordon, 7th U. S. Cavalry, as he welcomed the two friends at stately Belvoir. Under the spreading oaks of the Blue Grass Country, bowered in a wilderness of natural beauty, the Kentuckian's home was built on the classic ground where his grandsires had struggled with the relentless Indian!—To-day, Gordon's selected chargers of the rarest strain, galloped in his fragrant fields, eager for their life and death races under the far distant guidons of the fighting "Seventh." The three friends in company ran the gauntlet of the hospitable hordes closing down on them. In the land of "Fair Women, Brave Men, and Matchless Steeds," with golden youth to guide,—the only shadow resting on them was Seaton's care-haunted face. Self-repression has its mental limits,—the eyes never lie—but the lips may!

"Maxwell!" said Gordon, the day before their departure, "I am worried about Seaton. He seems uneasy,—melancholy at times,—and growing cynical. You cannot divine his real sorrow. I can! I know!" Maxwell started in sudden alarm! Open-hearted Jack had led him away in secret to commune as to the Virginian's occasional moodiness. "He's not in love? Something serious?" appealed Jack; who noted the withering fire of approving glances cast on the gallant rebel veteran, by the dark-eyed beauties around Belvoir. "It's a dangerous place here, Vinton, for a man who's heart-whole. I keep always in love with some one girl; she fights the other darling away from her particular prey." Gordon's greatest horror was love running away with the lover!

"It's not that!" Maxwell soberly said; "I think he is lonely."

"I have it now!" Gordon cried in triumph. "He needs waking up. You are a Northern man, Vinton! You cannot understand how the new order of things grates on our Southern people. Virginia is in a tumble-down state. Seaton, to the sting of personal defeat, adds his family sorrows; and the loss of property. You see, he lost both his father and sister in war time." Maxwell blessed God for Gordon's innocent mistake. So even he did not suspect.

"Now!" said Jack, decisively, "I'll urge him to go west with me. He can have a run on the plains. New faces, new scenes, and new friends will make him forget poor old Virginia; the graveyard of his generation; the battle-scarred monument over the tomb of Southern Rights. You see we are prosperous here; but the Old Dominion is simply moribund. I'll open on him at dinner. You must help me to wake him up."

Maxwell was glad to aid the young philosopher.

"Anything to spare Seaton needless suffering," he thought. "Jack! Don't mention Seaton's family to him," said Maxwell in parting.

"Trust me for that! I know how keen his feelings are," retorted the host, as he hastened to command the final feast for his guests.

"Gordon thinks that your sister died in war time," whispered Maxwell, as they walked down the long corridor to the grand old dining hall; where Gordon's service sword hung, crossed with his sire's over the great fire-place.

"Thank Heaven! I'll never undeceive him," slowly replied Seaton.

"Beverly! I am going to make a cavalryman of you," Gordon beamingly remarked, as he passed the rare Madeira, spared from onslaught of friend and foe in the "dark days." "Come out and have a dash at the buffalo with me. You have nothing to do. You need a change." He winked furtively at Maxwell.

"I am very sorry, I cannot, Jack!" graver. "I have some grave business which demands my attention."

"Hang your old business!" the Master of Belvoir cried. "I want to make a new man of you. Come with me. You will find what real life is, out where the sun sinks in a thousand miles of unbroken green prairie! Let your 'business' wait!—We're not Yankees!"

"It may take my whole life, Gordon!" said Seaton, almost fondly. "It's a trust! It's a matter of honor!" "Honor goes!" the warm-hearted Kentuckian cried. "Promise me then, to come back here and meet me again! Let us three stand together! Friends and comrades, always!" The young men clasped each other's hands in silence. "I will go west with Maxwell," said Seaton, "as I have affairs in California, and shall try and look you up on my return." "You won't find me here," said the cavalryman, "unless a wound brings me home. I have two years of regimental duty before I can ask leave." "By the way, Maxwell," said the Master of Belvoir, "I have made my will. Our regiment goes on a winter hunt for the 'hostiles' in the Washita Mountains. I have made you my executor!—No! Don't protest!" laughed Jack. "They say 'Engineer officers never get hurt!—Besides, I have named a second, to aid you, should a complication of 'triangles' carry you off. My bank has all my papers and sealed instructions for you. You are the nearest man in the world to me,—you steady sober-sides!"

Gordon's dancing eyes kindled as he gazed at his four years' chum. "I notify you now, as I have large real interests in St. Louis. My trustees have had a good man in charge for three years. He wishes to marry, and would like to hide his happiness abroad for a few months. I will go over there and look over his accounts, and make arrangements to handle the property, as he leaves in December. I expect to eat my Christmas dinner with Black Kettle, Little Raven, Satana, or some such feather-decked devils. God only knows where it will be! Here's 'How!' anyhow":—And the three friends 'stood up in a row,'—and drank the old toast to Gordon's success, on the "big scout." "Don't forget, Fellows, the motto of our class-ring, 'Cor Unum, Viæ Diversæ,' said Jack as the stirrup cup was drained next day. "Seaton! you are one of 'Ours' now. Stil we three may never meet again." Their life paths were soon to separate, and before the spring, handsome Jack might stop a Cheyenne's bullet, or lonely Maxwell fall under the Apache arrow!—Whither would Seaton drift?—Onward,—forward—to and fro, stil yearning for the vanished face of the Lost Lady of Seaton Hall.

"This is a God-forsaken country, Maxwell! We are as nicely fixed for our New Year's dinner, as poor Jack for his own, on Christmas! I wonder where he is now?" Beverly Seaton gazed upon the wide expanse of rocky hill and trackless gray desert stretching far below. There was nothing inviting in the view. The New Year's Eve in Arizona in 1868 was indeed cheerless. Maxwell, clad in fatigue uniform, showed only his golden straps to indicate the "officer and gentleman." The two friends were standing on a low spur of the White Mountains before a little shelter tent. Two-score jaded, weary-looking cavalry soldiers, in dingy blue vestments, were busied in the camp, where a couple of wagons and the troop horses (carefully picketed) were guarded by four sentinels under a watchful sergeant. To the northwest, the Salt River dashed madly through its canons. Far to the south, the sluggish Gila wound through the arid desert between its willow-shaded banks. In the foreground, sickly stretches of sage brush and grease wood covered the gleaming sands, with here and there a patch of the thorny mesquit thicket. To the east, the notched Sierras of the White Mountains rose high in air, whence nightly the baleful war fires of the murderous Apaches glittered. Far away, a belt of grey waste swept away to the Mexican Mountains, faintly pencilled in the thin blue air.

"This is a nice country to leave, Vinton," sarcastically resumed the ex-Confederate. "We have a thousand miles of desert to the east, the grim Colorado sahara to the west, and another thousand to the north, of Indian-haunted hills. Our 'best way out,' would be Mexico; only you can't desert. Let's be jolly for New Year's." There was a hopeless ring in Seaton's voice.

"I would feel jolly, if I only had news of Jack Gordon! We at least are safe. You will be all right when we get to Tucson, for the stage will rattle you over to Santa Fe soon. But the Seventh Cavalry must have struck those Indians who defeated General Sully. I am worried about Jack! You know how rash he is. If I only had our mail!" Maxwell strained his eyes in the direction of the Gila. Both the friends were browned and hardened with the long march from Los Angeles over the Colorado Desert, unspanned then by a single rail. Wending around "the Territory," on reconnaissance of "roads and natural features," the young Engineer Officer proposed to return from Tucson to the Head quarters at Prescott.

While they spoke, the wagon master detached himself from a knot of half a dozen lounging teamsters; his keen eye noted what the listless sentinels did not see. "Thar's an outfit of three or four men on our trail, Lootenant!" he slouchily remarked. "I reckon it's an express from Fort McDowell."

In five minutes a cavalry corporal and three men dashed into camp. Though splendidly mounted, and each loaded down with a carbine, two revolvers, and a bowie knife, they welcomed the safety of the camp.—For every thicket in "McDowell canon" had its lurking terrors. Every furlong of the dangerous road showed a pile of stones, covering all the Apaches and wolves had left of some poor one of God's creatures. Land of Gold and Blood!—Hemmed in by deserts, arid and horror haunted, its very stones were gold and silver, its mountains copper!—Yet, the lonely sand plains, where the sun leaped up at daybreak

Electric lamps are inserted in the doors of passenger elevators so a person entering a car at night will know just where he is to step. The light is switched on or off automatically as a car stops at or leaves a floor.

An automatic burglar-proof lock has been patented for freight trains. If broken, it sounds an air whistle and sets the brakes on the train.

The damage and waste caused by smoke in the larger cities of the United States each year is estimated at $500,000,000 by an official of the Geological Survey, who says his figures are conservative.

Any one of the 26 Atlantic type locomotives recently ordered by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, will haul on a level a train of 25 passenger, ten baggage, seven Pullman and eight postal cars.

A glass bottle may be cut off easily by ated in kerosene, lighting the string and tying around it a piece of string saturallowing it to burn until the bottle is heated, then plunging the bottle into cold water.

The governments of 39 states now cooperate with the United States Geological Survey in one or more forms of topographic, geological or hydrographic work

LIEUT. MORRIS IN LEAD

He Is Three Points Ahead For Grand Aggregate.

Despite High Wind Yesterday Good Shooting Is Done at the D.R.A. Matches—English Cadets Beat the Canadian Boys In Special Team Match by Good Margin — Sergt. Armstrong's Possible at 1,000 Yards.

Ottawa, Aug. 26.—There was a very strong wind at the D.R.A. matches yesterday, so strong that many put as high as 25 degrees of wind on their sights, in the Burland match at 1,000 yards. The wind was very tricky, but in spite of these unfavorable weather conditions, Sergt. Armstrong of the 13th, Hamilton, put on eight bulls, making a possible.

The executive has under consideration the adoption of a uniform sight for next year. As it is now, the sights are so varied that every rifleman can have a pet one of his own.

The grand aggregate match is nearing a close. There is only one more range, with a possible of 35, to shoot over to-day. Lieut. Morris of Bowmanville has a lead of 3 points now. The leaders are: Lieut. Morris, 46th D.C.O.R., 271; Col.-Sergt. Freeborn, 13th, 268; Pte. Bailie, G.G.F.G., 264; Sergt. Carmichael, Alberta, 262; Pte. Clifford, 10th R.G., Toronto, 262; Sergt. Mitchell, 13th, 262; Lieut. Forrester, Canadian Engineers, 262.

In the special team match at 200 and 500 yards (possible 700), ten English cadets defeated ten Canadian cadets by 606 to 569. The Canadian team scores were: W. Luddy, Dundas, 200 yards 30, 500 yards 31; C. Mallette, Dundas, 31 and 31; H. H. Hawkes, Toronto, 30 and 18; R. L. Hughes, Toronto, 26 and 26; J. H. Gould, Toronto, 27 and 31; P. Landrigan, Prince Edward Island, 30 and 27; G. W. Devitt, Toronto, 30 and 31; A. D. Bell Irving, Victoria, 29 and 29; G. Holder, Ottawa, 30 and 31; J. Loggie, Hamilton, 27 and 26.

General French's Report.

London, Aug. 26.—The Canadian Associated Press learns that a copy of the report of Gen. Sir John French upon the military organization of the defences of the Dominion has been forwarded to Ottawa. The conclusion arrived at by Gen. French is understood to be entirely favorable. He accords unqualified praise to the spirit in which the voluntary forces meet the demands made upon them. He strongly recommended as far as the western provinces are concerned, that much more attention should be paid to cavalry and mounted infantry training, and that additions as specified in the report should be made to artillery.

Pickpocket Escaped; Cop Resigns.

St. Catharines, Aug. 26.—Constable Book of Grimsby has resigned in consequence of the escape of a pickpocket at Grimsby Park a week ago. Book states that when the pickpocket was handed over to him, he brought him into Manager Wylie's office. While he was there with the prisoner, the lights went out, and while they were off Wylie chased the pickpocket out of his office.

Book then states he went out to hunt for the pickpocket, but Constable Swayzie states that Book was at his home when he rang him up ten minutes later.

S.O.E. Trippers Return.

Montreal, Aug. 26.—The 150 members of the Sons of Enlgand, who have been visiting England, arrived last night on the steamship Royal George. One man induced 25 of his old chums to come to Canada and settle at Brampton, Ont.

THE NEBRASKAN IN ALBERTA.

Arthur Stringer Discusses the Influx Into the Canadian West.

To-day more wheat is bought and sold in Winnipeg than in Chicago. More than half of it is moved by American money. Three-quarters of Canada's most prosperous city, the city of Calgary, which twelve years ago was a sleepy "cow town" and is to-day the bustling, booming centre of the "Alberta Red" prosperity, is owned by Americans. Its most fashionable residential section has been christened "American Hill," and it is already tapped by an American railroad built and operated by American capital. West of Winnipeg the native Canadian is outnumbered two to one by his American cousin. South of the line, in fact, the startled Middle West States are forming "Why-Go-to-Canada Clubs." Yet characteristically American is this brand new country's brand new slogan as it scatters northward for new wheat fields: "A billion bushels a year or bust!"

A State Department report of last December disclosed that the total American investments in Canada had already reached the colossal sum of $226,800,000. This sum was approximately divided as follows:

168 companies, average capital, $600,000	$100,800,000
Investments in British Columbia mills and timber	50,000,000
Investments in British Columbia mines	50,000,000
Land deals in Alberta, etc.	10,000,000
Investments in lumber and mines in Alberta	5,000,000
Packing plants	5,000,000
Implement-distributing houses	4,000,000
Land deals in British Columbia	2,000,000
Total	$226,800,000

"Why'd you leave your own country?" I had the temerity to ask a denim-clad man from Nebraska as he stood in the shadow of his "high-bagger" threshing "Alberta Red" out of the stock.

"Hev' I?" he mildly inquired.

"Of course you have!"

"I ain't seen anything to show me I hev'," persisted the amiable expatriate, "except I get a Canadian quarter in my change now and then!"

"But this is King Edward's country!"

"No, 'tain't, young man! It's God A'mighty's country! That's what it is. And I guess I'm a blamed sight nearer Nebraska and the home folks than you New Yorkers are. And I guess we've got more in common, us prairie folks up and down these plains from Texas to Great Slave Lake, than you Easterners have with anything west o' the Missouri. No, sir; it's all one, this West! It's all God A'mighty's outdoors!"

I tried to point out to him that he was under a new flag and a new Government. His retort was worthy of record.

"A surveyor's parallel o' latitude ain't such a hell of a thing t' climb over!"

And the denim-clad Nebraskan, in his homely way, went on to show me how the country was all one. He wouldn't admit that there was any weakening in the feeling of American citizenship. Nobody had demanded of him the sale of his birthright. He found himself under a system of government that was proving itself as democratic as any in the world, with representative institutions even more direct in the submission of the executive authority to the will of the people. He found a scrupulous enforcement of law and the greatest respect for the rights of person and property. He found himself free of the ever active antennae of that loathed octopus known as the Trusts. He was in a country where everyone was too busy growing wheat and making roads and building cities to hang about talking jingoism and kow-towing to potentates in gold braid. There was no obtrusion of nationality. This newer country of his adoption was, in fact, under hostage to peace, with its thirty-five hundred miles of unfortified boundary and its prairie cities without a machine gun.—Arthur Stringer in Pearson's.

A Round-Up In Saskatchewan.

Some of the yellow fever wastrels who turned their faces northward during the mad rush of '97 from Edmonton to the Yukon gold fields lost more than their health en route. For instance, between two and three hundred horses belonging to the caravans ran derelict. These steeds and their descendants have always been the cause of considerable calculation on the part of ranchers. Expeditions have been sent out to round them up—none achieving the expected results. The horses can run like original mustangs. Many a home-bred equine of the ranch has run himself to death, trying to rope in the Yukon stallions. At last, ranchers have come to the conclusion that running down the wild horses is too costly a job. Not so the Government. The Department of Agriculture wants the stray steeds. They have given the Messinghall outfit, Sounding Lake, a two-months' contract to do the capturing.

Carried It Off.

In New Brunswick and other Canadian provinces when a wife deserts her husband he frequently publishes a notice like this in the local papers:—

"Whereas my wife has left my bed and board without just cause, etc., I will be responsible for no bills of her contracting, etc."

An old fellow who had been deserted by his spouse once came to a lawyer to have such a notice prepared.

The attorney began writing the notive in the stereotyped form, reading as he wrote: "Whereas my wife Emily has left my bed—"

"Hold on," interrupted the client; "It was her bed and she took it with her."

What News Is.

A Toronto paper in endeavoring to describe what news is says:

Some people never can understand what news it. Let us define it. A daily paper will never publish an extra because a Maltese cat eats a canary. But let the canary eat the cat, and see what will happen.

After a long series of tests German scientists seem to have disproved an old theory that resin is a beneficial ingredient in soaps, their decision being that the washing power of a soap decreases as the resin content increases.

CLEVERLY DISGUISED.

A Little Game of Strategy That Was Played by Bismarck.

The Iron Chancellor was not only a statesman, able to handle abstract theories of government, but a shrewd player of the lesser games of life.

When he represented Prussia at the Diet of Frankfort in 1866 he had reason to suspect that his letters and dispatches were tampered with by the Austrians. Other diplomatists suffered from the same meddling. One day after a stormy meeting Bismarck and the representative from Hanover walked away together, and as they walked the Hanoverian touched on the sore subject and asked Bismarck if he had found a way to get his letters through. The chancellor replied that the representative should know presently.

The prince as the two strolled along led the way through dingy bypaths into a slum. Drawing on a thick pair of gloves, he entered a little shop where the poor bought tea, cheese, pickles, lamp oil and such commodities. The astonished Hanoverian followed. A stupid looking lad stood behind the counter.

"Boy," demanded the chancellor, "do you sell soap?"

"Yes, sir," responded the boy, placing on the counter a variety of strong scented cakes.

When, after a careful examination, Bismarck had selected his soap he thrust his hand into his pocket and drew out an uninclosed letter. He gave an exclamation as of dismay and surprise. Apparently annoyed at his forgetfulness, he cried, "Boy, do you sell envelopes?"

Envelopes of a cheap grade were produced, and Bismarck put the letter in one. Then he asked for pen and ink and set out to write the address, but his heavy glove hindered him. "Here, boy," he exclaimed, throwing down the pen, "just write this address for me!"

When the scrawl was finished Bismarck took the letter and left the shop.

"There," said he, putting the letter to his companion's nose, "what with the soap, the herring, the candles and the cheese I don't think they'll smell my dispatch under that writing."

Primrose Salad.

The primrose is only one of the many flowers which graced the salad of the past. The old-time cook looked upon both flower garden and kitchen garden with the same calculating eye. Of herbs all were seized—thyme, rosemary, marjoram, basil, lavender. And of flowers the rose, the violet, the cowslip, the primrose, the lily of the valley, were never safe from the pot hunter. Then there were the roots and buds of the fields. Elder tops, burdock roots, "ashkeys," broom buds—all, indeed, were good that came to the cook. The flowers he used for coloring sirups and custards. The roots he pickled. And his "sallets" comprised everything plantlike. To-day the fittest survive.—London Spectator.

A Queer Tug of War.

In Burma the inhabitants have a novel form of the sport that elsewhere is commonly called tug of war. In the Burmese game are a rain party and a drought party, which pull one against the other, the victory of either party being considered to have immediate results as regards the weather. The drought party, however, obtains few victories, for the kind of weather it represents is commonly not so much desired as rain. In the face, therefore, of a strong public opinion the rain party is nearly always allowed to win, the palpable "roping" in the popular notion being generally followed by a fertilizing downpour.

His Helpful Suggestion.

In a church which could be named the pastor was desirous of bringing about in a tactful way some improvements in the midweek service and announced for a subject "The Ideal Prayer Meeting." A number of helpful suggestions had been made, when one brother known to be harmless as a dove if not wise as a serpent got up and said:

"I think everybody should come prepared to say something, so that no time should be lost except that which is taken by the pastor."

As he was known to be a great admirer of the pastor the gravity of the meeting was somewhat disturbed.

The Same Brick.

One day a mother found her four-year-old Alice playing with a brick in the parlor. She threw it out of doors and, turning to the child, said, "If you bring another brick into the parlor mother will whip you."

Shortly afterward she again found the child playing with a brick and, looking at her reprovingly, asked, "What did mother tell you about that brick, Alice?"

"Well, this isn't another brick," said the child. "This is the one I had before."

Napoleon and His Mother.

Soon after Napoleon's assumption of the imperial purple he chanced to meet his mother in the gardens of St. Cloud. He was surrounded by courtiers and half playfully held out his hand for her to kiss. "Not so, my son," she gravely replied, at the same time presenting her hand in return; "it is your duty to kiss the hand of her who gave you life."

Snakes.

The holes commonly seen in the fields are not "snake holes," though commonly called such. They are made by field mice, shrews and moles, often by the larger insects, and it is very seldom that snakes even take refuge in them. Few snakes actually dig holes. They burrow in soft ground, the subterranean species, but these live, as a rule, in soft, yielding soil.

For Modern Health.

"'In aqua sanitas,'" quoted the modern observer. "Now, there's an axiom that needs to be revised."

"What's the idea?" inquired the plain citizen.

"Well, to be correct, it should read, 'In boiled aqua sanitas.'"

Four hundred gallons of milk a year is the average yield of a healthy cow.

FIGURE PROBLEMS

Gems That Are to Be Found In the Old Arithmetics.

ALL OF THEM "PRACTICAL."

That Was What the Inquisitive Boy's Father Told Him, and the Lad Started Out to Verify the Statement—The "Practical" Examples He Dug Up.

Was education more practical a generation ago, or did John's father study his books more thoroughly than John does? John is a seventh grade student in the public schools. He asked his father to help him solve the following problem:

"A., asked how much money he has in the bank, replied, 'If I had $10 more I would have $1,000 more than half what I now have.' How much money had A.?"

"Such a fool problem," said the father. "Tell that teacher to ask the cashier. You have been pestering me with problems like that for a week. Suppose your teacher asked you how old you are. Would you tell her 'If I were ten times as old as I am, diminished by forty-two, I would be thirty years older than dad, and if dad were one-fourth as old as he now is he would be my age?' What would your teacher do if you answered in such a manner? In my day we had practical problems in our arithmetic."

In order to investigate his father's statement John went to the public library and asked for an old arithmetic.

The librarian gave him Richard's Natural Arithmetic. He turned to the page marked "Practical Exercises" and read:

"A. puts his whole flock of sheep into three pastures. Half go into one pasture, one-third into another and thirty-two into a third. How many in the flock?"

"That's queer," said John. "Practical exercises too. Here is a man who wants to find how many sheep he has. He counts them so he will know when he has half of them. This half he puts into a pasture. Then he counts out a third and puts it in another pen. Next he counts what's left and finds he has thirty-two. After a little figuring he finds how many in the whole flock. Very practical. I guess dad didn't study that book."

The next book he examined was Milne's Inductive Arithmetic, edition of 1879. In miscellaneous examples he found the following:

"Two ladders will together just reach the top of a building seventy-five feet high. If the shorter ladder is two-thirds the length of the other, what is the length of each?"

"Why didn't he measure each ladder separately?" John asked himself. "That problem is not practical. I guess dad is older than I thought. I want an older book."

The text written in 1863 was handed to him. The book was evidently influenced by the civil war, for it was filled with problems dealing with battering down fortifications and the sustenance of soldiers. One problem was:

"If twelve pieces of cannon (eighteen pounders) can batter down a fortress in three hours, how long will it take for nineteen twenty-four-pounders to batter down the same fortress?"

"That's fine for a general," John reflected, "but dad says that I am going to be a captain of industry."

Another arithmetic of the same date had the famous fish problem with which John's teacher had troubled him for six weeks before he himself finally explained it to the class. The fish problem is:

"The head of a fish is ten inches long. Its tail is as long as its head and one-half the body. The body is as long as the head and tail both. How long is the fish?"

Very handy problem for a butcher.

John turned to the Common School Arithmetic, edition of 1853. "Here I'm sure to find something good," he reflected and read:

"A hare starts up twelve rods before a hound, but she is not perceived by him till she has been up one and one-fourth minutes. She runs at the rate of thirty-six rods a minute, and the hound runs at the rate of forty rods a minute. How long will the race last, and what will be the distance the hound runs?"

"What difference does it make how far the hound runs?" John asked as he turned to the Scholar's Arithmetic, edition of 1807. The present high cost of living made the first problem impractical for present day purposes, John concluded. The problem was as follows:

"If I give eighty bushels of potatoes at 21 cents a bushel and 240 pounds of flax at 15 cents a pound for sixty-four bushels of salt, what is the salt worth a bushel?"

Another problem was:

"A good man driving his guest to market was met by another, who said, 'Good morrow, master, with your 100 geese.' Says he in reply, 'I have not 100 geese, but if I had half as many as I now have and two and one-half geese besides the number I now have already I should have 100.' How many geese had the man?"

How long would you permit a man to live if he made such an answer to you?

"Phew!" John sighed as he wiped his forehead and handed the book back to the librarian. "Dad must have skipped these practical problems."—Kansas City Star.

We are never so ridiculous by the qualities we have as by those we affect to have.—Rochefoucauld.

A new machine separates the whites and yolks of opened eggs by allowing the former to pass through a sieve and automatically ejects bad eggs, which will not separate, their weight tripping a tray.

A WOMAN'S LOGIC.

It Helped Her Out When the Customs Officials Bothered Her.

On one of the recently arriving transatlantic steamers was a young woman whose extreme economy had not permitted any lavish expenditure abroad. But she had repeatedly referred with commendable pride to the material for two silk dresses she had purchased at a bargain which she was bringing home for her mother and sister. Even the suggestion of one sympathetic listener that she would have to pay duty produced merely a temporary restraint.

Finally when the liner approached New York and the custom house officer received the somewhat plain woman at the cabin table her fellow passengers were curious. Being asked the usual questions about dutiable property, she replied stoutly and defiantly that she had the material for two silk dresses.

"Are they for yourself?" the inspector wanted to know.

"No, they are not," she declared. "I am bringing them home for presents."

"Then since they are not for your own use I shall be compelled to charge you duty," and he figured out for her the required amount.

Taking the pencil from his hand, she figured for a moment and then said: "Well, I declare! That has made those dresses cost me so much that I simply can't afford to give them away now. I'm just going to keep them for myself; that's what I'll do!"—New York Tribune.

LET THE YAWN COME.

A Good One Is a Splendid Thing For the Whole Body.

A good, wide, open mouthed yawn is a splendid thing for the whole body. A yawn is nature's demand for rest. Some people think they only yawn because they are sleepy, but this is not so. You yawn because you are tired. You may be sleepy also, but that is not the real cause of your yawning. You are sleepy because you are tired, and you yawn because you are tired.

Whenever you feel like yawning just yawn. Don't try to suppress it because you think it is impolite to yawn. Put your hand over your mouth if you want to, but let the yawn come. And if you are where you can stretch at the same time that you yawn just stretch and yawn. This is nature's way of stretching and relaxing the muscles.

Don't be afraid to open your mouth wide and yawn and stretch whenever you feel like it. Indeed, if you are very tired, but do not feel like yawning, there is nothing that will rest you so quickly as to sit on a straight back chair and, lifting your feet from the floor, push them out in front of you as far as possible, stretch the arms, put the head back, open the mouth wide and make yourself yawn.

Those tense nerves will relax, the contracted muscles will stretch and the whole body will be rested. Do this two or three times when you are tired and see what it will do for you.

First English Horse Races.

Chester possesses plausible claims to be the birthplace of the British turf. It was one William Lester, who about 1600, "being mayor of Chester, did cause three silver bells to be made of good value to be run for upon the Roode Dee." This seems the earliest definite establishment of a horse race. From the nature of the prize was derived the proverb "To bear the bell," though the bells in this case existed long before the "ring." Our ancestors being more easily satisfied in the matter of amusement than their degenerate descendants, there was apparently only one contest. The "Chester cup," which has been substituted for the "best bell," is now worth £2,500, to say nothing of Cheshire cheeses for the three placed horses.—Westminster Gazette.

Had a Mere Trifle.

A doctor calling on a patient who had been very ill, but was now convalescent, said to the latter's wife:

"You must be careful in regard to his diet for a few days."

"Yes, I know that," was the reply. "He has just had his dinner, and I didn't give him anything but a cup of coffee and two or three warm biscuits and a piece of pie and a couple of doughnuts and one slice of bread with gooseberry preserves on it. I have just been telling him he couldn't have anything very substantial right away until his stummick was stiddier."—New York Tribune.

Pretty Much Alone.

In a rather rabid discussion in parliament a member of doubtful ability and power twitted Disraeli for having deserted his camp.

"I did not know that the honorable gentleman had a camp," Disraeli replied in a tone of mock surprise. "I have always looked upon him as the solitary sentinel of a deserted fortress."

No Chance For Leniency.

"Can't you be merciful and love me a little?" he pleaded as they sat in their steamer chairs.

"I can't show you any mercy at all," she whispered. "This isn't the quarter-deck."—St. Louis Star.

The Skeptic.

"Pa, what does 'skeptical' mean?"

"Well—er—did you ever see a man taking in the washing for fear of rain in spite of the weather prediction 'fair'?"—Buffalo Express.

Ought to Cheer Him.

Figg—What's the matter, old man? You're looking wretched. Fogg—I'm not myself at all today. Figg—Oh, come; that's nothing to feel wretched about.—Exchange.

To facilitate the seating of patrons of moving picture theatres where there are no reserved seats without the use of ushers, a New York man has patented a system whereby an incandescent lamp remains lighted on the back of each seat as long as it remains unoccupied.

THE HOBBLE SKIRT.

Model of the Tied In Species That Is Not Extreme.

Ecru satin foulard scattered with cinnamon brown rings is the color scheme of this pretty gown. The tied in band on the skirt is piped top and bottom with brown velvet, and at one side of the skirt there is a slot seam strapped across with simulated buttonholes of brown velvet and velvet buttons.

A real work of art in the guise of an old ivory button of goodly dimensions fastens the cross over bodice just above the waist line. The shoulder emplecement is of oriental embroidery, which at the back of the waist forms a shallow sailor collar. The girdle coming from the side seams is of the velvet.

Awfully Busy.

The words are in everybody's mouth; it is the great American catch phrase, says Table Talk. It is the excuse for all shortcomings, the reason for every mishap. On the whole, nobody seems to regret being awfully busy; it is a matter of satisfaction to be in the fashion. To have a day of leisure, or even an hour to oneself, would argue that one was not at all in the swim. So there are many who multiply engagements foolishly with the mistaken idea that it is keeping up with the times to be awfully busy. With not a few it amounts almost to a disease to be always occupied, and the disease finally develops into nervous prostration. It is a pity that we cannot learn something from the ways of nature, which is never in a hurry. There is an old proverb which we would do well to write upon our walls, "Make haste slowly." Here and there we find some one living up to that standard, and we feel at once the restfulness of such a character. The calm, well poised person who accomplishes great things and who can be permanently relied upon does very little talking. The world's real workers never complain of being "awfully busy."

Fascinating Motor Bonnets.

Perhaps the most sensible of the motor bonnets of the season is the collapsible model usually made of pongee either in natural or some becoming hue of the same material. But any kind of soft silk is suitable for such a bonnet. The charming little affair pictured is of natural colored pongee, and the ruching in front is of ecru chiffon cloth, and this most substantial material is flattering to the face.

A COLLAPSIBLE MODEL.

The strings are of pongee and tie in a big bow either in front of the chin or at the side.

A Possible Handicap.

The critics however, neglect to say how thousands of all nationalties and classes eagerly go to the uttermost parts of the earth at my bidding. I have never taken a dollar from the Salvation Army funds for my own personal support since its commencement, and have never gone out in loaned or hired motors except when visiting poor lost people.

Hides Cigarettes In Trousers Legs.

JOHN MORGAN, EMPLOYED IN FACTORY, SHEDS THOUSANDS OF THEM IN POLICE STATION.

It was the lack of gold tips and monograms on some thousand cigarettes concealed about the person of John Morgan, of No. 427 East Seventy-second street, that brought him to the attention of the police of New York.

When he was searched at the East Sixty-Seventh street station about two hundred cigarettes had been brought to light, when he yawned and said that really this was too much fuss.

"Roll up my trouser legs and untie two drawing strings that you will find just under the knees," he said

Following his advice the strings were traced and undone and the patter of falling cigarettes dulled all other sounds in the station for some minutes. Morgan had to step away three or four times to keep the cigarettes from burying him alive.

Morgan had been working in a cigarette factory. A private investigator there had caused his arrest.

S. A. OFFICIAL WILL HELP THEM START AFRESH — SERVICES AT CITADEL.

Lieut.-Col. Pannire and Staff-Capt Sims, who have charge of the Salvation Army Social and Prison Work for the Dominion, visited the penitentiary yesterday with Adj. Smith and interviewed a number of men who expected to be discharged shortly. Many of these men being without friends and not knowing where to obtain work, were glad to accept the Colonel's offer to help them obtain employment and encourage them to start life afresh. The Colonel said yesterday that the army had helped 600 men this past year to get permanent situations and they gave every promise making an honest livelihood.

The Colonel and Staff-Capt. Sims conducted a service in the S. A. Citadel at night. A large crowd was present and enjoyed the Colonel's singing and address. The friends and comrades were also glad to see Staff-Capt. Sims looking so well, as when he left here he was broken down in health. Brigadier Hargrave from Montreal, will conduct the services at the Citadel on Sunday next On Monday he will conduct the wedding of one of the local bandsmen —Kingston Standard.

How Some Criminals Evade Detectives.

Fugitive criminals adopt strange devices to avoid being brought to justice Perhaps the most popular method in the case of desperate rogues is to get locked up for some trivial offence. It is well known that the jails are among the last places to be searched by the police for a malefactor who is wanted.

The records of the courts, says the London Globe, teem with such cases. A man who is being hunted by the police for some serious crime will throw a brick through a window or pretend to be drunk and assault a constable merely in order just to secure a temporary sentence of about fourteen days' imprisonment, at the expiration of which period the tension has been relieved to a considerable extent and the vigilance of the police relaxed.

Another ingenuous scheme which has been practiced with success more than once is for the fugitive to don the shabbiest clothes he can obtain and take casual work as a sandwich man. In this capacity, aided by an unkempt beard and a bandaged eye, which acts as a "blind" in more senses than one, arrest has been avoided for weeks.

The notorious Charles Pearce was a master of the art of disguise and numerous stories are told of how he would repeatedly accost policemen and inquire whether they had yet "got on the track of that villan Pearce." The most striking instance of vanished men coming again to light to take part in legal proceedings, is that which occurred in a case where Daniel O'Connell was defending a man indicted for murder.

The case for the prosecution seemed as clear as possible and O'Connell contented himself with fewer questions than were to have been expected of so eminent a cross-examiner. When the case for the Crown had closed he announced that he had but one witness to call, but that witness was important to the case. He was the murdered man, very much alive.

There was no doubting the man's identity; everybody knew him. The judge therefore turned to the jury and directed them to acquit the prisoner. To his amazement, however, they returned a verdict of guilty. Asked for an explanation the foreman observed that they had no doubt that the prisoner was innocent of the murder; "but", he added, "we find him guilty of steating my ould gray mare three weeks ago."

In France a man may be tried and sentenced to death by the assize court in his absence, the most recent instance being the uncaptured assailant of Dr. Herbert. This process could be carried out in this country by proceedings in outlawry, which, although no case has occurred since 1855, still remains as part of the criminal law and is regulated by the crown office rules of 1895.

Outlawry is defined as a punishment inflicted upon a defendant, whether a peer or a commoner, for his contempt in not rendering himself amenable to justice, and a judgment of outlawry in case of treason or felony not only operates as a conviction and subjects the defendant to the prescribed punishment, but in addition the outlaw forfeits to the Crown his goods and chattels and all the profits of his real estate.

The Berlin police possess apparatus for the detection of criminals far superior to that at the disposal of our Scotland Yard authorities, which explains a recent statement of the Prussian home minister that out of 118 capital crimes reported to the Berlin police since 1899 only 8 had remained undetected, "whereas in London, according to the latest statistics the proportion of such crimes of which the perpetrators had remained undiscovered was twenty-three and a half per cent.

Investigations by the German police authorities are greatly facilitated by the "identity papers" which every man and woman in Prussia must carry about with them; and above all, the system of registration at hotels, lodging-houses, etc., communicated to the police.

The French military authorities in Africa are bending every effort to increase the number of a species of camel which can travel more than twice as swiftly as the ordinary camel of commerce

ASSAULT ON SMALL BOY.

George Hart, a low character well known about the lower portion of the town, was accused in the police court this morning with a most serious offence. The accused, it appears, was caught in a field known as Bunter Hill, near George and Dundas street by a man named Thos. Van Whart in a position that would justify a charge of criminal assault against the man Hart, who is 40 years of age The court was cleared for the case as the evidence was of a most disgusting nature. Van Whart meted out a most deserving beating to Hart, when he discovered him, of which he shows evidence.

Magistrate Masson in passing sentence told Hart that he had been guilty of a grossly indecent act.

He was sentenced to three years in the Kingston penitentiary.

TALE OF A SHIRT.

James Bargman charged D. Solomon, under Criminal Code Section 539, with selling him a cut shirt, the value of which was 25 cents. P. J. M Anderson appeared for the Crown Wm. Carnew for Mr. Bargman and W. S. Morden for Mr. Solomon. After much evidence and the exhibition of a cut shirt, the case was settled by Solomon paying costs and the price of the shirt.

George Nelson, fireman of the second train, probably fatally scalded.
Burt Mitchell, engineer of the forward train; crushed; may die.

Durand, Mich., Aug. 26.—Superintendent Sharke of the Grand Trunk Railway gave out a statement last night that six passengers were killed, five were injured and eight escaped without injury from the telescoped Pullman car in the Grand Trunk rear-end collision, three miles east of here, late Wednesday night, when the Pullman car Nebraska, in eastbound train No. 14, was demolished and set on fire by the locomotive passenger train No. 4.

The forward section of No. 14 had stopped because of an accident to the airbrakes and Engineer Mitchell had crawled under his engine to locate the trouble, and was still there when the crash came.

The locomotive of the section following, No. 2, plowed half way through the sleeper Nebraska, and the locomotive's firebox set fire to the car.

The passengers in the rear berths had not the slightest chance to escape and those not killed by the crashing timbers as the locomotive forged through the sleeper were burned to death in the fire that followed.

The cause of the wreck is veiled in mystery and an inquest will be held by Coroner Patchell. The State Railway Commission will also likely conduct an enquiry, as it is stated that former strikebreakers figured largely in the crews of both trains.

"If the Grand Trunk had been a little more prompt in fulfilling its promises to its former employes the wreck would probably not have occurred," said R. M. Branton, president of one of the brotherhoods of railroad trainmen locals. "The crew of the wrecked passenger train was evidently inexperienced."

Passengers who escaped the wreck at Durand, Mich., reached Toronto at noon yesterday, and gave vivid accounts of the catastrophe.

D. F. Gillespie, of Elgin, Ill., was in the telescoped car, about the middle. He was nearly burned in the debris, and nearly suffocated by steam, gas and heat. Breaking through a window he escaped with a few clothes. Ten were killed in the car.

Wm. Johnston of Edmonton, on his way to visit his brothers at Islington, says the collision came immediately after the torpedoes exploded, while F. J. Crofton said the wreck occurred 20 minutes after the train had been stalled. He was in a day coach, and was knocked out for a while.

"The engineer of our train was under his engine when the crash came. He was pulled out from the centre of the first coach, so far had the crash pushed the train. His scalp was completely torn off," said one of the Pullman porters.

According to Miss Kate Moxley of Auburn, N.Y., who was in the coach next to the one wrecked, the collision was not very violent, for she imagined that another car was being coupled on.

"Presently a man came into the car and told us we were quite safe, but we had better get dressed and get out on the track as the car behind was on fire," said Miss Moxley.

"The most singular thing about the whole affair was that not a groan was heard, everything was as quiet as if nothing had happened, there were no agonizing groans heard at all.

"The hero of the hour appeared to me to be a man who got off the train at West Toronto. He was in the ill-fated car and escaped in his pyjamas, but not waiting to dress, he ran into the wrecked car and succeeded in saving three women. I think he is J. E. Dade of Little Forks, Minn."

"There was a nurse, a Miss Harriet Harby, the superintendent of St. Barnabas Hospital, Indiana, who deserved great credit, too. She at once went to work with the wounded engineer and fireman. The latter was so badly injured about the head that his brain was visible, and Miss Harby was most courageous and useful.

"There were no groans heard at all after the first few minutes."

Dr. C. S. Dunham of Frankville, Ont., was another of the passengers on the train.

Arthur B. Watts, who is reported to have had his face and hands burned, is editor of The Edmonton Daily Capital and Saturday News, and was formerly editor of The Woodstock Sentinel-Review. He is a son of the late Sheriff Watt of Brantford, and is a graduate of Toronto University.

R. F. Park, secretary of the Toronto Electric Light Co., was one of the passengers on No. 14, and while he escaped injury, he received a severe shock to his nerves.

Company's Statement.

Montreal, Aug. 26.—An official statement regarding the accident at Durand, Mich., Wednesday night, says:

As a result of preliminary investigation, it is shown that the flagman went back a little over half a mile and gave proper signals to stop the New York train. It was a clear night, and the lights and switch lights in and round the station at Durand could be seen plainly from where the Montreal train stood. The flagman gave stop signals with his red lamp continuously until the New York train exploded the torpedo which he had put on the track, and the flagman had to get off the track to keep from being run over.

Further investigation is being made as to why the New York train did not respond to the signals. The markers on the rear of the Montreal train were properly displayed, and after the accident occurred the one on the left-hand side was found on the ground sitting upright and the light still burning brightly.

The conductor, who was standing at the rear of the Montreal train heard the torpedo explode and saw his flagman giving the stop signals. There were also passengers on the Montreal train who were standing on the ground and heard the torpedo explode and saw the stop signals given.

Designed to withstand earthquakes, the foundations of Mexico's $6,000,000 national theatre, building at Mexico City, have shown themselves proof against several severe shocks.

DELEGATES ELECTED.

Methodists Conferences Name Representatives to Wesleyan Conference.

Victoria, B.C., Aug. 26.—The superannuation committee of the Methodist Conference yesterday morning sustained the constitution of the church, in that widows of ministers must remain members of the church in Canada. The conference endorsed the proposition of an endowment fund for superannuation.

Rev. F. C. Stephenson was elected mission secretary and Rev. J. Woodworth senior superintendent of missions.

A telegram from Prince Rupert was read, saying that Premier Laurier had declined a Sunday outing in order to keep the laws and to give proper example.

The election of fraternal delegates to British Wesleyan, Irish Wesleyan and other British Methodist churches resulted in Rev. Dr. Burwash of Victoria College and N. W. Rowell, K.C., being chosen, while the delegates to the M. E. Church of the United States are W. H. Heartz and James Aikins, K.C., of Winnipeg.

The commission on conference boundaries had a skirmish at the Methodist General Conference over the recommendation to disband the Bay of Quinte Conference and form another, including a part of the City of Toronto, to be called the Toronto East Conference. The Toronto men protested against this decision, and other delegates sympathized, as they thought the Bay of Quinte district was too circumscribed in its run of good circuits.

Several changes are to take place in the superannuation fund constitution, and some new provisions are that no minister's widow will have to receive an annuity of less than $125, and that a superannuated minister will receive an annuity for life.

Yesterday afternoon specific restrictions in the church discipline were swept away and in their place a general admonition as to good conduct consistent with Christian life was substituted. This ends the famous footnote controversy.

Rev. Dr. J. S. C. Speer of Toronto made an amendment, seconded by Rev. Dr. Hincks, that it should not be assumed that the rules were set forth as a legal enactment to bind the people of the church in bondage, but as a guidance to spiritual life. Rev. J. Pitcher of Gananoque, Ont., also made amendment, holding the rules themselves were sufficient, and the footnote unnecessary. He was supported in this by Rev. G. W. Henderson of Peterboro, Ont.

Niagara Falls Mystery.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 26.—Deep mystery attaches to the receipt of a telegram dated from Niagara Falls, N.Y., relating to the disappearance of Harry Campbell, 17, and Bernard Beach, 18, two country lads from Kalida, Ohio. Raymond Campbell and Charles Beach are here from the Ohio village conducting a search for the missing boys. The boys arrived at the Falls on Tuesday morning on an excursion, intending to stay a few days on the Canadian side, they said, before leaving for home. On Wednesday a telegram to Campbell's father, who is seriously ill, read: "Come quick. Harry." The message caused alarm in the Campbell home and two searchers were sent here to make inquiries. None of the Falls telegraph offices can trace the telegram. The police on both sides never heard anything of the missings boys. The two lads apparently dropped out of existence as completely as though the earth had suddenly swallowed them.

Hardy Under Arrest.

Toronto, Aug. 27.—Charles Hardy, alias "Cockney Charlie," wanted since May for the murder of Thomas Horder, proprietor of the Saranac Hotel, Queen and Soho streets, was arrested yesterday at Fort Frances, Ont. Detective Sockett will bring him back.

Horder was struck by this man on the night of May 17 last and died a week later of a fractured skull.

Though the earth is adding 100 tons of extraneous matter, such as meteoric particles and cosmic dust, a day, it will take 1,000,000,000 years for it to accumulate a layer an inch thick all over.

GOOD OLD SUMMER TIME.

The Fly Trap In Its Latest Guise.

A FLY DESTROYER.

Scientists have told us such terrifying stories about the destruction to life conveyed to us by the bite of the housefly that the average housewife is making more than the usual effort to rid her house of these annoying pests.

Fly paper was never a satisfactory means of catching the wily fly. It was much more likely to catch a human victim. This season we have a new trap, which is said to be far and away better than any other invention of the kind. The illustration shows one of these devices. It is made of tin and is five and a half inches high. The lower portion is perforated into twenty-five corrugations for the flies to travel up to the upper chamber. The top of the upper portion is perforated, admitting light and keeping the flies there. The trap by means of the bail is suspended anywhere that the pests are apt to congregate. Bait must be placed inside the trap. To empty the trap all there is to do is to hold it under the hot water faucet and turn on the water. The deceased can then be readily removed by pulling the trap apart and emptying and again made ready for use.—Hardware Magazine.

The Underfed Stomach.

If the stomach is in a healthy condition and able to digest food that condition will be indicated by a sense of hunger. If the system is in a disordered state, as is that of a person suffering from fever, no food is relished, and the patient does not care whether he eats or not. In such a case it is the duty of the nurse to insist on the patient's taking food the same as he would medicine, once in so many hours. Dyspeptics often literally starve themselves because their stomach suffers when they take food, and they take less and less until by and by the stomach loses all desire for food and almost loses its ability to digest it.

The only way to cure such a person is to train the stomach into a state of activity. The stomach needs to have a healthy stretching with a good big meal and to have some hard work to do.

There are a good many patients whose stomachs are not really feeble, but they need to be stretched by hearty meals. Once in awhile a good square meal is prescribed for a patient who complains that he does not want to eat anything.

There is an instance of a woman patient whose stomach had been pampered until it finally became so feeble and inactive that it would not act upon or even hold any food that was put into it. She was finally restricted to nothing but oatmeal gruel, but her stomach would not even digest that. The doctor then said, "The best thing for you to do is to eat what you please." So she ordered a good meal, and she ate everything she wanted. Her stomach disposed of the meal without a particle of trouble, all the vomiting and discomfort ceased, and from that time she began to gain in health.

The time sometimes comes in the treatment of cases which have been dieted so carefully that a change to an ordinary wholesome dietary becomes not only proper but necessary for recovery.

Novel Porch Pillows.

A set of porch pillows of unusual interest is worked in old English mottoes in quaint old English lettering.

The pillows are made of unbleached linen, oblong in shape, and contain such mottoes as "Sitte and Reste Awhyle," "Faire Idlenessee," "Comforte is Goode."

The letters are worked in flat satin stitch outlined with black or can be darned in. Several tones of old blue Chinese green or shades of yellow are effective, or the coloring of old missals can be copied, with the capital letters in a different color from the small ones.

These pillows are usually finished with a heavy cotton cord the shade of the linen, but they sometimes have a narrow conventional border darned in around the edge to form a frame. The same colorings are used as in the mottoes.

Any one with a knack of lettering will find it easy to work motto pillows for any room, as a guest room, den or library. Ecru linens, dull green linen taffeta or silk or linen moire effects form good backgrounds, though the crash is better suited to the work than costlier materials.

Although the fisheries yield more than 1,205,000,000 pounds of sea food annually the demand exceeds the supply to such an extent that more than 400,000,000 pounds are imported each year.

Milady's Mirror

"It takes care and thought," said a pretty matron archly. "The boys and their father watch my weight, and if I threaten to grow a trifle stout there is uneasiness, and I am advised anxiously not to take chocolate or too much dessert, and there is great relief in the family when I return to my original thinness. It sounds absurd, but when a mere little woman keeps the house happy with a few gowns and nice ways I call it cheap at the pains. Don't tell any one for the world, but the boy"—that is the way she alludes to her son and heir—"has a half mile course laid out down at our place in the country, and nothing pleases him better than to get me out there back of the evergreens for a run with him on a bright morning. You can run your flesh off quicker than you can get rid of it any other way, and it leaves you feeling as if you could set the bay on fire."

"That's the way a woman ought to feel," said an older woman, whose deep blue gown set off a face of rose red and white and brilliant keen gray eyes made the glance wander after her. "When I was out in the country people used to wonder at me, and they said, 'She goes about like a young girl.' I asked, 'How should I go about?' I felt light and perfectly easy in motion, while their women went about staid, moping, artificial, because they thought they must do so. I got in and out of a carriage without help, while one of their women had to have three men come to offer a hand, and then she fell out with a puff as if she were going to pieces. When a woman has large lungs, as we have, she is lighter and gets around easier, just as birds do with the air cells in their bones, or they are wadded with flesh about the hips and chest with poking about their housekeeping and breathing fumes of so much cookery and sitting around and moving slowly when they go about afterward."

One Way to Shampoo.

A specialist who has had success with treating falling hair has novel ideas on shampoos that are easily adopted by the girl who washes her own hair.

Make a strong lather of soapsuds by putting a cake of pure white soap in a pitcher that holds a couple of quarts. Pour a pint of boiling water over the soap and shake until a thick lather is formed, when the soap is removed.

Let the mixture cool to blood heat or so that it will not scald the skin and pour a little at a time over the scalp, rubbing it in with the tips of the fingers.

When scalp is well cleansed pour the rest of hot mixture over the long hair, washing it gently down from the roots toward the ends.

Rinse with warm water, using a bath spray, and keep it up until no soapsuds remain either on scalp or long hair. Part hair and spray scalp, especially at sides of head and at nape of neck.

Have several smooth towels made very hot and dry the hair with them. When nearly finished separate hair into strands, thread with fingers or comb to remove tangles, then draw fingers from scalp to ends of hair until it is dry, soft and fluffy.

This specialist does not believe in cold water rinsing, which most hairdressers feel will prevent cold. The hot water gives more of a gloss and prevents harshness. She also avoids combing the hair when wet or pulling it when drying.

Use Much Cold Cream.

After exposure to the sun do not bathe the face at once. Rub in a soothing cold cream, letting it remain at least half an hour. Wash off with water as hot as can be endured. Before going to bed that night rub in more cold cream, letting it stay in until morning, when it may be washed off with soapsuds and dashed with cold water or lumps of ice to close the pores.

Where it is impossible to use grease on first returning home wipe off soil and grime with alcohol and rosewater, one part of former to three of latter, then apply cloths wrung from very hot water to allay the burn.

Where sunburn has a poisonous effect, producing blisters or ugly sores, extra care must be taken for protection. Before going on any long expedition on land or water rub glycerin into the face, then powder thickly with magnesia, or use a skin food and talcum powder.

Eyes Indication of Health.

Since good health and spirits are manifested by the clearness and alertness of the eyes, so every derangement of the bodily functions leaves its impress upon them. Unconsciously, when vexed or tired even, one frowns, and soon the habit is produced, and ugly furrows appear, marring the beauty of the brow. To remove these lines stretch the skin smoothly between the thumb and forefinger of the left hand and vigorously rub a bit of skin food in a direction opposite to that in which they are formed.

A refrigerating dish for dining tables invented by an Ohioan has a hollow lid, sufficiently large to hold two handfuls of broken ice.

SUFFERED THREE YEARS

Till Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cured his Kidney Trouble

There are few diseases that cause more acute suffering than Kidney Trouble, and Mr. F. A. Thomas, of Sudbury Ont., is one of those who know it. He writes: "For over three years I suffered from kidney disease. First I thought I had sprained my back, for suddenly the pain would catch the small of my back and it would be impossible for me to straighten myself up for several minutes. A dull ache across the kidneys was always present, my urine was thick and cloudy, and passing it caused a burning, scalding pain. Tried medicines, but they failed. I was advised to try Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, as they had cured my wife years before. A few boxes affected a complete cure. I now enjoy the blessings of good health, which is due to this remedy."

Don't neglect kidney trouble—it's too dangerous as well as too painful. That old, reliable family remedy, Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, has cured thousands and will cure you. It is equally effective in curing constipation and its attendant evils, biliousness, indigestion and sick headaches, and in purifing the blood. 25c a box at your druggist's. 10

Great Crowds Gather at Liverpool to See Dr. Crippen, Ethel Leneve and Queen's Own

(Intelligencer Special.)

Liverpool, Eng., August 27 – Crowds began arriving here this morning as early as four o'clock awaiting the arrival of noon of the steamer Megantic, with Crippen and Ethel Leneve and the Queen's Own aboard Crowds grew so dense and unruly that they were driven back and barricades erected to prevent interference with bringing prisoners ashore..

Crippen and Miss Leneve will have a preliminary hearing before Judge Sir Albert De Rutzel in Bow street police court at the earliest possible date. They will be arraigned together but, if it is decided, as seems likely not, to prosecute girl, she will be held as witness.

It is practically certain that Crippen will be bound over to the Central Criminal Court, known as "Old Bailey." The trial is hardly likely to begin before the latter part of October. The charge, in the light of informaion now at hand, is likely to be murder, manslaughter, allegally performing operation, cutting, mutilation or maliciously wounding, or combination of several of these.

The Megantic got here shortly after noon to-day.

Both are said to be saturated with Republicanism. If voting is fair the Republicans say they will wir Aviator's Narrow Escape From Death.

(Intelligencer Special)

New York, August 27 — Carried out to sea by strong winds, against which his motor was powerless, J. C Budy Mars' aviator, was being swept toward Sandy Hook early to-day when his Curtiss biplane suddenly collapsed. It dropped like a stone into the water about three hundred yards from the club house of the Atlantic Yact Club at Sea Gate. Mar got free of the machine in its descent, and was soon picked up, apparently uninjured, by the tugboat "Hustler," of the Merrit-Chapman Company.

The wrecked aeroplane was taken on board the Lighter. Mars had intended to fly to Fort Wadsworth and then to Fort Hamilton. "Had I fallen on earth, I'd been badly smashed up," says Mars.

The Feet and Success.

The condition of the feet has a direct influence over one's success in life. Pain and discomfort make one irritable, and people are apt to attribute the irritability to a naturally bad temper. Moreover, pain and discomfort distract one's attention from business, be this social or commercial. On every account it is of great importance to have the feet as easy as possible. These remarks are merely passing touches of a subject whose full treatment would fill a volume. And in regard to considering ways and means you must be equally concise. One rule is to have the feet sufficiently warm and pleasantly cool. Another is to keep the feet dry, not merely on account of possible chills, but because moisture tends to make soft corns and to so soften the skin that friction may cause tenderness. Footgear, including socks and their substitutes, should be neither tight nor loose, but should fit easily. Tight boots cause pain by pressure. Loose boots occasion blisters and corns by friction. The uppers must be soft and pliable to accommodate themselves to the altered shape of the feet when standing, sitting, etc. The soles should be pliable. When they are stiff the feet are either lifted off the ground without the foot soles being bent, which is tiring and makes the walk hideous, or the feet are wearied by the effort at each step to bend the boot soles.

What's What In Hairdressing.

The matter of hairdressing this summer, says an authority, as regards the big shade hat or the motor hat resolves itself into the simple proposition of trimming the face. The woman who is able to trim her face with best results will have achieved the greatest triumph in hairdressing. As for the top of the head, it doesn't show much, and a simple bun surrounded with an appropriate design in puffs or coils or braids will do.

Hairdressing for the hat is divided into three parts—the utility part, when the hair is fastened where it ought to be so that there is something to build upon; the artistic part, which is after the hat is put on and the hair is draped to meet the knot at the back of the head and secured firmly, and the gay or picturesque part, when the little pin curls are tucked in and the final fancy pins are fixed in place.

Hairdressing as it should be done takes time. You do it slowly and you take infinite pains with it, but when once it is done it is done for all day. You don't have to keep repairing it.

To Prevent Tartar.

Tartar being an enemy to sound teeth and healthy gums, care should be taken to prevent tartar from forming. Use frequently a solution of tincture of myrrh, enough in a glassful to make it milky in color. The mouth should be carefully rinsed with an antiseptic wash immediately upon arising and before going to sleep. A good wash is made by adding one or two teaspoonfuls of listerine to a glassful of tepid water, but this must not be used too constantly. Another good mouth wash is thymol, seven and a half grains; borax, fifteen grains; distilled water, one pint.

Brewer Bartels Dead.

Syracuse, N.Y., Aug. 27.—Word was received here yesterday of the death of Herman Bartels, of this city at Saratoga. Mr. Bartels was 57 years old. Two months ago he was hurt in a trolley wreck.

Mr. Bartels was a brewer and amassed a fortune which was lost in litigation. He was indicted at Auburn for arson in the third degree on the charge that he had induced men to fire the Lake Shore malt house. He was convicted and on May 2, 1905, when he was to appear for sentence, jumped his bail bond and came to Canada. He was extradited and on July 4, 1907, he eluded the officers who had him in custody, while his case was being argued at Osgoode Hall. A week later his hiding place was a Mutual street boarding-house, was revealed to the police, and he was returned to the States, where he served a year in prison.

To Investigate Youth's Death.

Brantford, Aug. 27.—The county authorities will open an investigation into the death of Ernest Savage, who succumbed to injuries sustained in a recent football game between Harley and Hatchley. Three residents of Hatchley yesterday signed a statement in which it was stated that Savage, Robinson and Curtis, Hatchley players, all received injuries from the same player on the Harley team, who did not check legitimately. The player in question, the statement says, charged Savage in the abdomen with the left knee, after knicking the ball with the right. Savage's only antemortem statement was "I played fair." Thee game was under the auspices of the Harley Anglican Church at a "harvest home."

Searched All Cabins.

New York, Aug. 27.—A customs innovation was put into effect late on Thursday night when the big Cunarder Mauretania docked. Every first cabin state-room on the vessel was searched by custom inspectors.

The customs officials contend that some passengers deliberately leave small luggage and articles of value in their staterooms and give orders to the stewards to send them ashore.

Lord Northcliffe, Ex-Mayor Seth Low, Maude Adams, Paul Morton, and Kyrie Bellew were among the arrivals.

The former operates between St. John and Digby, and Yarmouth and Boston by boat, and between Yarmouth, Digby and Halifax by rail. The change, which will take place Sept. 1, will give the Dominion Express entry to Boston.

THREE MORE DEAD?

Women on Their Way From Chicago May Have Perished.

Bones Believed to Be Those of Two More Persons Are Found In a Bag at the Morgue In Durand—Toronto Woman Says Miss Bella Scott of Schomberg Is One of Those Who Were Not Accounted For.

Durand, Mich., Aug. 27.—To add to the difficulty of identification of the charred bones of the victims of Wednesday night's Grand Trunk wreck near here bones said to represent two additional bodies were found in the morgue last night in a sack that had been overlooked in Thursday's excitement. This brings the number of dead to eight.

Repeated enquiries from relatives to passengers thought to have been on the ill-fated Pullman sleeper Nebraska, led Dr. Fair, surgeon for the Grand Trunk, to remark to Undertaker Mapes in charge of the dead, that there must have been more bodies in the wreck than were recovered. This recalled to Mapes' mind a sack that some one unknown to him had brought to the morgue Thursday morning.

H. I. Jeffers of Washington last night almost positively identified as his wife the body that was yesterday identified as Mrs. Lewis Squires of Chicago.

Those believed to be missing are:
Miss Bella Scott, Schomberg, Ont.
Mrs. H. J. Jeffers, of Washington, D.C.
Miss Jogeman, Chicago.

Toronto, Aug. 27.—That the last of the victims of the Grand Trunk Railway wreck at Durand, Mich., includes three women, who were en route to Toronto, and who have not been heard from since the catastrophe, is now certain, the fears of relatives of yesterday being confirmed last night, when the remains of two more persons were found in the wreckage.

There is no doubt in the opinion of Mrs. Wm. Lowrie, 236 Seaton street, that Miss Bella Scott, school teacher of Schomberg, perished. Miss Scott was to have visited the Seaton street house Thursday, according to letters received from her by Mrs. Lowrie, who has been an intimate friend of the young woman for many years.

Several telegrams have come to Mrs. Lowrie from Miss Scott's brother, J. C. Scott, solicitor for the Rock Island Road, Chicago, asking if she had arrived in Toronto. Miss Scott, with her brother and his wife, had just returned from a visit to another brother, George, in Vancouver, who wired Mrs. Lowrie last night asking if his sister had reached Toronto.

Mrs. Jeffers was expected at 19 Ross street yesterday. It was reported from Durand that a charred body previously identified as that of Mrs. Squires, widow, of Chicago, had been found to have a woollen bag with an inscription attached to some clothing reading Mrs. Jeffers, Fort Worth, Ark., and Washington, D.C., and containing $10. The body is now held for further identification, which the two sisters of Mrs. Squires, from Chicago, may be asked to give.

George Jogeman, 1,906 West Fulton street, Chicago, is at Durand searching for trace of his daughter Lera, aged 22, who was on her way to Toronto to work as a demonstrator at the exhibition. She has not been heard from.

Three Railway Accidents.

North Bay, Aug. 27.—John Penny, aged 21, C.P.R. yard switchman, was instantly killed Thursday night by stepping from a switch engine directly in front of an incoming express. The severe wind storm prevented him from hearing the approaching train. He had been employed by the railway only ten days, and leaves a widowed mother.

Harry Miller, a young C.P.R. brakeman, fell from an eastbound express Thursday night near Pembroke during the wind storm and has a fractured leg and broken nose.

The C.P.R. Imperial Limited, eastbound, was ditched near Cartier early yesterday morning by a misplaced switch, and delayed six hours. Passengers received a severe shaking up.

Favors I.C.R. Extension.

Ottawa, Aug. 27—"I have always been in favor of the extension of the Intercolonial Railway system through Ontario," stated Mr. E. Tiffin, traffic superintendent of the Intercolonial board of management, who is here to-day.

"What route would be taken from Montreal?" he was asked.

"Paralleling the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific," stated Mr. Tiffin. "It is the through traffic particularly that we would be after."

Crushed Under Engine.

Brampton, Aug. 27.—A young man named Joseph Breadner, son of Mr. Isaac Breadner, a farmer living near Brampton, was instantly killed on Thursday night. Breadner was a thresher and was moving his machinery about midnight. The engine stopped and in getting it going he slipped under the wheels.

Fell Over River Bank.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Aug. 27.—After falling over the river bank, a distance of nearly a hundred feet, John Kelly, a marine engineer of Halifax, was picked up on the lower bank without a bone broken. He was badly shaken up and may be suffering from internal injuries. Kelly is on his vacation.

CURRENT EVENTS.

With a citizen who shoots himself so that his wife "can wed a better man," and a woman smuggler who sobbingly confesses she lied to the customs officials, none can doubt the general world improvement. — N. Y Telegram.

"How do you like your hobble skirt? Oh! I can't kick." Or have the Belleville ladies been hobbled as yet with this new skirt?

The British government is now said to be planning battleships which shall be driven by motors and have no smokestacks, rendering the Dreadnought type absolete. Hasten the day when the arbitration principle will render all warships obselete!—Buffalo Express.

An automobilist who killed a girl and ran away in New York was pursued and captured by another chauffeur. There is very little sympathy for the careless and cowardly in the automobile world.

Gentlemen' Beg In Fifth Avenue, Make $10 a Day.

Fashionably Dressed Men Stroll Through Thoroughfares, Making Dollar "Touches."

SOME GET AS HIGH AS $25 IN ONE EVENING.

Operate From Central Park Plaza as Far Down as Twenty-Third Street.

"Gentlemen beggars" have made their appearance in Fifth avenue, New York. Dressed in the height of fashion, their clothes well pressed and assuming the air and poise of men of means, they pretend to have left their clubs without taking change with them and make a "touch" with the promise of returning the amount advanced. One of the beggars admitted that he has made an average of ten dollars a night at the game and that on some occasions he has received as much as $25 for one night's effort.

The "gentlemen beggars" who operate anywhere from the Central Park Plaza to Thirty-fourth street, and sometimes as far down as Twenty-third street, are hard to distinguish, which makes it all the more difficult for the policemen to corral them. On account of the boldness of the beggars in the avenue a "mendicant" policeman is now on duty trying to arrest them.

It is a custom with them, while swinging a cane and showing an air of feigned regret, to accost a pedestrian of seeming means with this salutation:

"Pardon me, sir, but I am in an embarrassing predicament, and I must ask your attention for a moment, if you please. I have had the misfortune to leave the club without taking the change from my afternoon suit and find myself without the requisite change to defray cab hire back to the club. I wish you would advance me a dollar or so and with your card. I'll return the amount by mail the moment I reach my room."

The polish of the beggar, his apparent sincerity and the fashionable cut and good quality of his clothes all contribute, in many cases, in convincing the victim that the beggar is a gentleman and invariably a dollar at the very least is advanced.

Must Wear Hats.

An English paper says:—The fashion which "came in" with the "summer" girl of a few years ago of discarding hats and challenging the freckling effect of the sun, is nearly over. But it lingers at some seaside places during holiday periods, and several clergymen have found it necessary to forbid entrance to their churches to women whose heads are uncovered.

Canon Willink, the vicar of Yarmouth, who refers in his parish magazine to the "hatless habit" as vulgar and unseemly, adds:

"I should like it to be very widely known that ladies desiring to visit the church are, of course, expected to remember what is due to God's house, and to wear a reasonable head dress. Strict orders have been given that women without any head dress are not for a single moment to be allowed to enter the church, any more than men would be allowed to enter without removing their hats. Handkerchiefs folded up and put on the head will not be regarded as sufficient.

Would You Enjoy Vigorous Old Age?

Then use Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. It brings health and strength to every one along life's pathway. It aids digestion, stimulates and enriches the blood, invigorates the brain, builds nerve tissue, tones up the heart, fortifies the system against disease germs, makes the old feel young and prolongs life.

Thousands of men and women who have reached the fourscore mark tell the same story about what Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has done toward renewing their youth and keeping them vigorous, hale and hearty and in possession of all their faculties.

Mr. A. H. Jordon, of Cuba, N.Y., has lived a strenuous life, but he is strong, vigorous and active at 84 years of age. Recently he wrote:

"I use Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey medicine for old people in their declining age. A few months ago there was published a little history of my early life as the oldest man now living in the town of Cuba, N. Y. I have lived a strenuous life, in earier days following the river on lumber to Pittsburg and Cincinnati and hunting all over the northern part of Pennsylvania."

If in need of advice, write Medical Department, The Duffy Malt Whiskey Company, Rochester, New York, stating your case fully. Our doctors will send you advice free, together with a valuable illustrated medical booklet containing rare common sense rules for health which you cannot afford to be without and some of the many thousands of gratifying letters from men and women in all walks of life, both old and young, who have been cured and benefited by the use of this great medicine and who continue to enjoy good health. Tons of Bibles.

DISTRIBUTED BY THE BRITISH AND FOREIGN BIBLE SOCIETY.

London, Aug. 26.—The 106th annual report of the British and Foreign Bible Society shows that its issue last year constituted a record. No fewer than 6,620,024 volumes were sent out—685,000 in excess of the previous year.

The marked increase in the issues during the past year is chiefly due to the advance of Christianity in the Far East. More than 1,500,000 copies of the Scriptures went out to China, and of these nearly 99 per cent. were sold, while 356,000 books were circulated in Korea and 305,000 in Japan. In India, including Burma and Ceylon, the circulation rose to 780,000.

From the Bible house in London 2,535 cases of Scriptures, weighing 293 tons, were shipped abroad during the year. But only about 28 per cent. of the total issues go out from London. The society's editions are produced and published, as far as possible, in the countries where they will be sold and read. Of the 844,000 Bibles circulated, more than half were English; and nineteen out of every twenty were the authorized version. Nearly three thousand volumes went out in embossed type for the blind.

The Gospels have been published in six new languages during the past year. St. Matthew has been published in Ongom, the speech of a powerful Bantu tribe inhabiting the basin of the Gabun River in French Congo. St. Matthew and St. John have been published in Mamau, the speech of 40,000 cannibals on the south coast of British New Guinea. For two tribes in New Caledonia, St. Mark and St. John are printed in Houailou and St. Mark in Ponerihouen.

For the Solomon Islands St. Matthew has been printed in Eiu, a dialect spoken on the Island of Mwala, while St. Luke has been issued in aga, spoken on Whitsuntide Island, in the New Hebrides. For the subjects of the Emperor Menelik, a complete New Testament has at last been published in Tigrinya, a Semetic language spoken by 3,000,000 people in the Tigre Province of Abyssinia.

In Braille type for the blind, new books of the Bible were completed last year in Welsh, Spanish, Italian, Gujarati and two Chinese dialects. The re-issue of the English Bible in revised Braille has now been completed. Since its foundation in 1804 the society has issued over 222,000,000 copies of the Scriptures.

The colporteurs (the society's distributing agents) meet with adventures, sometimes amusing, sometimes the reverse. A year ago an Austrian representative of the society was arrested on suspicion of being a spy in the service of Russia and of having sold to Russia plans of the fortress at Cracow! His book chests were searched, and though nothing suspicious could be found, he was imprisoned for eleven days until the real spy was apprehended.

A curious narrative, under the striking heading of "Catching Souls with a Looking Glass," is related by the Rev. J. H. Vomel, of Hongkong. The people, he says, in their ignorance of western engineering methods, consider it impossible to get a pier fixed without a human body. Accordingly, when a foreign engineer, taking levels with his theodolite, directed his instrument towards a woman working in the fields, she returned to her village with the news.

"Whether from fright or from fever," says the narrator, "she died said. "Assuredly she has been caught to 'embrace' a support for the new bridge." Fear fell upon all who heard the story, for it is a firm belief among the lower classes in China that human souls or spirits can be caught by means of a looking-glass.

"I offered a Bible to a gentleman, who replied that he wanted a remedy for rheumatism." Thus the Argentine representative of the society, whose ready wit led him to reply that "many diseases came as the result of sin, and that the Bible had an infallible cure for the soul."

After a hard climb of 6,000 feet over the mountains the agents showed the precious books to the five copper-skinned children of a native family.

"What books are these?" inquired the father and the mother. "La Santa Biblia," was the reply. "Have you read it?"

The reply being in the negative, the visitors impressively related several of the narratives. "They listened with deep interest, and when we went offered us a sucking-pig for one of our Bibles, as they had no money."

Mr. Chapman found the sale of the Bible prohibited. He entered a protest, and such was the popular ignorance as to the contents of the book "that the matter was referred to a committee to see if the Bible was calculated to corrupt the morals of the place." A liberal-minded editor came to the rescue, writing an article which exercised "a restraining influence."

ACOMIA

MANY MEN HAVE IT AND MOST OF THEM WORRY ABOUT IT.

ACOMIA—it's a magic word—what does it mean? Simply absence of hair.

A baldheaded man has ACOMIA—absence of hair.

A million more men will have ACOMIA a year from now if they do not get rid of disgusting dandruff.

Dandruff is caused by a germ. This germ is a persistent sort of germ. He works while you sleep and when you awake. He breakfasts, dines and sups on the vitality stored in the hair roots, and the longer you tolerate his presence the surer you are of displaying a shiny headpiece later on.

Kill the dandruff germs; that's the only way to keep from growing bald Any capable doctor will tell you so.

How can you be sure that you are killing the dandruff germs? Simply by using daily for two weeks Parisian Sage, the most pleasant tonic for the hair the world has ever known.

Parisian Sage is the most pleasant and invigorating hair dressing in the world. It is not sticky or greasy. It will make women's hair soft, silky and luxuriant in a few days. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every bottle. Fifty cents a large bottle at druggists everywhere and at J. S. McKeown's, who guarantees it. Mail orders filled, all charges prepaid, by the Canadian makers, Giroux Mfg. Co., Fort Erie, Ont.

Soldier Has Skipped Out.

HIS CLOTHES WERE FOUND PACKED IN A TRUNK.

The military authorities would like to know the whereabouts of a member of the Army Medical Corps. He has been missing from the ranks for a couple of days, and has now been put down as a deserter.

The police were notified, and as a result of a search made, a suit of military clothes, has been found which have been identified as belonging to the missing man.

The clothes were found packed in a trunk, in the house of a woman, living on Cherry street, and rumor has it that he has eloped with the woman. One report says that the couple went to Watertown, N. Y. — Kingston Whig.

The pimples have disappeared. Miller's Compound Iron Pills did it. For sale by D. M. Waters.

If You Are Fat and Hot Read This Article

There is no necessity of fat people suffering as they do. Most fat people are so good-natured they do not care how they look or how they get along during the hot weather. As a matter of fact there is a natural fat reducer that in the past several years has been demonstrating that it will reduce fat and not tear down the body or leave big, flabby rolls of skin and wrinkles. This method is the famous Marmola prescription, which is now prepared in tablet form to meet the demands of fat people in the summer and to enable them at all times to take their fat reducer after each meal One of these little tablets taken after a meal turns that meal into good food for the blood and stops all fat producing elements from going into the system. Marmola tablets has an army of men and women who testify to its success, and you would tire reading what they say of its triumphs Marmola tablets do not only stop producing fat in the body but they reduce flesh at the rate of from 12 to 16 ounces a day. They are harmless and do nothing but assist nature, to give to the body the nourishment it requires. They are sold at all drug stores price 75 cents; or you may write the Marmola, Company, 1121 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

Samoyede Canine Pets Are "It" This Summer.

THE LATEST FAVORITE OF FASHION.

The Samoyede dog is the latest comer in canine pets for fashionable favor. This dog is a sort of four footed Admirable Crichton. He can do anything you ask of him—that is, anything within canine powers—and he can do it very well. He comes from the northeast of Russia, and, although new as a smart pet, he is the oldest domesticated dog in the world.

He is an ideal dog for children—intelligent, quick to learn tricks, good tempered and gentle, intensely affectionate, faithful and invariably well behaved. In short, he is a perfect four footed gentleman.

The Samoyede does splendidly harnessed singly or in pairs to a child's gocart. He takes to harness naturally, is untiring and strong and, to use a horsy expression, "quite without vice."

Apart from these excellent traits of character, the Samoyede dog's appearance is distinctly "fetching." In the puppy stage he is a fascinating little creature with a soft, fluffy white coat, for all the world like a Teddy bear. As he grows older he passes through the usual leggy state and at about a year old develops into a most aristocratic looking animal, very handsome and attractive, with long white fur standing straight out from the body, each hair having the icelike glisten peculiar to the breed.

Standing nearly as tall as a collie, ears pricked, eyes expressive, tail a spreading plume—not coiled tightly, like a chow—the striking appearance and elegant carriage of the Samoyede attract attention wherever he goes.

A Vacation Pest.

The most delightfully planned outing in the woods may be ruined by that vacation pest—the mosquito.

Some persons, poison so dreadfully life is a torment, and there is always danger of malaria from the bites.

If you are especially poisoned by mosquitoes, arrange to go where they are not. Don't go in for camping or frequent resorts that are subject to them.

If you will go, take with you preventives in the form of mosquito nets, lump camphor and citronella.

In extreme cases there are head nets that can be bought for a dollar. They are made of fine black bobbinet that will stand rain and washing. There is a circular cloth piece above the net over hat and a yoke shaped piece at bottom fitted to the shoulders and tied under the arm.

For night use it is possible to buy frames and mosquito bars to fit folding camp cots.

At Sign of the Scales.

In the absence of the Magistrate Mayor Marsh this morning occupied the bench and adjudicated upon the cases brought before him.

DRUNKS.

Arthur Rowlands was sent up for 10 days for being intoxicated.

John Flimecoe, a Hungarian, was ordered to leave the city and promised to do so.

ASSAULTING HIS WIFE.

Morgan Terrill, of Sidney Township, was arrested on a charge of assaulting his wife. He was remanded to jail until Monday.

A Plucky Act.

A lively scene was enacted on Bridge street his morning about 11 o'clock. A horse belonging to Mr. Callery of Canifton became frightened and made a desperate attempt run away but was caught by Mr. J. Truaisch. A young son of Mr. Callery and his aunt Miss Callery was in the vehicle at the time but fortunately escaped injuries.

Women's Smoking Room In New Chicago Theatre.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—Chicago is to have a theatre with a woman's smoking room and a ticket selling system especially for women. The new theatre will be housed in a twenty-storey office building at the southeast corner of Madison street and Wabash Avenue, at an announced cost of $3,000,000.

"This theatre is to be built looking toward the comfort of the audience," a representative of the company said. "Take the women's smoking room, for instance. Many women dislike to go into a theatre rest room because of the smoke. Others who desire to smoke don't care to in the presence of women who find the habit objectionable. By having a smoking room separated from the general rest room for women we can please them all."

The theatre will have a seating capacity of 2,200.

Summer Records Of Children's Deaths.

Records show that by far the greatest number of deaths among little ones occur during the hot summer months. The excessive heat, the difficulty in keeping baby's milk sweet, improper food all tend towards bringing on those dreaded baby troubles—cholera infantum, diarrhoea, dysentry and other stomach and bowel troubles. Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in the house. An occasional dose of the Tablets will prevent these deadly summer complaints or cure them if they come on suddenly. Mrs. O. Morin, Ste. Tite, Que., says: "My baby suffered from a severe attack of cholera infantum, but after giving him Baby's Own Tablets the trouble disappeared and he regained health splendidly." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Pet Cat.

Cats need careful feeding, and it is not generally believed that they can and will (if taught) eat green vegetables. They should be given these in the form of cabbage, cauliflower and asparagus once every day, and that at noon.

Strangely enough, the pet cat's heaviest meal, consisting of four ounces of meat, should be given at night, and it should invariably be run through a chopper. Potatoes are excluded from the diet of all well cared for cats, but sardines are given twice a week and only in cold weather.

Cats have individual tastes that may be gratified within reason. The ordinary American cat—and it is more satisfactory than the Angora—may even be given peaches or currants or cocoanut. These are mentioned because they were the peculiar dainties most liked by a cat of the writer's acquaintance.

All of the cat's milk is boiled and given warm and well diluted, and last, but very important, a daily supply of fresh water and green grass is absolutely necessary.

Daily Intelligencer.

A Contrast in Public Men.

Mr. Borden has just completed a tour of Nova Scotia and has made new friends, while strengthening the confidence of those he has always had with him. Shortly, he will pay a visit to Ontario and will mingle with the people, addressing them on the questions of the day. How suggestively the tour of Mr. Borden contrasts with that of his opponent, Sir Filfrid Laurier! Mr. Borden set out to visit the people as a plain, unassuming man, and he talked to them as one citiezn would talk to another. There has been no circumlocution in his addresses, nor have any of the tricks of the stage been indulged in.

A different course has been pursued by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. This personage was too exalted to travel in an ordinary train with common people. He must needs have a special with eight or ten cars to haul him and his retinue of contractors and politicians from station to station. Who pays the bill we do not as yet know. But we may be sure that Sir Wilfrid does not contribute to it personally. The expense will be covered either through a direct charge upon the Public Treasury, or through the subscriptions to the machine the contractors are compelled to make. Accompanying the expedition is a car load of press representatives, taken for advertising purposes. These gentlemen are expected to communicate to the world the wonderful sayings of the Premier, which the literary bureau had prepared in advance for "the great orator" to let loose upon the prairie audiences. The expedition is notable for the almost profane assumption of power which the chief figure in it makes for himself. Sir Wilfrid in his opening speeches pretended that he was a species of deity engaged in benevolently conferring favors upon the miserable creatures over whose destinies he presides. He gave the people the country. He allowed them to have crops. He found neighbors for them, and railways and ships to carry their produce to their distant customers. He is still looking after these helpless and inferior beings in a charitable sort of way, and will do more for them in the future if he is only spared to continue the marvelous services he is rendering to his subjects. His great mind is contemplating further works for the good of his hearers, and if his grey hairs are spared—here the grey hairs are shaken by a movement of the head—he will accomplish much for the country he loves so well—at which point he smites his breast in the neighborhood of the heart.

This theatricalism is the essential feature of the Laurier campaign in the West. Solid men laugh at it; good thinkers tell us that the talk which constitutes its chief feature is "piffle," and rubbish. As between the business-like, honest, frank attitude of Mr. Borden and the histrionics of Sir Wilfrid Laurier there is no difficulty in making a choice. The plain citizen who tells a straight story, the public man who is without pretensions, and is free from foolish vanity and stupid boasting, is the man who can be safely trusted.—Mail and Empire.

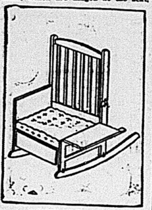
GIFTS FOR THE TRAVELER.

Amusements For Children on an Ocean Voyage—Summer Window Shades That Make For Coolness—A Delicious Lemonade That Is Little Known.

Dear Mabel—New York became so intolerably hot that we just rushed down to Belle Harbor one Saturday afternoon not long ago and luckily found a charming cottage which had not been rented, so we took it, and at the present moment I'm sitting on the porch with a glorious view of the ocean in front of me, for you must know that Belle Harbor is only an hour's ride from town and right on the ocean. Well, the chair that I'm occupying is one of the joys of my life, and I stumbled across it quite unexpectedly in a department shop last week. It is called a sewing chair, but it has many other uses. At first glance you would take it for an ordinary rocking chair, with the peculiarity of having solid sides, but when these sides, which are hinged at the seat, are let down its other uses are well understood. These sides become transformed into broad arms on which you may lay your sewing or use your writing pad as I'm doing now. Except for unusual work these arms are as good as a table. But I'm not half through with the attractions of the chair, for you can take the rockers off when you want it to be stationary and fold them up, and the chair will rest firmly on its four legs. What do you think of that for a "stunt" piece of furniture?



A PORCH SEWING CHAIR.

Gift For the Traveler.

Dorothy D. went abroad last week, and I made her such a pretty little steamer present, one that I found so useful the last time I crossed. It's a simple portfolio made of gray canvas, with a single large pansy "for thoughts" worked on the cover. To make the portfolio all that is necessary are two pieces of cardboard the desired size. These are covered with the canvas and lined with violet silk. The two materials I overcast together all round the edges. With a hinge of ribbon the portfolio is complete. Oh, yes, I forgot to say that on the reverse side of the cover I embroidered Dorothy's monogram and that two ribbons passed around the portfolio are tied to keep the contents secure. I used my case for preserving prints and drawings while traveling.

And, talking of gifts, when children travel a few well chosen presents will keep them happy. It really takes very little to amuse children. A box of gifts to last through the days of ocean voyage can be arranged that may make all the difference between a pleasant and a disagreeable trip to both mother and child. Such a box was recently got up for some children by a friend of mine. The outside box, of generous proportions, was tied about with a silk flag, for the youthful traveler, particularly if he is a boy, wants to flaunt the stars and stripes on all patriotic occasions. Each small box put into the large one was numbered, with directions as to when it was to be opened and how its contents were to be used. For instance, "Box No. 1" contained peppermints to be opened after the first meal on board. "Box No. 2" had an exciting deck game to be opened the next afternoon. A morning gift was a tablet and a set of colored crayons. Another gift was a set of bean bags made of blue linen marked with the owner's initials. A game of cards with the pictures of the masterpieces in art was a helpful gift.

An outfit for making paper flowers was a very suitable gift for the girl of the party, and to one of the boys just learning to tell the time a dollar watch was given.

Older little people frequently get restless on long trips. For them was a box of candy made doubly sweet by writing some little personal messages and humorius sayings on bits of paper and wrapping them around the bonbons. And what child would not love to receive a pretty box containing a fountain pen, a book of stamps, a few special delivery stamps, postal cards and paper wrappers? Little red leather record books would not come amiss either, as the young traveler would feel most important when making notes of the trip. And what fun it would be to read such notes written by a child of an imaginative mind!

The Double Shade.

I think it so queer that more housekeepers do not know about double shades that are to be had for windows. In summer they are particularly desirable. They are not wonderfully new; but, as I have just hinted, very few women know of their existence. Most women who want to keep out the glare of the summer sun, yet have attractive window effects from the inside, use two sets of shades, the dark green ones hanging next the window to keep out the sun and the white ones next the room over which to hang curtains of cool looking net or muslin. This is bunglesome and unnecessary, as it is possible to buy shades that are green on the outside and white or cream on the inside, or if you want the dark side next the window they can be made in this way.

Mother has just brought me a glass of "frog lemonade." You never heard of it? Probably not. It's a southern drink that is perfectly delicious, and I know you'll bless me one of these hot days if I give you the recipe. Take a large punch bowl, put in a pound of sugar, three quarts of water, the juice of two dozen lemons and one of pineapple and add two bottles of seltzer water. Mix all well. Add a dozen or so ripe strawberries or cherries and thin slices of pineapple and lemon. If not sweet enough add more sugar. When thoroughly mixed add a large square of ice and let the mixture get very cold before serving. Fill the glasses one quarter full of crushed ice and fill up with the lemonade, adding with it some of the fruit. This is a very generous quantity, but the proportions could be easily reduced.

Yours devotedly, MABEL.

When Going on a Picnic.

Do not attempt too much is the best all around rule for the picnic giver, says Marion Harris Neil. Do not go too far. Hungry people are never at their best. Do not overelaborate the food. A large choice is not necessary. A plentiful allowance of a few well selected and appetizing dishes is much wiser. Do not arrange too long a day. An early start is difficult for the hostess, who has much to oversee in packing and arranging, and unpopular with most people.

If the picnic party happens to have among its numbers some young people we must cater for big appetites and provide substantial sandwiches.

Though substantial, they need not be dry, coarse or plain. Pack carefully. For this purpose always save tin candy boxes and pasteboard boxes of a convenient size. Have on hand plenty of oiled paper. It is indispensable.

Paper cloths and napkins are now so dainty that many hostesses use them at picnics in preference to taking their own table linen. In arranging for a picnic have as few things to take home as possible. Nobody wants to take home the surplus edibles which should never have been taken. The most fickle appetite surprises itself under the mellowing influence of invigorating air and the novelty of it all, but it has a limit too.

Cucumber sandwiches are an old standby for the veranda tea and the summer picnic, but one woman has a way of giving these old timers a little different tang from those usually served. The secret may be in the few drops of onion juice which she sprinkles over the slices of the vegetable and in the paprika with which she seasons the mayonnaise that moistens the filling.

Household Hints.

Do you know that coffee stains, even when there is cream in the coffee, can be removed from the most delicate silk or woolen fabrics by brushing the spots with pure glycerin? Rinse in lukewarm water and press on the wrong side until quite dry. The glycerin absorbs both the coloring matter and the grease.

Do you know if a cloth is wetted in vinegar and wrung out as dry as possible with the hands and wrapped around cheese and then the whole put in a large paper bag and kept in a cool place the cheese will retain the moisture and freshness of a newly cut cheese and will not mold.

Do you know that in peeling apples the brown satin that generally appears on peeled slices can be avoided by setting each slice as it is peeled in a basin of cold water? Thus no contact with the air is possible, and the stain is avoidable.

The water draws out the acids, and there is a sacrifice of flavor to color if this plan is used and the apples are soaked too long. Any discolored slices will turn white again if rubbed with a piece of lemon.

Do you know that sometimes the most careful washing will not remove the flavor and odor of food from the utensil in which it was cooked?

This is frequently the case with fish, onion, cabbage, etc., but there is a remedy which may be a little trouble and yet is well worth trying. After any of these articles have been cooked wash the utensil well with soap and water. Then nearly fill it with cold water and for each quart of water add one tablespoonful of dissolved washing soda.

Place on the fire and let the water get boiling hot. Now pour the water into the sink. Rinse the utensil with clean water, and on wiping it dry it will be found perfectly sweet.

A Change In Furniture Covers.

There is a change in the materials selected for loose summer coverings for furniture. The pale tans and grays that have concealed or protected, as the case may be, chairs and sofas for a number of years may have the quality of coolness to recommend them, but they were certainly depressing.

Now it is the fashion to make the slip covers of pretty cretonnes, not necessarily light, but in cool looking greens and browns, soft blues and dull pinks. These are much prettier than the linen and will last an entire summer without a visit to the laundry.

Prince Becomes Hotel Keeper.

Prince Henry XV. of Pless and his wife have evolved a plan by which they can make money and at the same time entertain as lavishly as any other members of the nobility in Europe. Their entertainment practically will be no extra cost to them and at the same time will yield them a certain amount of advertising. The princess is considered one of the most beautiful women in Europe. Prince Henry and his wife have built a hotel on the ancestral estate in Salsbrunn, Prussian Silesia, which promises to become a rival of Carlsbad. The prince is one of the richest noblemen in Europe. His wife was Marie Theresa Olivia, daughter of Colonel W. Cornwallis West and elder sister of the Duchess of Westminster, England. They were married in 1891. The couple mean to live in the new hotel in the fashionable season of the year and to entertain their friends there. They have spent a tremendous amount of money on the project, and their position naturally will attract hundreds of wealthy guests.

A Delicious Sauce.

Summer is the time for steamed fruit puddings of all sorts. These are eaten with various sauces or with cream and sugar.

Where wine sauce is not used a good hard sauce is the next best choice. This is rarely well made, as it is too often gritty rather than creamy.

The next time you make it try this method: Have the butter soft and stir in gradually powdered sugar instead of granulated, which is usually selected.

When creamy and ready to serve, stir in a quarter of a cupful of cream whipped very stiff and the well beaten white of an egg.

Chocolate Cream Drops.

After forming the cream into balls or cones lay them on oiled paper for a few hours to harden, then melt some chocolate in a double boiler. When melted and the creams are hard enough to handle, take one at a time on a toothpick or hatpin and stir it around in the melted chocolate until well coated and place on the oiled or wax paper to harden.

The ...Veiled Lady...

a ball of fire, to sink in a western blazing furnace, was veiled with a mocking mirage, and a horrid silence brooded everywhere!—In a few straggling towns, the flotsam and jetsam of border life clung tenaciously together. The feeble scattered garrisons were waging a war of personal conflict against the dreaded Apaches.

"Dispatches, Sir!" reported the bird-faced young Corporal,—a chance-made soldier,—to the anxious young Engineer.

"Make your men comfortable, Corporal," said Maxwell, as he hastily tore open a dozen bulky envelopes; the precious contents of the Corporal's saddle-bags.

"Anything for me, Vinton," cried Seaton, his care-worn face lighting up.

"Nothing, old fellow, I'm sorry to say," kindly rejoined Maxwell, as he seated himself on a jutting quartz boulder and utilized the sinking sun's rays, to decipher his letters.

Seaton walked away, resting his hands on the butts of the two revolvers, which were then the only "personal ornaments" of a travelling gentleman in bloody Arizona. "I might end it all here with a bullet," he bitterly murmured, as he gazed at the far sweeping desolation of God's forgotten land. His eye idly rested on Hannibal, who, aided by a couple of soldiers, was preparing from treasured portable, a feast for New Year's Eve. To-morrow they would be in the desert. The sight of the negro recalled him from his desperate mood. "My sister! Great God! I must go on to the end. Time enough for the bullet when I have done a man's duty!—There's Little Rock, and New Orleans, Mobile, all Texas—and Europe." He dropped his hands from his pistol.

A sickle moon was beginning to brighten in the far east. The red sun was veiled for another day. Hannibal's voice was lifted in summons to feast. For in these lonely camps, surrounded by hordes of crawling red devils, no light or fire was kindled at night, to guide a flight of arrows, or a shower of bullets. Doubled sentinels, and the whole force in readiness, (arms at hand), were the usual precautions of the night. Sleeping in rude dress, all were ready to instantly fight for life. Even the animals were fastened by chain as well as rope to the wagon park. The men lay in rude order around them. So, on guard, they had repelled already a dozen futile attacks!

"It would not be fair to Maxwell to leave him now, either," said Seaton to himself, in further justification of his policy of non-suicide. Life in Arizona needed, however, every moral excuse!

"By Jove, Seaton, come here," called Maxwell, springing to his feet and waving off Hannibal's entreaties to the feast—now rudely spread on a spare tent fly! "There's been a big battle on the Washita! The Seventh Cavalry wiped out old Black Kettle on November 27th, near the Antelope Hills! Let's have our dinner. I'll try a light in my tent after dark, and will finish these letters. Here's two or three old papers also."

Several officers killed, and a heavy loss; but Custer has destroyed the big Indian villages! Jack's badly wounded and gone to St. Louis, on leave for six months! He is doing better now.

With a faint affectation of jollity, the comrades regaled themselves with Hannibal's masterpieces. The viands were of the tin-preserved order,—the surroundings dismal, and it was only in sheer loyalty they toasted Jack's recovery and his glory, in commissary whisky!

"Here's to Jack!" cheerily cried Maxwell. "Dear old boy! If he got a severe wound, I'll be bound he has his share of the glory. You know he would have written you, but he could not know you would be here with me." Seaton's gloomy brow lightened. It was true. After exhausting enquiry in California, and arranging for future watchfulness, he decided to cross Arizona with Maxwell, and explore the south and southwest. It was easy for Seaton to explain to his trusted private agents that his sister deemed him dead in the war, and fled to escape the horrors of pillage—(Sheridan's follows handled the Shenandoah roughly,)—and her family pride was an excellent excuse for veiling her name, as she deemed herself forced to toil for bread. The valuable inheritance was a good apparent reason for protracted and cautious inquiry.

Alas! discreet advertisement and wide-spread research failed to bring forth the faintest clue. In the lonely vigils of the march, while assisting Maxwell in his duties in the long hours of silence enforced by daily fatigue, Seaton admitted the probability of Maxwell's theory. His strange sister—whose very resemblance had almost faded from his mind,—if alive, was surely watching him from afar, and resolutely avoiding him. He knew that her girlish inexperience could not conceal from her the value of her share of the considerable estate of Judge Seaton. A thousand times in the gloomy hills, or buried in rocky canons, and while toiling over skeleton-strewed blinding desert sands, the maddening inquiry returned: "Whom does she seek? What unredressed wrong gave her alone, the title of vengeance?"

Waiting while Maxwell posted his guards, and reconnoitered the camp approaches, while listening to the howls of the lurking coyotes, or the harsh bark of the mountain wolf, as the shadows deepened, and the Apache war fires glittered on the summits, the lonely Southerner bowed his head. "I am alone in the world, and by my sister's will!"

With tent walls lowered, and a candle planted in the sand, screened by a saddle blanket, Maxwell perused Gordon's long letter. Seaton pretended to glance at the ancient journals, interrupted occasionally by Maxwell's exclamations. There was silence, broken only by the neigh of a charger or the rattle of the sentinel's carbine, as he stumbled over the flinty hillside. The men, under strict orders, were silent, to afford no clue to a lurking enemy. Maxwell lifted his head. "I will read you this; it's a queer yarn," said he, lighting his pipe. "This is dictated by Jack, and his signature is not worthy even of his dear old careless self. This letter came through with a relay military express carrying dispatches; the rest are all official. All of our San Francisco mail has gone on to Tucson to await us. The papers came from the station. I am to receive his rooms; his incoming letters will Here goes for Jack":

"St. Louis, December 12, 1868.

"Dear Vinton,—Here I am back from the big scout with a ball through my right shoulder. I have been here four days. I have not heard a word from you, or 'Bev. Seaton since you left. My letters may be at Belvoir, or on their way here from Regimental Headquarters. I am sure that you have written to me!—I will have my mail in a few days. I joined the 'Seventh' at Fort Dodge in October, and found the best lot of fellows who ever sat at mess. On November 12th we rode out to see Mr. Black Kettle, and at daybreak on November 27th we found him and his tribe of red devils on the banks of the Washita River. I rode my big black horse 'Stride away.' The long march was tough, and I was so frozen with waiting half the night to be shot in the morning, that I could hardly handle my pistols. Custer took us in in grand style. It was a glorious dash! I got half way through the village, which was scattered along the river, when we went in as the band played 'Garry Owen.' It was all a mad hand-to-hand fight!—The men did splendidly, and the Cheyennes fought like fiends, though we really surprised them for once! I shot a big warrior as he jumped out from his lodge within five feet of me. He dropped like a log. Just then from a lodge on the line I was shot in the right shoulder, and down went my horse dead as a stone, with a ball in his head!—He had saved my life by rearing in fright! He fell, rolling over me, and also breaking my shoulder blade!—I was galloped over by my whole squadron!—The next thing I knew I was in the field hospital in the centre of the village, and poor Captain Louis Hamilton, my squadron commander, with other brave fellows, lying near me cold and stiff!—I got as much experience in five minutes as a man cares for in a year! There, I lay, helpless, while five hundred yelling devils gathered and charged our lines for hours!—But we smashed them!

"The regiment had to form up after our victory and really fight its way out, for all the Arapahoes and Kiowas came on us from their villages! Think of me, lying there under hospital guard, while our men burned the village, shot the herd of Indian ponies, and beat off Little Raven and Satanta. Well! It was a great victory, hard won! They rushed me over to Camp Supply in a mule litter, and then on here by train! Our regimental surgeon telegraphed his brother here, also a surgeon, and I will be well taken care of, in his own home, where I am now lying!—I am doing well! Lots of fever, pains and aches! Poor old Strideaway! One beggarly Indian cost me the best horse in Kentucky! But General Custer complimented me! You know what that means! By heavens! he is a soldier. He went in like a man, at our head!—I have lots of time to recruit, as the regiment is now in winter quarters. Not an Indian nearer than a thousand miles. They will patch me up by next spring.

"Where are you? Where is poor Beverly? I am hungry for your letters. If the Apaches are like the Cheyennes, then mind your eye. I wish you were here, Vinton! I have an ugly thing on hand. As you are my executor, I must tell you. You came very near being able to qualify!—But for my good 'Frontier Colt,' and my nervous horse (How they do fear Indians?), you would have been reading my last will and testament, soon!—The day I came here I was very tired and worn out. Next day, my agent (Who I told you was going to leave to be married this month,) called.—Egbert Neill was a fine fellow, about thirty-five. He was selected by our bankers here, and specially recommended by my trustees. Naturally, he had worked hard to have his accounts all ready to turn over, as I had selected a St. Louis man to relieve him for six months, under the bank's direction. The doctor wouldn't let me talk much to him. He was to come in a few days, and give me a summary and report, so I could be thoroughly informed. Our estate office is in the business part of the city, and he worked alone late at night, closing up his private matters. Yesterday morning the janitor found the gas burning and the door locked!—The office is in the third storey. Finally forcing the door there was poor Neill lying dead on the floor stabbed through the heart. The papers were in order; nothing touched; and they told me his person had not been rifled; robbery seems not to have been the motive!

"The whole town is alive with rumors. I am all broken up over this. Poor fellow! He had not an enemy in the world. The detectives and police have charge of all. The bank has sent word that his funds are all right; the estate is in admirable condition. I can't understand it. He was from Detroit somewhere. He has been in our army, and was a fine lawyer. The detectives and Chief of Police want to bother me; but Sawbones won't have it. God help the poor girl he was to marry! I do not know her, but somewhere she waits for him!—The police, of course, have charge of Kaiser Says He Holds His Throne From on High.

Remarkable Speech at Koenigsburg Provokes an Outburst From the German Press—The Most Conservative Papers Condemn His Presenting Such a Dectrine at So Critical a Time.

Berlin, Aug. 26.—The speech delivered Thursday night by Emperor William at the provincial banquet at Koenigsburg, in which he reiterated and emphasized his belief in the divine mandate by which he rules, referred to the Prussian crown as bestowed by God's grace and not by Parliaments or people's assemblies, and laid a lance against the present movement for woman suffrage, is the political sensation of the hour.

The leading organs of the German press devote extended comments to it, generally criticizing the Emperor's utterances, and there are indications that the discourse will have a deep political effect upon the country, nearly all the Berlin papers discussing the subject in connection with the political crisis of November, 1908, when the publication by The London Daily Telegraph of an interview with the Emperor raised a storm against the uncontrolled public speaking of the Emperor.

The serious Vessische Zeitung, The Tageblatt, The Post and other papers point out the constitutional character of the Kingdom of Prussia in the Empire and enquire whether Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg was privy to the Emperor's purpose of delivering such a speech.

They predict that it will lead to a renewed discussion of the Emperor's constitutional position when the Reichstag reassembles in November.

The strongly monarchist Taegliche Bundschau, the favorite journal of army officers, says: "This speech means a storm. Never before has Emperor William set into such clear relief his romantic, medieval idea of his non-responsibility to man's judgment, of his not being bound by the constitution and of ruling by God's grace, against all those convictions and feelings which to-day determine our existence of a state.

"Why," asks The Taegliche Bundschau, "should the Emperor choose this moment to emphasize his ruling by God's grace and his own right when it will nourish an anti-monarchical agitation and good monarchists be thrown into a condition of tragic disruption?"

The organ of the landed nobility, The Deutsche Tageszeitung, thoroughly approves of the declarations of the Emperor.

The Lokal Anzeiger lays stress upon the desire of the Emperor that the people co-operate with him, and points out that the Emperor delivered the speech in the castle where the Prussian Kings were formerly crowned. He said in the hall in May, 1890: "We Hohenzellerns take our crown from heaven alone," and in the same place on Sept. 6, 1894, he quoted the words of his grandfather, William I., about ruling by divine right and added: "So, too, do I take my kingdom by God's grace."

The Tageblatt affirms that although prices did not fall on the exchange, trading was slack and brokers apprehended an unfavorable influence from the speech upon markets at home and abroad.

Plan Big Strike.

Copenhagen, Aug. 27.—Delegates from all the seamen's unions of Europe and America, represented at the International Congress of Sailors and Marine Firemen, in session here, agreed yesterday morning to declare an international strike within three months unless the ship owners of every country concerned agree to the formation of a board of conciliation to deal with the grievances of the men.

Bilbao, Spain, Aug. 27.—The workmen's Federation yesterday proclaimed a general strike throughout Spain. The strike is to begin next Monday, Aug. 29.

Holliday Farm Sold.

Ottawa, Aug. 27.—Negotiations have been finally completed whereby the Government secures possession of the Holliday farm, in the vicinity of the Long Branch Rifle Ranges, which contains 973 acres, for $30,000.

The farm has been bought as a site for the barracks at Toronto. There are 200 acres between the Holliday farm and the Long Branch ranges, which the Government will also secure.

Curtailing Cotton Production.

Manchester, N.H., Aug. 27.—Fifteen thousand employes of the Amoskeag Cotton Manufacturing Co., were thrown out of work yesterday when the seventeen mills of the plant closed for a period of fifteen days.

The Chicopee Manufacturing Co. mills in Massachusetts have closed till Sept. 12, throwing 2,000 employes out.

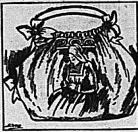
DELFT EMBROIDERY.

Smart Effects For Use In Summer Cottages.

Delft embroidery is new and is most attractive in its cool dullness of tone for the summer room. It is nearly all worked in dull blue of several shades upon a sort of coarse butcher's linen so nearly white that it can scarcely be called cream.

All of these bags are faced with the lighter of the three shades of blue and drawn up with corresponding ribbons.

It must be remembered that the choice of color is as important a factor in this work as is the design if the finished product is to resemble delft ware.



TO HOLD DARNING.

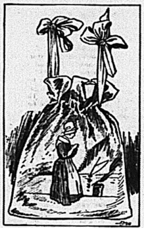
Varying but slightly in idea and general effect, the two bags show each a different little Dutch figure, one of them knitting, the other merely a face and both of them done in a combination of stitches, including outline, solid, skeleton, cat stitch and laid work.

They are used to their best advantage in the carrying out of each part of the design, as are also the several shades of blue.

Dutch figures similar to these are carried out in a whole line of art needlework, including larger bags for the family mending, laundry bags, bedroom hangings and couch cushions.

A prominent feature throughout the whole lot of this delft blue fancy work is the standing or seated figure of a woman knitting. She is characteristic of her country—a thrifty housemother providing for her family by primitive means.

All of these figures are treated by that method known to the decorative artist, a method that outlines its most impressive parts with a single darker line. In this case it is accomplished by outlining.



A KNITTING BAG.

One of the bags is intended for darning, one for knitting, and like designs may be applied to all sizes of workbags or to many pieces of linen for use in the bedrooms of summer cottages.

The Guest Towel.

One of the prettiest designs in bedroom towels seen for a long time is called the guest room towel. It is of soft damask, woven in a dainty scattered design of sweet peas, a deep border of the flowers appearing at the ends, which are hemstitched.

The size is 20 by 38 inches and the price 35 cents each.

A novelty in bath towels is a bleached Turkish towel, with a red jacquard border that will not run in the washing, but will come from its tubbing looking like new. It costs only 25 cents and measures 20 by 44 inches, a reasonable price.

The crossbar dimities and the self checked lawns are responsible for some of the daintiest looking pillowshams designed especially for summer use.

A rather large checked lawn, decorated with water lilies above a scalloped border, is thirty-two inches square and costs 85 cents. The scarf, 18 by 34, is the same price.

A second design is a grouping of daisies and bowknots set on above a pretty scroll pattern edge buttonholed, the material crossbar dimity. This is thirty-two inches square and costs 50 cents. The scarf is the same price.

Another pretty idea is a pillowsham of fine dotted swiss hemstitched to a wide border of sheer crossbar. Price 85 cents.

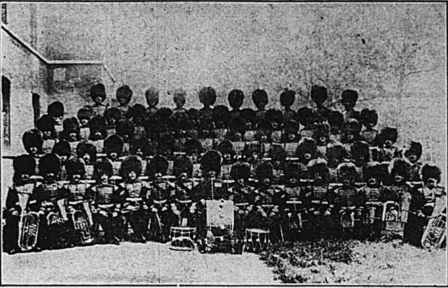
For the Tea Drinker.

Those women who are fastidious in regard to their tea will be interested in a new teapot that seems to have reached perfection. It is simple too. Inside the pot there is a tea ball, its chain passing through the knob on the cover of the pot. This ball is filled with tea and is drawn up into a hollow in the cover.

Freshly boiled water is poured into the pot, and the steam arising from it moistens the tea. After a few minutes the ball is lowered into the water, then raised when sufficient strength has been extracted—all this without lifting the lid of the pot.

Price in polished copper or nickel, $5.

After a long series of tests German scientists seem to have disproved an old theory that resin is a beneficial ingredient in soaps, their decision being that the washing power of a soap decreases as the resin content increases.



GRENADIER GUARDS BAND WILL PLAY AT TORONTO EXHIBITION.

The Band of the Grenadier Guards King George's household musicians are recognized as Britain's leading military band. They have been the musical attraction at all the great events in England for some years past, and at the Japan-British Exhibition this summer won unstinted praise. They have crossed the Ocean to play at the Canadian National Exhibition, and will give concerts daily from 1 to 2, and 4 to 6, and take part in the Tattoo at night. The Tattoo and British Army Quadrille will be conducted by Lieut. Williams, Mus Doc. Oxford, Leader of the Grenadiers, and admittedly the finest band conductor in the British service.

Baby's Indigestion.

For baby's indigestion, which means yells from colic, do not resort to drugs.

Soothing sirups and colic cures read glowingly in the advertising, but they too often mean a weakened intellect and big doctor bills.

Even the time honored catnip tea or mint is not to be encouraged. Far better is it to trust to nothing but hot water taken internally.

This should be given as hot as the little one can stand it either from tip of spoon or through a bottle. The water must be boiled, and do not give more than a tablespoonful or two at a time.

Where children are subject to colic after each time of eating until one can find a food that is digestible make the experiment of putting a little hot water in the bottle after each feeding. Let the child take it slowly, making sure that the bottle is not at too high an elevation.

A Good Habit.

It is most important that a child be taught to take proper care of toilet articles for everyday use.

After being shown the use of the toothbrush a special place should be found for it and its special care exacted. Toilet articles can be given as gifts in addition to the toys and games that every child expects and should have. A piece of silver each gift time soon inculcates a pride in the child's belongings and a care for their conscientious use.

A shelf for shoes, hangers for little wraps, coats and clothes, special hooks for nightgown and wrappers and a place made attractive with fancy boxes or racks for ribbons, ties or collars will all help to make children particular about their belongings and give them a perfectly legitimate pride in their neat appearance.

Scorched Linen.

When linen has been badly scorched try the following method:

Boil to a good consistency in half a pint of vinegar two ounces of fuller's earth and the juice of two onions. Spread this mixture over the damaged part and let it dry. If the threads are not actually burnt through the scorched place will appear after washing as white and perfect as the rest of the linen.

Dry Goods SINCLAIR'S Ladies' Garments

Good Form

No well mannered hostess allows her maid to announce a meal while a caller is present, and if the visitor is thoughtless the lunch or dinner is often delayed until it is almost spoiled, for cooked foods should be eaten as soon as they are done. This waiting is a trial to the housekeeper and a cause of irritation to her husband, if she has one, and the visitor responsible for such a state is never popular in that family.

When you ask guests to a meal, if one of them is late do not wait more than ten minutes. At the expiration of that time the meal should be served. This is only fair to your punctual guests, who deserve to have a good dinner and not one that has been spoiled by standing. In order to get their guests together at just the right time some hostesses resort to the subterfuge of naming a dinner hour half an hour earlier than they mean to have the meal served. This gets the tardy one there on time, but is not quite fair to the punctual ones who are kept waiting. That old adage, "Punctuality is the courtesy of kings," should be observed by every one.

Entertaining In Small House.

Entertaining when houses are small is a problem that confronts many a hostess, nor does she always solve it with the happiest results.

Some girls, because they cannot entertain all their friends, never entertain at all. They take all the hospitalities they can get, making excuses of cramped quarters for doing nothing in return.

Others pay off their debts, but care nothing for the manner of payment. They crowd their tiny house until the walls fairly bulge and the tempers and clothes of their friends are alike ruined. Nobody has a good time, but the hostess does not bother herself about that.

Still others make the fatal mistake of dividing their receiving hours. They invite all their guests for one day, but at different times. This is sure to breed trouble. Not only does it seem to push one set of guests out that the rest may be accommodated, but it is sure to create heartburning, especially if the line be drawn on ages or sets.

The one wise course is to give several small affairs and thus get around your friends by degrees. Never invite more than your house will hold comfortably if you wish to be thought a successful hostess. It is usually safe, however, to include in your list for everything save a dinner or luncheon about a third more than you expect to come, as that is the accepted proportions of regrets in the gay season.

Points For Mothers

The new baby's eyes require immediate attention, for if they are neglected there is great danger of serious eye trouble or even blindness. They should be held open gently and washed with boric acid solution, one teaspoonful of the boric acid powder to a pint of water. If the doctor advises it one drop of a 1 per cent solution of silver nitrate should be put into each eye by means of a medicine dropper; then they should quickly be washed out with the boric acid solution. If there is the slightest discharge of matter at any time the doctor's attention must be called to it at once. It is a terrible crime to run the risk of the baby becoming blind through ignorance or neglect on the part of the person who has the care of it during the first days of its life. Absorbent cotton should be used for washing out the baby's eyes, and it must be burned as soon as it has been used. A separate piece must be taken for each eye. The person who washes the infant's eyes must remember to scrub her hands with hot water and soap before she touches anything else.

The new baby's mouth must also receive careful and immediate attention. The mouth is often full of mucus, which must be removed quickly if the baby is to breathe well. A piece of absorbent cotton or clean soft linen should be twisted on the little finger, dipped in the boric acid solution and used to wash the mouth thoroughly, getting all the mucus possible out of it. The mouth must be washed in this way after the morning bath and each time before nursing.

Formal Calls.

There are just a few "don'ts" that every woman, especially if she is newly married and a stranger among her husband's relatives, should bear in mind.

First and foremost of these is "Don't deal in personalities, especially in the midst of the family." It is a tremendous temptation to express one's opinion of the new "in-laws," to dilate upon the characteristics of one and the peculiarities of another. But at best this comment is not good taste and for a newcomer is indiscreet. Every one of the "old inhabitants" is curious about such a stranger's conversation and conduct. They wish her to express opinions, and if they do not happen to be especially in accord with the existing sentiment it usually pleases them to pass along the criticism to other relatives, the original statement embroidered more or less, and possibly a chance statement may result in the bride's being disliked in a quarter where it is better another feeling should reign.

Fatal Accident At Grand Trunk Station Here This Morning.

A SPECIAL EMIGRANT TRAIN CRASHES INTO A LIGHT ENGINE — PETER YOUNG, ENGINEER, AND EDWIN BREWER CAR INSPECTOR, MEET A TERRIBLE DEATH.

It is certainly a truism that in the midst of life we are in death. This was truly verified this morning when as it were in the twinkling of the eye, two lives were sacrificed at the Grand Trunk Railway station in this city. The victims were two well-known Bellevillians, Peter Young, a G. T. R engineer, and Edwin Brewer, a car inspector of the company.

That such a deplorable accident could occur in broad daylight seems almost beyond human comprehension but such is the fact.

It appears that at about 6.15 a special immigrant train from the east drawn by engine No. 324, with Robert Weir, of Brockville, at the throttle was approaching the station here at a fair rate of speed, and upon the same line was the yard engine No. 2048, on which Young was at the throttle, and his fireman was Frederick Gariepy, of Kingston. Brewer was, it is said, upon the cow-catcher or the running board of the engine Although it is asserted that the semaphore was set against the special, the engineer and fireman in charge of the train evidently did not see the same. The envitable result was a collision with the light engine, with death in the wake. The impact was of such a nature that the report was heard some hundred yards away, and soon many employees were upon the scene to render what aid was necessary. The force with which the engine of the special struck the light engine was such as to drive the tender up into the cab and wrecking the engine badly. Although it is not definitely known and the fireman is unable to state positively the circumstances, it is generally surmised as the crash came that Young made an effort to jump from his engine, but was caught between the tender and the cab, sustaining such injuries that he breathed his last immediately upon being extricated. He was virtually crushed to death. The fireman Gariepy remained in the cab close up to the fire box, and in this way escaped serious injuries, but naturally was badly shaken up. Brewer was found beneath the wreck and his body was badly mutilated. Death in his case must have been instantaneous. Weir the engineer on the special, was not injured(but his fireman, whose name could not be ascertained, was slightly hurt. was able to walk about.

As soon as possible the auxiliary was called out to clear away the wreckage. The unfortunate affair occurred at a point just east of the station platform and north of the repair shop.

The special was delayed here some time, but was finally sent west, with another engine. Weir and his fireman were detained here, their places being taken by local employees.

The bodies of Young and Brewer were taken to the baggage room where they remained until the arrival of Dr. Yeomans, Coroner, who, after obtaining some facts, ordered them to be taken away. They were taken to Tickell and Sons undertaking establishment where, during the day they were viewed by many, some out of curiosity and others for friendship sake.

Peter Young, the engineer who lost his life, was a general favorite with his fellow-employees. He was born in this city about 35 years ago, and had lived here all his life. For some years he had been an employee of the railway, and was a capable and painstaking engineer. He was a member of the G. T. R. ball team. In religion the deceased was a Roman Catholic A wife and one young son survives. His untimely death is a severe shock to his fellow-comrades.

Edwin Brewer, the car inspector had been employed on the railway for some time and was deservedly popular. He was about 50 years of age Deceased was a member of the Orange Society. A wife and four children survive.

Dr. Yeomans, coroner, decided that an inquest was necessary and a jury was empanelled to view the remains after which they were prepared for interment. The jury met at Tickell's undertaking establishment at 3.30 this afternoon.

TRAP SHOOTING.

At the annual meeting of the Dominion of Canada Trap Shooting Association, held in Montreal, on the 23rd inst., by vote of the members there assembled, the 11th annual tournament is to be held in Belleville under the auspices of the Belleville Gun Club.

At this meeting the following officers were elected for the year 1911:

Hon. Pres.—Judge Fraleck.
President—E. Guss Porter.
Vice-Pres.—J. V. Jenkins.
Local Committee—H. Day, T. Boyle and J. Miller.
Sec. Treas.—Mark Sprague.

The annual meeting of the Association will be held in Belleville, at the date to be fixed in August, 1911, and will consist of three days' continuous competition at trap shooting.

At this meeting the individual championship will be decided, the two man teams championship, the five man team championship and the eight man team championship, and His Excelency Earl Grey's Cup, which has been donated as a perpetual trophy to the Association for competition, and a handsome gold medal accompanies the Cup, which becomes the property of the winner at this shoot.

This meeting will bring 100 shooters from all over the Dominion of Canada, who will remain with us four to five days during the competition, and in making this, the 11th tournament, the best that has ever been held. We have all the facilities to do this, and with the hearty co-operation of those who can assist, we should make this the best ever and a credit to Belleville.

HOWE'S GREAT LONDON SHOWS.

What Brain and Money will do — Acknowledged by Competitors to be Worthy Their Imitation.

Acts, many and novel, have been added to the repertoire of Howe's Great London Shows this season, and as the management registered a vow to equal any tented show, the result is a plethora of attractions fitted to evoke an enthusiasm from a performance where hundreds of skilled performers vie with each other in friendly contests for supremacy and public appreciation. So successful has this cost a lot of money, the public are the gainers, and Howe's Great London Shows will be classed at the outset among names more familiar to circus goers in the past.

This great show will visit us, with all its attractions, to please and educate the old and young alike.

In case of inclement weather, the water-proof tents insure perfect protection and comfort.

Don't forget the date, Belleville Tuesday, Sept. 6.

We, the jurymen empanelled to inquire touching the death of one Allan Brant, in the employ of the Canada Cement Co., Limited, Point Ann, Ontario, beg to submit the following verdict:

"We find from the evidence submitted, and examination of the place where the accident occurred, that the cause of death was accidental; and that deceased came to his death through the negligence of the company in not having the proper appliances for replacing the cars on the tracks in their quarry.

LAURIER AT KAMLOOPS.

Mountain Town Wants a Northern B.C. Railway Line.

Kamloops, B.C., Aug. 27.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier was given a hearty non-political reception here Thursday night. Martin Burrill, Conservative member of Parliament, took a seat on the platform, and spoke in welcome of the Premier. A large body of Indians and an escort of British Columbia Mounted Rifles gave the reception a picturesque character, which was heightened by a choir of young ladies, gowned in white, with red and blue sashes, who sang "The Maple Leaf," from an arch over Main street, as Sir Wilfrid motored under.

Two requests were presented to the Premier in the civic address. The first was for the construction of a branch of the G.T.P., connecting Kamloops with the north country; and second, was for a new postoffice.

Sir Wilfrid gave hope that both requests might be granted in the near future. In regard to the railway, he reminded them that the Grand Trunk Pacific must be completed before the Government could undertake another large task. He suggested as an alternative that Kamloops might be given connection with the north country by the improvement of the Thompson River.

A meeting was held at Vernon last night.

Won't Bombard For Rain.

Washington, D.C., Aug. 27.—Estimating the cost of the experiment at about $100,000, the War Department officials yesterday declined requests to order a bombardment of the skies by all its guns on Puget Sound and at the mouth of the Columbia River in an effort to bring on rain in the burning forest district of the northwest.

In addition to the objection of cost the army officials regard the experiment as certain to prove futile.

Besides the cost, it was stated at the War Department that the army was not equipped with projectiles with time fuses for the guns and hence the only atmospheric disturbance created would be by the formation of gases on the ground at the time of the discharge of the guns and by the passage of the projectiles through the air. The disturbance caused by the flight of the projectiles, it was said, would be comparatively negligible in creating a violent confusion among the currents.

Collision Near Kingston.

Kingston, Aug. 27.—When Harry Ansell, Montreal, an express messenger injured in a collision at Collins Bay, on the G.T.R., yesterday, was found by Dr. Anglin, the company's physician, he had been buried under egg cases, but was sitting on the safe, guarding $500,000. His back was injured, and he is badly bruised. The car was badly smashed, and his escape was miraculous. A special express freight, loaded with fruit for the coast, and an empty freight express, figured in the smash. The engines came together with considerable force, as the westbound was running 40 miles an hour, while the eastbound was slowing up to cross the westbound train.

Roosevelt Against Bossism.

Carroll, Ia., Aug. 27.—Theodore Roosevelt definitely allied himself with the progressives of New York State in a statement which he issued on the train yesterday, as he was traveling across Iowa.

Roosevelt declared that the main issue in the fight in New York was not any specific reform measure, but bossism. Bossism, he declared, frequently led to corruption, and he said he would wage ruthless war on corrupt alliances between business and bosses.

Fire Chiefs' Officers.

Syracuse, N.Y., Aug. 27.—The election of officers concluded the 38th annual convention of the International Association of Fire Engineers, resulting: President, Chief John Thompson, Toronto; first vice-president, Chief Wm. H. Koller, Youngstown, Ohio; second vice-president, chief H. F. Mageen, Dallas, Texas; secretary, Chief James McFall, Roanoke, Va., treasurer, Chief D. O. Larkin, Dayton, Ohio.

Milwaukee got the next convention.

Stole Into Canada.

It is claimed Newman was refused admission to the Dominion at the upper bridge here July 17, and came in without permission at old Niagara, July 18.

Spanish Generals Balk.

PRO AND CON OF UNION

Delegates to Methodist Conference Engage In Discussion.

On Ground of Its Imperilling Superannuation Fund, Dr. Griffin Presents Old Objection to Union of Denominations — Justice Maclaren Also Opposes on Legal Grounds—Fears Introduction of Unitarianism.

Victoria, B.C., Aug. 27.—The debate on church union was continued at yesterday morning's session of the General Methodist Conference, Rev. Dr. Antliff taking up the discussion. He declared the move towards union was not due to lack of loyalty, but because of a desire to attain greater things. Three churches together could accomplish more work for God.

Rev. Dr. Griffin opposed union. He did not feel that he could approve any movement that deprived aged servants of their just rights. With the union in existence, the superannuation fund would not be adequately provided for. He would defy any man to show wherein the Presbyterians had surrendered anything in the doctrinal basis.

Rev. J. W. Cooley, secretary of the committee, answered Dr. Griffin's objections by saying that he guaranteed that under the proposed union the fund would not be inadequate.

He was followed by Dr. W. F. Hillard, who opposed the union. He was the first layman speaker on the subject. His first complaint was that the paragraph in the basis of union describing the nature of Christ was defective and would become a breeding ground for all kinds of Unitarian preaching.

"If we let the bars down, the ministers and college professors will take advantage of it, not the laymen," he said. He was opposed in the second place because it destroyed the itinerant system of the churches. On the basis of union, the settlement committee, which appoints the ministers, could meet annually, or at the call of the chair. He thought that meant only when there were quarrels on in the church.

Rev. Dr. Stewart of Winnipeg was the next speaker. He thought that the doctrines and basis provided amply for the experience of sanctification, either gradual or immediate. Never were there such opportunities for the introduction of Christianity into the world as at the present time.

Justice MacLaren of Toronto, the next speaker, had been chairman of the committee of polity, and said he had weighed very carefully the whole situation. He was satisfied they had drawn up the best scheme of polity possible, "but," said he, "I have come to the conclusion that it is not such a one as I can vote for, nor recommend anyone else to vote for."

He was followed by N. W. Rowell, K.C., of Toronto, who had been chairman of the committee on law. He went into the matter in a masterly manner, and could see no cause for alarm from a legal standpoint. Before the union could be consummated, there must be an act of Parliament sanctioning it. Here was where the trouble in Scotland, which had been referred to, arose.

At this point Dr. Patten asked if it was organic union or interdenominational comity they referred to. Mr. Rowell answered that it was comity, because that was the nearest approach to what they wanted, but their ideal was organic union. Mr. Rowell quoted in conclusion John Wesley's views of the value of the opinions and the necessity for cultivating a spirit of charity towards all.

Hon. E. J. Davis of Newmarket, Ont., also spoke in favor of union.

Insane Man Runs Amuck.

Ellis, Kansas, Aug. 27.—Harry Pugh of Niagara Falls, N.Y., became insane on the Pullman car of a Union Pacific train near here early yesterday and fatally shot the porter, named Young, and a passenger named Temple of Kansas City.

Pugh had acted queerly in the evening, but talked agreeably with other passengers in the car. In the night he shot through the end of his berth into the smoking-room. The car porter ran toward Pugh's berth and was shot twice through the body. Temple, who was en route from Denver with his wife and child, sprang into the aisle, and Pugh shot him twice through the abdomen.

Tow Barge Sophia Safe.

Owen Sound, Aug. 27.—Fears for the safety of the tow-barge Sophia, observed in distress off Cape Rich by passengers on the Germanic during the severe storm of Thursday night, were dissipated last night. It was found that the barge, which is valued at about $5,000, was safely anchored about five miles off the cape.

The Sophia, which had left a load of coal at Wiarton, was bound light for Little Current with several men on board.

I.O.F. Elects Officers.

Toronto, Aug. 27.—Election of high court officers of the I.O.F. for Eastern Ontario for the ensuing year was proceeded with, with results as follows: High chief ranger, Dr. A. L. Smith; high vice chief ranger, George M. Farrington; high secretary, G. L. Dickinson; high treasurer, J. S. R. McCann; high physician, Dr. Simmons; high councillor, Horace Pratt; high auditors, T. Lamber and J. W. McElroy.

86,000,000 Bushels Estimate.

Winnipeg, Aug. 27.—Manager Black of the Ogilvie Milling Co., estimates the western wheat crop at 86,000,000 bushels, "a surprisingly good showing under the trying conditions which have prevailed."

The oat and barley crops, however, have suffered, he says, to a very much greater extent than the wheat.

For the Children

English Skaters Dodging the Law.

The boys and girls of Europe are as fond of roller skating as are the youth of this country, and the sport is even more general. In many of the European cities, notably Paris and Berlin, almost everybody uses skates. The scholars skate to school, and on holidays the streets swarm with big and little folks on rollers. The law in England prohibits persons from using two skates on the public highways. To get over this two youngsters put on one skate each and grasping hands roll merrily away, as shown in the picture herewith presented.

The Boys and the Sand Pile.

There was once a boy who had nothing to play with but some sticks and some bricks and a pile of sand. He lived in a little house next door to the big house where there was a boy with toys of every sort. The poor boy used to play in his yard and look over into the iron fenced garden next door, where the rich boy had all the toys, and the poor boy wished that he had a few. The rich boy did not care much what happened to the toys. He used to throw them about and then sit down on the grass and look at the boy with the sand pile.

One day the rich boy got up from the grass where he had been sitting, looking through the fence at the other boy. He filled his arms full of toys and walked over to the fence. He threw the playthings into the poor boy's yard, and then he climbed up the fence and down the other side, tearing his clothes as he went. He did not care. He gave all his toys to the other boy and went to play in the sand pile. Ten minutes later the playthings he had brought were lying unnoticed in the grass and both boys were hard at work in the sand, making a country that was more wonderful than any country ever made before. That was because it was their own country.—Chicago News.

Person and Thing.

Two of the company leave the room and consult together to mystify the rest, one by personating some well known character, while the other pretends to be something usually associated with the personage selected, such as Balaam and his ass, Pyramus and the kiss through the wall, Mother Hubbard and the bone, Sir Isaac Newton and his little dog. The fun principally consists in dodging the issue by misleading answers to the questions. It rather concentrates on the person taking the part of the thing connected with the person selected.

"Adam and the sweat of his brow" was once taken and proved a good puzzler. The one who represented the "thing" claimed that it was a friend to all men, though this particular one was the first the world had seen; that it was the poor man's friend, though little appreciated. Spherical in shape, clear and transparent, it was considered beautiful when seen elsewhere and in different association, but not in this connection. And he did not help to clear the mystery when he said "it could not walk, but it could run."

All have the privilege of asking as many questions as they please. The one who guesses the puzzle goes out next.

A Lead Pencil's Story.

Oh, how I long for the days gone by when I was a bright red lead pencil! I lay in a box on a shelf in a stationery store. I had lots of fun with my companions who lived with me in the box.

One day a boy entered the store and said, "I want a good five cent pencil with a rubber on." A group of pencils were taken off the shelf and he was to select one of them. He picked me out, put me in his breast pocket and left the store. Soon I found myself among a great many boys and girls. Then some one said, "I hate school." Then I knew I was in a schoolroom. My master sometimes got hungry and bit my rubber till it was all gone. He dropped me, and my point broke several times, and he sharpened me till I grew too small for him to use. I was thrown away, and my master bought one of my former companions.

Conundrums.

Why is a hound like a man with a bald head? Because he makes a little hare (hair) go a long way.

What is the difference between an old penny and a new dime? Nine cents.

Who is the greatest chicken killer spoken of by Shakespeare? Macbeth, because he did murder most foul.

Tom Tot.

Oh, little Tom Tot is a brave little man,
As people often remark,
But nobody knows why it is he dislikes
To go to bed in the dark!

Although the fisheries yield more than 1,205,000,000 pounds of sea food annually the demand exceeds the supply to such an extent that more than 400,000,000 pounds are imported each year.

"I FEEL IT MY DUTY

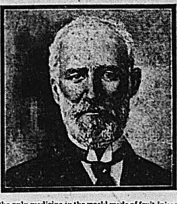
To Give You a Statement In Regard To 'Fruit-a-tives'"

HARDWICKE, MIRAMICHI, N.B., Jan. 17th. 1910.

"I feel it my duty to give to you and the world an unsolicited statement in respect to the wonderful cure I received by taking 'Fruit-a-tives.' Chronic Constipation was the complaint I suffered with for years. My general health was miserable as a result of this disease, and I became depressed and alarmed. I was treated by physicians without the slightest permanent benefit, and I tried all kinds of pills and tablets but nothing did me any good.

I saw the strong testimonial in favor of 'Fruit-a-tives' by New Brunswick's 'Grand Old Man', the Hon. John Costigan, and I knew that anything he stated was honest and true and given only to help his fellow-men. I tried 'Fruit-a-tives' and the effects were most marvellous, and now I am entirely well from all my Chronic Constipation that I suffered from for so many years. My general health is once more excellent and I cannot say too much to express my thanks for the great benefits derived from taking 'Fruit-a-tives.'"

A. G. WILLISTON.



"Fruit-a-tives" is not gotten up by druggists or expert chemists—who know nothing about disease and the needs of the human body—but is the scientific discovery of a well known physician, and is the only medicine in the world made of fruit juices.

Immense crowds clamored for admission and nearly swept away the police guards.

During the preliminary examination in court this morning, Inspector Dew produced a card on which prisoner had written this to Leneve "I can't stand the horror through which I have gone every night any longer, and I have made up my mind to jump overboard to-night." The note fell into the hands of the police, who immediately clapped Crippen in irons, fearing his carrying out the threat of suicide. Crippen also wrote asking Leneve's forgiveness for spoiling her life. They pleaded to be allowed to see each other on board ship, and Dew permitted it, on understanding that they were not to converse. On her return to jail to-day, Leneve was allowed to see her father.

COURT FOR HERETICS

How Methodist Church Will Try Offences Against Dogmas.

Conference In Session at Victoria Passes Report Recommending the Appointment of a Board of Five to Try Professors Who Depart From Accepted Doctrine — Laymen Ask Elimination of Jackson Teaching.

Victoria, B.C., Aug. 29.—The Methodist general conference Saturday night reached the clause in the educational committee report relating to theological teaching in colleges and how to deal with teaching not in harmony with the church standards.

A charge laid against any professor, lecturer or teacher must first be signed by five members or ministers of the Methodist Church, and laid before the officer in the college. He must call the board together within two months, and if they decide that the complaint is well made they forward it to the board of education; if they decide otherwise, the charge is dismissed. Here the complainants have right of appeal. The board of education, in turn, shall select five ministers of good repute and learning, who shall render decision on the case. This, the substance of the report, went through.

A number of memorials were lumped together and disposed of as follows: "In regard to the other memorials, we recommend that the control of theological teaching is sufficiently secured by the recommendations already passed, and that no further legislation is required."

A memorial from the Toronto Laymen's Association made the distinct request "to eliminate from our colleges such teaching concerning the Holy Scriptures, and the fallibility of Christ, as it is contained in Rev. Geo. Jackson's recent book, 'Studies in the Old Testament'."

Rev. Dr. Cleaver, Toronto, also put forward an amendment expressing by preamble regret that orally and by publication unsettling and injurious doctrines had been propagated through our colleges, and asking that this confence condemn such teaching, which he further specified by quoting from Jackson's book.

Rules of order followed confusedly for some time. Finally Dr. Cleaver's amendment was ruled out of order, as not being properly an amendment to the report, which was a piece of legislation. The report of the committee was adopted as a whole by almost unanimous vote.

In order that every opportunity be given for investigation, conference moved that Dr. Cleaver be heard Monday morning.

Barred State Commission.

Battle Creek, Mich., Aug. 29.—The grounds that the company's investigation of the Grand Trunk wreck near Durand was being held wholly to inform the management of the railroad as to who was responsible for the loss of seven lives, officials of the Grand Trunk refused to admit to the hearing the members of the State Railroad Commission, who came here to listen to the testimony of the trainmen. The crews of both trains involved in the wreck, in which eight passengers are now believed to have been killed, gave evidence behind closed doors.

This testimony, it was said, will be forwarded to headquarters, where the decision of the Grand Trunk officials will be announced.

France After Speculators.

Paris, Aug. 29.—The increased cost of living, especially for the working classes, has induced the Government to take an exceptional decision. At a conference held at the Ministry of the Interior, M. Briand, Premier and Minister of the Interior, presiding, it was resolved to institute proceedings where proof is obtainable of unlawful speculation tending to artificially increase the prices of the necessities of life.

It was further decided to take action on any conduct which while not legally punishable may result in interfering with the ordinary course of supply and demand.

New Line to Norway.

Christiania, Aug. 29.—The Norwegian-American Steamship Line was established with a capital of $2,800,000. The directors of the new line were authorized to purchase the steamship Kaiser Friedrich of Hamburg, which will be renamed the Lief Erikson.

The proposed line will make possible travel between New York and Norway in less than nine days, instead of 11 as at present.

A Leap For Life.

Hanover, Prussia, Aug. 29.—Aviator Schlueter had a narrow escape from death while making a flight in a Voisin machine at Celle, 23 miles northwest of this city. The wires of the steering gear became entangled, and seeing that he was in imminent danger, Schlueter jumped to the earth, about 30 feet below. He escaped with a broken leg. The machine was demolished.

STAMP SLOT MACHINES.

Government Has Decided to Give Device a Trial.

Ottawa, Aug. 29.—The lowering of the charges to two cents a letter from all parts of Canada, the United States and the British Empire, and to one cent a letter where the letter is delivered in the same place in which it is posted have added tremendously to the amount of mail matter handled by the Canadian Postoffice Department. To such an extent is this the case that the Department is sometimes overtaxed to handle business as expeditiously as it requires, and it has had to look about for devices to assist it in its work. The selling of its postage stamps to meet the exacting demands of a public who are peremptory in regard to its postal service has for some time been a vexing problem. But it is believed the solution has been found.

For some years past, experiments have been made in stamp-vending machines, which would deliver stamps automatically when the proper amount was paid. Hon. Mr. Lemieux, Postmaster-General, has been following these experiments with interest, but until recently the results have not been such as would warrant the postoffice in embarking on a scheme of this kind. Now, however, a machine has been perfected, which has been submitted to exhaustive tests, with results so good as to give the Postmaster-General reason to believe that what he has been looking for has been accomplished.

Holy Ghosters' Vessel Wrecked.

Halifax, N.S., Aug. 29.—Elijah Sanford, leader of the Holy Ghosters, and a motley band of fifty followers, are huddled together in a fisherman's shack on Mud Island, a barren spot of land thirty miles off Yarmouth, on the Nova Scotia coast, while their ship, the "Kingdom," is high and dry on the dangerous ledges within gun shot away. There is a great gaping hole in the bow of the craft and she is full of water.

For months past, Sanford has been cruising along the Nova Scotia and New England coasts to escape the authorities, who have been pursuing him in an effort to take off some female passengers, who are said to be unwillingly held on board the craft. For the past few weeks the American authorities have been giving keen chase, and it was in an effort to escape that Sanford pointed his craft eastward on a cruise along the Nova Scotia coast.

During a dense fog early Friday, she struck the rocks.

The Kingdom is a vessel of four hundred and ninety-one tons net, and was built 37 years ago. She was originally a merchantman. At present she has two hundred tons ballast on board. There is no insurance on the vessel.

Gaynor For Governer.

New York, Aug. 29.—A canvass of this state by The New York Times has resulted in findings which that newspaper summarized yesterday as follows:

"So strong and so general is the Gaynor sentiment that it has caused a lull in the discussion of other names which had been mentioned for the leading place on the democratic state ticket. Both in its nature, and in the element among the voters which holds to it, the Gaynor sentiment is closely akin to the feeling for Col. Theodore Roosevelt and Governor Charles E. Hughes, when they were before the people as candidates for office or for a nomination."

Mayor Gaynor Goes Home.

New York, Aug. 29.—Mayor Gaynor was removed from St. Mary's Hospital in Hoboken yesterday morning to his country home at St. James, L.I. He bore the trip well, but his insistent plea to be allowed to walk unaided resulted in two distressing incidents. Once he sank to his knees as he tried to enter an automobile, and on the steps of his home, he fell on all fours from over-exertion.

Commenting upon the attempt to assassinate him, he said: "I am content. My great hope is that the event will help to make me a better man and more patient and just."

England Shy of Bacon.

Ottawa, Aug. 29.—Mr. Mussen, Canadian trade commissioner at Leeds, reports a great falling off in the supply of bacon in England. One result is that grocers are inducing people to use breakfast foods. Mr. Mussen thinks there is a good opening for the Canadians manufactures of cereals. Canadian turkeys will as usual be in demand this autumn. There will also be a demand for Canadian honey.

The C. N. R. Railway Makes Big Move.

IT HAS ACQUIRED THE BAY OF QUINTE LINE AND WILL CHANGE ITS PLANS — BUILDING OPERATIONS TO BE PUSHED FORWARD TO COMPLETION

The following taken from the Toronto Star, will be of interest to many of our readers.

Keen competition for the Canadian Pacific and the Grand Trunk Railways is promised by the latest move of the Canadian Northern Railway.

The Mackenzie and Mann road is rapidly developing into a great Ontario system, and its latest acquisition is the Rathbun line, and touching Deseronto, Napanee, Newburgh Harrowsmith and Sydenham. It has an extension from Yarker, north to Bannockburn, and runs also into Kingston over the Kingston and Pembroke line, from Harrowsmith, south

The purchase of this road will alter somewhat the policy of the C N. R., in regard to Eastern Ontario

They will construct, as already announced, their line from Toronto to Trenton, and this is now being constructed, and will be finished by Christmas; but they will also extend this line from Trenton, (south of the Grand Trunk) through Belleville to Deseronto, on the Bay of Quinte, making the most southerly line in the County of Hastings. At Deseronto they will get on the rails of the Bay of Quinte Railway, referred to above and run over that line from Deseronto through Napanee, Newburgh, and Yarker. Which latter two points are some distance north of the Grand Trunk, to Sydenham, or thereabouts to Ottawa is only 92 miles, and they propose to almost immediately build from Sydenham to Ottawa by way of Smith's Falls. From Ottawa they have their line now completed to Hawkesbury, into the Province of Quebec, to the city of Quebec, with a branch from this latter line into Montreal.

Some 90 Miles to Build.

In other words, with the road already under way between Toronto and Deseronto, which will be completed by Christmas, the Canadian Northern has only to build some 90 odd miles from the present terminal of the Rathbun line at Sydenham to the Capital, and then the line is completed from Gowganda Junction away north of Sudbury, right down through Sudbury, Parry Sound, and Key Harbor on Georgian Bay, to Toronto, and from Toronto to Quebec; making a third great Ontario system, and doing business into Toronto over all this District and over the feeder lines in less than a year, giving competition to both the Canadian Pacific and the Grand Trunk, via the St Lawrence ports of Montreal and Quebec to the Atlantic traffic, to the imports of Toronto from Europe. This is best illustrated by the fact that the traffic that was most congested in the recent freight jam on the C. P. R. was the imports of Toronto merchants from Europe, which had been landed at Montreal, and have not yet been delivered. The Canadian Northern has its own Atlantic line so it can land goods from Europe and deliver clean up to Gowganda Junction, including Toronto.

The C. N. R. has but 400 odd miles to build to connect Gowganda Junction with Port Arthur, and then Mackenzie and Mann will have their transcontinental line completed from Quebec to Edmonton. Only a few weeks ago they acquired the Central Ontario road, running north through Prince Edward County from Picton They also bought up the Brockville and Westport, and the Irondale line making in all some 340 miles recently acquired. This territory becomes tributary to Toronto when the Toronto and Ottawa line reaches Deseronto this winter.

By next year the Ontario end of the C.N.R. system will be able to boast 1,400 miles of road, all making new business, or creating competitive rates for Toronto. The C. N. R. will then be a complete steamship and rail route from Europe to Edmonton.

OLD FRIENDS AT THE FAIR.

Loan Exhibits to Comprise Notable Portraits of Chamberlain and Lord Beresford.

French Government Sending Famous Works of Greatest Classicists.

Whatever may be the opinion of the general public as to the economic views of Hon. Joseph Chamberlain there can be no doubt that he has cherished a deep and unselfish friendship for Canada. Though he has visited our shores but once, he is almost as familiar a figure as one of our native statesmen. It has been the privilege of the Canadian National Exhibition to secure for its Art Gallery this year Frank Holl's magnificent portrait of him, which will probably go down for all time as one of the historic portraits in the gallery of British art.

It is only one picture of interest among scores which have been collected by the famous expert, Mr. A. G Temple, of the Guild Hall Art Gallery, London, England, for a display at Toronto this year. In addition there will be Furse's portrait of Lord Charles Beresford, which has attracted wide attention in England. Scores of the most eminent artists of Great Britain, ranging from Lavery to Orchardson and Luke Fields, will send specimens of their work. There promises to be a vast improvement in the quality of pictures loaned by the Government of France. Such classicists as Baugerrau and Rochegrosse will be seen side by side with great moderns like Claude Monet.

How Other Cities Boost.

August 24.—Here's a paragraph from the "City Hall," a magazine published at Des Moines, Iowa. It tells its own story:—

"The keenest kind of competition has developed between various cities throughout the country in the way of attracting industries. No matter what the advantages of a place may be, it is necessary to get out and hustle if the town or city is to get recognition.

Spokane, Wash., spent $60,000 last year in booming that city. The statistics given out as a result prove that the money was well invested.

St. Paul, Minn., has a publicity bureau connected by the municipality for the sole purpose of keeping the name of that city before the public. The bureau is supported by the city through appropriation.

The business men of Williamsport, Pa., do not hesitate to raise large sums of money to bring industries to that city. "In one hour," says the manager of the Williamsport Board of Trade, "the members of the Board subscribed $140,000 which secured the location of the largest and finest dye works in the world." To secure the removal of the Sweets Steel Company from Syracuse, N. Y. to Williamsport, it was necessary to raise $150,000 and it was done without hesitation.

Cincinnati Board of Trade began work with a secretary and $5,000. It learned that twenty-one firms were about to move away from that city. The Board of Trade ascertained the reason for their removal and worked to overcome the objections, with the result that all but one of these concerns remained. The Board has done great work in presenting reasons why Cincinnati is a good place in which to locate.

Newark, N. J., is working out a plan whereby that city can be well advertised throughout the country. In Trenton the same work is going on, and the same is true of Atlantic City.

Des Moines will spend $350,000 during the next three years in systematic advertising."

C. C. JAMES ON TENNYSON.

Ontario's Deputy Minister of Agriculture Is an Author.

Mr. C. C. James, the Deputy Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, who is credited with having added millions to the agricultural wealth of this province by wheedling farmers into the gradual adoption of progressive and enlightened measures in agriculture, is also well-known as a bibliophile. He has perhaps the finest collection of Canadian volumes of verse extant and his collection of Tennysoniana is also most complete. Mr. James has lately added to the volume of literature relating to the great Laureate a little publication of his own in pamphlet form containing two papers, "A Tennyson Pilgrimage," and "Tennyson, the Imperialist." The first named paper was the result of a little journey of homage to the poet's English haunts, that Mr. James made in 1909, the centenary of Tennyson's birth. The second paper deals with a phase of the poet's career not generally familiar. Tennyson, Mr. James points out, was one of the earliest Imperialists of the type with which we are familiar to-day. Not the least interesting part of the little brochure are the extracts from Lady Tennyson's diary showing that as early as 1870 the laureate was an advocate of colonial conferences in England and declared "How strange England cannot see her true policy lies in a closer union with the colonies." His indignation over an editorial in The London Times, published in 1872, suggesting the probability of the separation of Canada from Great Britain, as a not undesirable contingency, was intense. He stopped the press to include a reference to it in the dedication of "Idyls of the King," which was addressed to Queen Victoria. The allusion ran:

"And that true North, whereof we lately heard
A strain to shame us—'keep you to yourselves,
So loyal is too costly! friends, your love
Is but a burden; break the bonds and go!
Is this the tone of Empire—Here the faith
That made us rulers? This indeed her voice
And meaning, whom the roar of Hougomont
Left mightiest of all nations under Heaven?
What shock has fooled her since that she should speak
So feebly? Wealthier—wealthier—hour by hour!
The voice of Britain, or a sinking land,
Some third-rate isle half lost among the seas?
There rang her voice, when the full city peal'd
Thee and Thy Prince; The loyal to their crown
Are loyal to their own far sons, who love
Our Ocean Empire with her boundless homes."

For the Cook.

Always put a cauliflower in cold water so as to draw out any insects. If salt is added to the water it kills the insects and they are left in the vegetables.

When buying nutmegs choose small ones in preference to large ones, as they have a nicer flavor. To test the quality prick them with a needle. If they are good the oil will instantly spread round the puncture.

To clean a porcelain kettle fill it half full with hot water and put in a tablespoonful of powdered borax; let it boil. If this does not remove all the stains scour with a cloth rubbed with soap and borax.

When making puddings always beat the yolks and whites of eggs separately and use the whites as the last ingredient. When tin molds are used for boiling or steaming puddings, remember to grease the covers of the mold as well as the mold itself with butter. In order to get the pudding to come easily from the mold plunge the latter in cold water for a moment.

Daily Intelligencer.

A Chance to Protest.

Some of the Liberal newspapers are engaged in pointing out that while in the recent Manitoba elections the Liberals polled 45 per cent. of the vote, they only elected 13 out of the 41 members of the Legislature. "A still further analysis," one o fthem points out, "reveals the astounding fact that each Conservative vote in Mantoba is worth two Liberal votes.* * * To elect one Liberal member is required 2,748 votes, while to elect a supporter of the government is required only 1,364 votes." These facts are presented as evidence of the existence of a gerrymander and consequent manipulation of votes, and the comforting assurance is conveyed to the faithful that "there will come a day when the devices of the Conservative party will fall" In the meantime, however, it will interest the angry ones to examine the situation in the province of Quebec. Deducting two seats, one carried by the Labor candidate and another which went Liberal by acclamation, in the elections for the House of Commons 1908 the Conservatives carried 10 seats and the Liberals 53 In round numbers the Conservatives got one seat out of every six; whereas in Manitoba the Liberals secured one out of every three. To win one out of every three seats in Manitoba the Liberals polled 45 per cent. of the vote. To win one out of every six seats in Quebec the Conservatives polled 43.72 per cent. of the total vote. There is only a difference of one and a quarter votes in ten hundred between the Liberal percentage in Manitoba and the Conservative percentage in Quebec, yet proportionately, the Liberals of Manitoba elected twice as many members as the Conservatives of Quebec. Consequently, if this is evidences of a gerrymander in Manitoba it is likewise evidence of gerrymander twice as serious in Quebec. Moreover, as is pointed out, in Manitoba it required 2,748 votes to elect a Liberal, and only 1,364 to elect a Conservative, i. e., only half as many. Contrast these figures with those of Quebec where in 1908, while it only required 2,388 votes to elect a Liberal, it took 11,705, or four times as many, to elect a Conservative. Attention is not drawn to these facts for the purpose of exposing an unfair condition of things, but merely with the idea of placing before these Liberal newspapers a grievance twice as serious as that of which they complain of suffering in Manitoba, and through which they are the gainers. If they expect to arouse public sentiment by the Manitoba showing, how much easier it would be to do so with the case of Quebec, which is just twice as bad. It is perfectly safe, however, to predict that not one of them will take advantage of the opening. It makes a great deal of difference whose ox is being gored.—Montreal Gazette.

General French as a Boy.

General Sir John French has left Canada after an almost end-to-end inspection of her soldiers. But one bet he overlooked, and it was a good bet too. In the route of his march the headquarters staff at Ottawa forgot to mark a stop-over at any of the camps in the Province of Quebec. Montreal officers are somewhat mystified at this apparent neglect and, during the day or two that he remained in the city, before sailing for home, several diplomatic attempts were made to find out from the general himself what reasons were given for not allotting him sufficient time to look over the cavalry at Farnham and the infantry at Three Rivers and Levis.

"That's a conundrum," replied the general laughingly, when the question was put to him point blank. "And, speaking of conundrums," continued he, "I never could get that word straight, much less frame up an answer to one. Cucumbers, cumberers and conundrums all looked alike to me when I was a boy.

"As you probably know I am the only boy in a family of seven, the others, naturally, being girls. At rather an early age I took it upon myself as 'the only man of the family' to conduct family prayers when my father was away. My mother was very pleased at first, but hastily withdrew her consent when she heard my first effort. I said, 'Oh, Lord, cut us not off as cucumbers of the ground'."

Johnny meant cumberers.

CANADIAN QUAIL.

The Sportsman Is Swiftly Driving Him to Extinction.

Just at this season of the year, in early morning or early twilight, you may hear him piping his mellow "bob white" from stumpy fallow or snake fence.

He is a bold fellow in this, his mating season. He seeks the highest pinnacle of stump or fence to send his call of gladness out across a world of sweeping grain or tangled shrubbery.

Close at hand, his mate, a shy, brown-coated bird, is huddled on her nest. That nest rests on the ground snugly hidden in the tall grasses. It holds twelve or fourteen white eggs and, while warming these to life, the hen bird's sharp eyes are alert for sign of her greatest enemies, the sneaking weasel or hawk.

When the eggs are hatched, the nest is discarded for a hiding place in the dark thicket of alders and yellow-tops. The "bob white's" call is heard no more, neither is the splendid fellow seen again on stump or fence top. He is with his mate teaching the animated balls of down, the baby quail, things they must learn if they would avoid the many dangers of the bird world.

Morning and evening, the old birds take their brood out into the open to feed. There the little birds tumble or play or, at the slightest noise in the open, or shadow in the skies, dart and hide. Once hidden, it would take a clever prowler to find the little fellows, so cunningly do they hug the grass and so closely do their feathers blend with its colors.

In a very short time the baby birds' wings grow strong enough to carry them. Every day then the old birds take them for a short flight and after the evening feeding-time lead them in Indian file down furrows, dry water runs and weedy fallows back to the roosting-place, for after the last flights the birds fly hardly ever, unless it be away from danger.

The covey roosts in a little bare spot commanding a view of their surroundings. They snuggle down in a complete circle, heads outward. When molested they take to flight with a thundering whirl of wings that is very disconcerting to the amateur sportsman.

The Canadian quail, like all other of our game birds, is rapidly becoming extinct. This is due to two causes—the wholesale slaughter of the game bird and lack of safe harbors as breeding and roosting spots.

A Hot-Weather Broil.

Truly a hot weather quarrel this recent war between the pen and the city fathers of Edmonton—all over a brick of ice cream. The journal editor is quite wrathy. It seems that in Edmonton stands an institution called Happyland; surely there is nothing remarkable in that. What town in Canada to-day is minus its Elysian Happyland, or Dreamland wonderful banishers of dull care; outside a maze of colored lights; past the doorkeeper smiling and effusive in his brass buttons the glorious strains of "Has Any One Here Seen Kelly" breaking on the ears? "All for a dime, ten cents," barks the florid proprietor. The performance is served up. You watch Jeffries floor Sam Berger, and while you are figuring out his chances with the Big Smoke, the scene abruptly changes. Exit the fighters; the fleeting pictures are now revealing the awful vicissitudes of Bertha, the Sewing-Machine Girl.

But Edmonton's Happyland, according to press descriptions, has none of these features extraordinary. It is merely a plain unvarnished booth—object to sell ice cream. Charitable mission to the parched throngs these days! For many weeks this booth has dispensed the chill confection on every day in the week. Especially on the seventh day did the cones and the sodas disappear—horrible thing! thought someone trailing home from church one Sunday morn. The City Council got wind of it, there was a pow-wow, the chief of police was dispatched to the scene—and Happyland on Sunday sells no more ice cream. Exclaims The Journal:—

"Even in Toronto the good, where the desire to restrict the freedom of the individual runs rampant, the courts have given interpretations to the Sunday observance ordinances which prescribe ice cream as food and admit the right of dealers to sell and individuals to buy the same on Sunday."

Wo, the Poor Chinaman.

Mr. Ewing Buchan, manager of the Vancouver branch of the Bank of Hamilton, is the possessor of a fine basso profundo reading voice; also of a Chinese cook who answers to the name of Wo.

Mr. Buchan is in the habit of reading a passage of the Scriptures to his assembled family every day before breakfast.

Now it happened one day that Mr. Buchan chose for the morning's reading a passage from the Lamentations of Jeremiah. His family duly assembled, Mr. Buchan cleared his throat, and in a sonorous voice commenced—"Woe, Woe and lamentation——"

He got no further, for at that point the door communicating with the kitchen burst open and the celestial cook inserted his head. "You wanta me?" he inquired. Tableau.

In reading the Scriptures Mr. Buchan now pitches his voice lower.

Doctor's Thrilling Experience.

Doctor Boyd of Fort William and a party of nine friends had an experience on Sunday night they will not soon forget. They left with a launch on Sunday for a little tour of some of the islands. Everything was pleasant until the storm sprang up in the afternoon. When they reached the more open water the little launch was at the mercy of the waves. The party was forced to land and finding the soft side of rock lay down and tried to woo Morpheus. Needless to say their sleep was not peaceful slumbers. Morning was a welcome relief as the storm had gone down and let them home none the worse.—Manitoulin Expositor.

For the Children

W. E. D. Stokes, Jr., the Boy Inventor.

William E. D. Stokes of New York, though only twelve years old, has made a name among wireless experts by an invention. He designed what is called a "receiving box." This contrivance not only catches dispatches sent in the ordinary code used by the Marconi and De Forest systems, but reproduces the words and sounds of wireless telephony in volume deep enough to be heard at a distance of several feet from the apparatus. Working alone on the roof of his father's hotel in New York, the youngster made his important discovery. Recently he attracted attention at Washington, where he appeared before a senate committee in opposition to a measure to prevent any but authorized companies from taking wireless messages from the air.

Fox, an Outdoor Game.

This is suitable for a boys' game and is better played out of doors.

A space is marked out for the fox's den, and the fox and the rest of the players use their handkerchiefs—knotted at the end if they prefer—in attacking each other. Fox, to show he is ready to begin, shouts out, "Twice five are ten." The others call, "Fox, fox, come out of your den." Fox comes out hopping on one foot and trying to hit any of the players on the back with his handkerchief, they hitting him if they can. If fox while hopping succeeds in striking any player the one hit becomes fox and is driven to his den by the handkerchiefs of the others. After reaching the den he may give warning and hop out as the other one did.

Should fox in his efforts to hit his enemies lose his balance and use both feet he is driven home under the blows of the handkerchiefs.

The Game of Post Town.

This is an interesting game for children of nine or ten who know something of geography and are familiar with the names of places. One is chosen postmaster. Each child takes the name of any town she prefers. If there are too many for the postmaster to remember he writes down the names and holds the list in his hand. He then calls out, "I am going to send a letter from Richmond to Boston," for instance. The children bearing the names of the towns mentioned exchange seats. If they fail to do so the one who does not respond pays a forfeit. Occasionally he exclaims, "General post!" Then every one must exchange places. If any one does not secure a seat she must pay a forfeit, and these are redeemed when the game is over. Excitement is added if long postal routes, including many cities, are named.

Forbidden Letter.

The idea of this game is to try how many sentences can be spoken without containing a certain letter which has been agreed upon. Supposing, for instance, the letter "f" is not to be introduced, the first player might ask, "Is this a new game to you?" The second player could answer: "Oh, no! I played it years ago, when quite a youngster."

He would perhaps turn to the third player and ask, "You remember it, do you not?" The third player might answer, "Yes, but we used to play it differently." This player, having used a word with an "f" in it, must pay a forfeit and remain out.

The answers must be given at once without hesitation, and the player who avoids for the greatest length of time using a word containing the forbidden letter wins the game.

And peanuts,
But never a pound of jumps.

We've walnuts and chestnuts
And corn that pops.
Oh, oh, I forgot!
It's a pound of hops!

TOURISTS IN BERLIN.

They Should Be Careful In Selecting a Boarding House.

A case has occurred in Berlin showing the unpleasant experiences which may occur to tourists who engage board in a boarding house not well recommended. Three American women were the victims.

In the new part of the town, the so called American quarter, a neat sign of "Pension" attracted the women, and they engaged board there. According to the German custom, they paid the boarding house charges a month in advance. Two days afterward the landlady went to a hospital, and the next day the domestic girl of all work took her departure. Food and service ceased, and the host, a count, moved into the attic for some reason unknown to the Americans.

The Americans protested that their money should be refunded or they should have food and service. The host told them he could supply neither as he has no money. The women consulted their friends and were advised to make the best of the bargain and camp out for the rest of the month.

Some days later the host appeared in their rooms and proceeded to remove the curtains from the windows. The women appealed to an American who happened to be calling, but the only result of his interference was a scuffle with the landlord, who knocked him out with a bunch of heavy keys.

Two of the women then sought police aid at the nearest station, a mile away. The officials laughed at them, telling them it was a private matter and no concern of theirs.

In the meantime the landlord returned with two men and took down the curtains, informing the women that he would be back at 5 o'clock the next morning to remove the furniture. The women then sought the aid of the American consul general, who advised them to move out quietly and offered them hospitality for the night. They accepted the offer, but did not get their things away before half past 3 in the morning.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Is the best of all medicines for the cure of diseases, disorders and weaknesses peculiar to women. It is the only preparation of its kind devised by a regularly graduated physician—an experienced and skilled specialist in the diseases of women.

It is a safe medicine in any condition of the system. THE ONE REMEDY which contains no alcohol and no injurious habit-forming drugs and which creates no craving for such stimulants.

THE ONE REMEDY so good that its makers are not afraid to print its every ingredient on each outside bottle-wrapper and attest to the truthfulness of the same under oath.

It is sold by medicine dealers everywhere, and any dealer who hasn't it can get it. Don't take a substitute of unknown composition for this medicine of KNOWN COMPOSITION. No counterfeit is as good as the genuine and the druggist who says something else is "just as good as Dr. Pierce's" is either mistaken or is trying to deceive you for his own selfish benefit. Such a man is not to be trusted. He is trifling with your most priceless possession—your health—may be your life itself. See that you get what you ask for.

soon give us the needed clues; but this strange killing is a grave enigma!—From all I can learn, his life was beyond reproach. I have been ordered to avoid excitement. I can do little yet!—The bank is acting for me. So you see,—escaping from the red death flashing from Indian rifles, I came here to find cowardly murder stalking near me at home!—Life is a strange medley. I wish I had your clear head to aid me. I will avenge the death of my poor agent, if it takes me years to run down the assasin. There is not a trace, not a clue, they tell me!—I must stop, now; I will write you again in two or three days, when I have seen the detectives and Chief. I am tired of all this excitement! I wish they had left me at Headquarters! If this reaches you, dear Vinton, remember I am always,

"In heart and soul,
"Yours,
"Jack Gordon."

"Beverly!" said Maxwell, as he laid down the letter. "It seems that trials beset us all. Thank Heaven! Jack is getting along well!—His troubles are only in his surroundings. Would you go and see him when you reach the East?"

"Let us get out of this death-trap, first, Vinton!" said Seaton wearily, as he threw himself down on the rude couch. "I am tired! We march at daybreak, as usual?" Maxwell nodded. "Poor Jack!" Seaton muttered. In half an hour the distant boom of the mountain-owl was the only sound breaking the stillness of the wild wastes! They slept in peace. For the sneaking Apaches found their lines well guarded.

Three weeks later, after toilsome marches over the endless sands, jaded and worn, the little train, dragging its way over cactus-studded mesa, and crawling under the frowning walls of the "Picacho Gorge," wound into Camp Lowell

Furtive Indian attacks, vexing thefts of animals, drought, disease, hardships, and dangers left the two wearied friends together; knitted even closed in friendship by the perils past!—Maxwell's letters had been sent on from Tucson to the Fort. While Seaton enjoyed a brief rest, gazing at the now friendly Stars and Stripes, Maxwell, returning from his official report to the Commander, cried: "Seaton! Here's a bushel of letters, and I am ordered to report for detailed instructions to the Chief of Engineers at Washington. A system of military roads is to be laid out. We shall cross the southern road together, and please God we'll see Jack soon again!"—The astounded Southerner marvelled, reading his still unwelcome reports of further failure in the quest, while Maxwell dismissed his tired troopers to a well-earned rest.

CHAPTER IV.

A Baffled Chief—St. Cecilia—Pinkerton's Man—Three Letters—Mr. Jenks of California—A Surprise—Irene Hope's Peril—The Burned Evidence—That Janitor's Boy — A Tell-Tale Glove—Love's Magic Wand.

Stalwart Jack Gordon was most artistically swathed in slings and bandages, as he lay in a spacious second-storey apartment in Doctor Selfridge's house, in the sacred precincts of Lucas Place, where the blue blood of St. Louis most does congregate.

"Bring me a mirror, Jackson!" he cried. His negro foster-brother handed him the glass. "Jackson! I'm not as handsome as before that tumble in Black Kettle's Camp!" The black grinned and rolled his eyeballs. Jackson's "feats of arms" on the Lieutenant's second horse, "Kicking Bill," during the Washita fight, made him the one dusky honorary member of the "Seventh." The Lieutenant was rather battered looking!—"You'se all right, Massa Jack!" the negro cried: "Give me ole St. Louis, an' no mo' Injins, just now."

"Don't get proud, Jackson. The girls here are more dangerous, they say, than the Indians! Well! no one can fall in love with me now, thank God!" Gordon grimly remarked. "Any letters?"

"Hyar's a half bushel!" said the valet, depositing a mass of envelopes on Gordon's bed.

"Heavens! how that girl does sing!" muttered Jack, as he eagerly tore open several letters picked from the mass. "Open the door, Jackson!" he cried, pausing with Maxwell's letter in his hand. The black grinned. The rich notes of a woman's voice floated up the stair, filling the room with the thrilling notes of "Adelaide." It was the perfection of melody.

"Miss Irene done sing like an angel!" Jackson complacently remarked.

"What does the young lady look like, Jackson?" Gordon asked, with affected carelessness.

"She's a beauty; like our 'Blue Grass' ladies," the negro said; "she's powerful handsome."

"Ah!" absently remarked Jack. "I can't see her for some days yet. By Jove! how time flies. Two months already since poor Neill's murder. I hope this new Pinkerton man will dig up the facts. These local police are mere numskulls! That poor girl in Detroit! Well, she gets his property, anyway. I must wade through these other letters. Three from Maxwell. Two from Bev. Seaton." He tried to read the friendly lines. Irene Hope's voice rose and fell. "Jackson! close that door!" he cried. "By Jove! Her singing sets every nerve tingling!—If I was only up!—Well! Selfridge will have these bandages off me next week."

Gordon read the letters of his comrades. "Good! Maxwell has a soft billet till spring. Special duty in the Chief of Engineers' office. Balls, receptions, parties,—all the Washington society racket. He will take a vast fund of experience back to Arizona. I hope not a wife! A pretty town girl is no help in building Arizona roads to a man working with a rifle in one hand and a compass in the other! He did have a jaunt from Camp Bowie to New Orleans! And here's Bev. Seaton! At New York! Still on his 'business'; what the old Harry is he up to? Why can't he come here to me?" Jack grumbled. "He's a queer lot, anyway! I must get hold of him!"

"And what's this? Regiment, Kentucky, police reports, bank business. Jackson, put these all away!—I'll read them later! I'm glad Seaton and Maxwell got safely over New Mexico and the Comanche country." Gordon dallied with a selected letter from one of the fair "Kentucky cousins," who veiled her glowing admiration of the cavalryman under the elastic relationship of the South. She was the nearest to Jack's heart when the "Seventh" swung out of Camp Supply to the soldier's best beloved parting hymn: "The Girl I Left Behind Me."

"Gentleman to see you, Sah! Chief of Police, Sah!" announced Jackson, showing the officer in, with much bowing and scraping.

"Well! Chief!" said Gordon wearily.

The bearded Police commander shook his head. "Nothing yet, Lieutenant! we cannot fasten a clue. And how are you, Mr. Gordon?"

"Oh! Selfridge will have me up, and able to drive out in a week or so. He will get this rig off soon," said Jack, indicating his multifarious harness. "I must get out, and stir you fellows up! What's that Pinkerton man doing?"

"He's working blind," said Captain Murray, with dignity. "I, of course expect you to give me his news; he will report only to you. The coroner's verdict, 'Death at the hands of some person or persons unknown,' is likely to stand. I'll tell you one thing Lieutenant!" The Chief paused pompously.

"Well!" Jack whipped out impatiently.

"This murder is a neat bit of outside work. Egbert Neill brought that quarrel here with him!—It's an old score!—If our local criminals attempted robbery, they would have doubled up on him, and got their plunder! If it was a personal quarrel here, he would have been shot on the street!—We are in the South, don't forget! Every one knows that the funds of the Estate were kept in the bank."

"True," mused Gordon, "but his life

"Blameless life," sneered the Chief. "I wish I dared show you my private note-books. Human nature is the same everywhere! Every man has his weakness all have their enemies. Neill was watched, dogged and killed by some was blameless he had no enemies." one who knew his daily habits, and wished to throw the apparent blame on our local 'crooks.' Now, no one assassinates a well-known man here for mere pleasure. Some woman is mixed up in this."

"Nonsense! Chief!" roared Jack "Why, he was about to be married."

"All right!" coolly rejoined the Police Captain; "of course, it was the other woman."

"What do you mean?" indignantly blurted out Jack.

"At thirty-five there's always another woman; often at fifty. With the young fellows, they show up at the marriage; with the old ones, when they die! In one case, they want the man in the other, only the cash! In this case it was the man! Neill was a devilish fine looking fellow."——

"I won't believe he was a Lothario!" Gordon persisted.

"All right!" said the Chief, carelessly. "Well, I hope you will be out soon. Besides your detective work, you had better go down to the Cathedral and hear Miss Hope sing. Have you met her yet?" There was a roguish gleam in the Chief's eye.

"Not yet," grumbled the wounded soldier. "I hear her every day below Next week I'll shave this straggling beard off. I may drag my uniform on once more. I am tired of this granny business in bed. Who is she, Chief? Gordon's curiosity was whetted. "That music!"

Captain Murray rose. "She came here two years ago. Dr. Selfridge took her up. Her magnificent voice gave her the leading place in the superb Cathedral choir. She's very retired; all our youths vainly sigh for her. She goes nowhere, save to drive with the Doctor or Mrs. Selfridge. You are a happy man to be so near her All our young cavaliers will wish to such you. She is distinguished; delicate in manners; beautiful."

"Ah! is she then so beautiful, Chief? You are quite romantic."

"Seeing is believing. Look out for your heart! By the way, I have a letter from a California man,—Horace Jinks, or Jenks! He says Neill has a half interest in a valuable ranch there, with him. He is coming on soon; he has some papers of poor Neill's."

"I suppose the temporary administrator will examine them," Gordon remarked.

"Yes, and turn them over to the bank as the regular trustees and executors, when the will is proved. I'll send this man to see you when he comes. He's red hot about the murder."

"And Neill's fiancee,—still mourning?" Gordon asked.

"[illegible]! She will not be able to come down for some time yet. It was a terrible shock. I'm told they were tacitly engaged when he went to the war, and they only waited for his surely fixed fortunes to marry. Miss Agnes Herndon is a lovely woman, I'm told, about twenty-seven, and of a splendid Detroit family. She has fallen into a nice inheritance."

"I'm very sorry for her! I'll get up and hunt the murderer down. Your woman theory is wrong, Chief! Don't fail to send Jenks up to see me; he may know Neill's secret history." The baffled Chief of Police left, with cordial salutation. As he passed down

COMMISSION IS BUSY

Technical Education Inquiry In East Is Concluded.

After Thirty-Three Days In Maritime Provinces the Members Are Journeying West Again to Make a Trip Through Ontario—Will Start In St. Catharines To-morrow Evening—Have Examined 400 Witnesses.

Toronto, Aug. 29.—That the Royal Commission on Technical Education is having no holiday excursion is the testimony of Thomas Bengough, the secretary and official reporter of the commission, who has returned to the city from the Maritime Provinces with several members of the commission, prior to an Ontario tour.

"In thirty-three days we visited thirty-three different cities and towns, notwithstanding the fact that we gave three days each to Halifax and St. John, and two days each to Truro and Moncton," he said yesterday. "How did we do it? By dividing the commission into two sections, by holding evening sessions until nearly midnight, then traveling during the night to the next point. The industries were inspected, in some cases more thoroughly than by the official factory inspectors; the agricultural possibilities were seen by long tours into the country districts; conditions—educationally, industrially and socially—were discovered by examination of nearly 400 witnesses on oath, and by the procuring of printed and other documents, photographs, specimens, etc."

The commission will be the guests of the Industrial Exhibition Association during their stay in Toronto, and on Thursday, Sept. 1 (Manufacturers' Day), will be entertained at the directors' luncheon, when several of the commissioners will speak on the work accomplished and proposed.

To-day the Ontario tour will begin, the commissions being divided into two sections, in order to cover the ground within the time limit set by the Minister of Labor, under whose auspices the work of the commission is being done.

The following places will be visited by the sections:—

Western section — Rev. Dr. Bryce, chairman: St. Catharines, Aug. 30; Paris, Aug. 31; Collingwood, Sept. 6; Woodstock, Sept. 12; Goderich, Sept. 13; Listowel, Sept. 14; Owen Sound, Sept. 15.

Eastern section—Hon. J. N. Armstrong, chairman: Barrie, Sept. 9; Orillia, Sept. 10; Lindsay, Sept. 12; Oshawa, Sept. 13; Cobourg, Sept. 14; Cornwall, Sept. 15; Smith's Falls, Sept. 16.

The commission will then unite and visit Montreal, Sept. 19 and 21; Macdonald College, St. Anne de Bellevue, Sept. 20; Quebec City, Sept. 22-23.

The Ontario tour will then be resumed, the entire commission visiting Ottawa, Sept. 26 and 17; Brockville, Sept. 28; Kingston, Sept. 29-30; Belleville, Oct. 1; Peterboro, Oct. 3; Toronto, Oct. 4-5; Hamilton, Oct. 6-7; Niagara Falls, Oct. 8; Brantford, Oct. 10; Galt, Oct. 11; Guelph, Oct. 12-13; Berlin, Oct. 14; Stratford, Oct. 15; London, Oct. 17-18; St. Thomas, Oct. 19; Chatham, Oct. 20; Windsor and Walkerville, Oct. 21-22.

Woman Smuggler Caught.

New York, Aug. 29.—According to customs officials, Mrs. I. Reynolds Adriance, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., social, prominent and wealthy, will be summoned to appear at the customs house to-day on a charge of smuggling. Arriving yesterday, she failed to mention in her declaration of dutiable goods a $6,000 pearl necklace, found after a search, hidden in her hat.

A woman inspector found a gold mesh purse which Mrs. Adriance insisted she had bought in this country, until Miss Helen Adriance, her daughter, exclaimed: "Oh, mother, why don't you tell them we got it in Lucerne. I wanted you to do that at first."

She is liable to a fine of $5,000 and to obtain possession of the jewels she must pay a penalty of twice their value, $6,000, plus a duty of 60 per cent.

Queen's Own Rifles Arrive.

Aldershot, Aug. 29.—Thirty thousand people and eight bands turned out to welcome the battalion of the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, which arrived here Saturday evening from Liverpool. It was a great reception. The streets were gaily decorated, and the British people were enthusiastic in their welcome of the fine-looking, well-drilled body of militiamen from the great Dominion. There was more excitement in the town and camp on the Bagshot Sands when the Canadians detrained than there was when the troops returned from South Africa.

Two Killed In Auto Wreck.

Syracuse, N.Y., Aug. 29.—Mrs. Edgar A. Emens of this city, wife of Prof. Emens of Syracuse University, and Miss Martha Emens, sister of Prof. Emens, were killed yesterday afternoon, three miles south of Geneva, when a fast express crashed into the rear of the automobile while they were crossing the tracks. Prof. Emens is in a serious condition. The chauffeur was badly bruised.

Whirlpool Incline Railway Burns.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 30.—The Whirlpool Rapids Incline Railway on the American side, with the buildings at the top of the bank and at the base at the waters' edge, were totally destroyed by fire at 12.20 this morning, also the Suspension Bridge grist mill, just north of the elevator building. The total loss will reach $70,000.

Greek Not Compulsory.

Oxford, Eng., Aug. 29.—The council of Oxford University, which has been considering certain reforms suggested by Lord Curzon of Kedleston, chancellor of the university, has issued a voluminous report, which recommends that Greek cease to be a compulsory study.

Contrary to the general belief that hard woods give more heat in burning than soft, Government experts have found by tests that linden, a very soft wood, has the greatest heating power, with fir, another soft wood, next.

Automatic Housekeeping.

Automatic housekeeping as understood by the Englishwoman implies orders given to the cook and to others who minister to the wants of the household in such a way that the mistress is saved the trouble of thinking of every small thing that needs seeing to and yet each detail receives expert attention. The sweep has orders to come on certain days of the year, the window cleaners on a certain day each fortnight or so; the window boxes and inside flowers receive regular care from the florist, etc. Even the breakfast, luncheon and dinner menus are mapped out by the month, subject, of course, to certain unforeseen changes. Carefully thought out and checked from time to time, the system has many merits if not carried to excess. The ordering of meals wholesale is the detail that may most readily lead to extravagance and waste.

A conductor on an English railroad who recently retired after half a century of service had traveled 2,350,000 miles

Teaches Correct Speech.

A woman of culture and travel has made a glorious success teaching correct speech, says the Delineator. It is surprising how much incorrect speech there is among our educated people. They cling to provincialisms, incorrect pronunciations, wrong use of words and unmusical intonations. The southerner holds to the soft r-less utterance of his "mammy" days, the middle westerner flattens all his vowels, and the Bostonian throws his r's completely out of joint. This woman undertook to correct such errors and teach a pure, perfect English speech to a few young women. She became so successful that she was compelled to start a school of correct English, which has grown to great proportions. This particularly promising field is open in every town in America.

A NEW WEAVE OF SWEATER

The Long Effect in These Coats Is Smartest.

FOR THE GOLFING GIRL.

If any girl can go through the summer without a sweater she is a rare specimen of femininity. Its uses are infinite and too many to enumerate. Each year the type of sweater varies. Last season we had the long style, and this summer the longer lengths are still modish, but the difference in this year's sweater is in the weave. The illustration shows one of the newest and smartest of the season's weaves, a broad fancy stripe, which is very becoming to the figure.

Charge It to the Woman.

That cheerful farce known to the public as an "inquiry into the causes of the cost of living" assumes more amazing proportions day by day. Somebody or something is to blame for the prohibitive prices which mock our indigence, and under no circumstances may the sensitive feelings of the protectionists be hurt. Consequently political economists who are not calm enough to share the frank indifference of congress offer us strange and artless solutions of a problem which has grown too formidable for play, says Agnes Repplier.

The most original of all these suggestions comes from an instructor in economics in the Wharton School of Finance at the University of Pennsylvania, who holds that food is dear because women buy it and women "have no basis for estimating the value of what they spend." Money to a man represents so many hours or days of labor. Money to a woman stands for no economic effort. The price of all commodities is unreasonably dear because of the "extravagant willingness of women to pay for them."

If this be true all that is needed to reduce the cost of living is that men shall shop and market. The poulterer will not venture to ask $2.50 for a pair of chickens; the dairyman will blush at the mere thought of demanding 50 cents a dozen for eggs when confronted by the wage earner of the family. Hogs were quoted recently at a figure calculated to make these lordly animals swagger in their sties, but they will soon be reduced to humility and moderation if the father of the family buys the morning sausage. Even the cook will cheerfully accept $4 a week instead of $7 when her master pays her wages, especially if she can be brought to understand that he is philosophically indifferent to his food and that it was only the "extravagant willingness" of her mistress to pay her $7 which made her ask so much.

The Charm of Enthusiasm.

Have you ever realized what a charm there is in enthusiasm? Life is so often monotonous that we like occasionally to be wakened up with interest, and the person who is radiant over small things is always a delight.

The girl who carries enthusiasm into her work as well as into her play will find that she holds a winning card. Work that is done for the "joy of working" is likely to be well done. Lack of interest makes for dull routine, remarks a writer. It brings discontent and often failure. The men who succeed are the ones who can inspire both themselves and others by their magnetic personality, and there is nothing so magnetic as enthusiasm. People will follow us, like us and admire us if we have it. It is worth cultivating if it is not natural endowment.

Pleasantness a Tonic.

Don't be afraid of being pleasant. It cannot hurt you and will be as good as a tonic for all you meet.

What though you do think yourself superior to most of your acquaintances, is it good taste to placard your belief by a freezing countenance?

There is nothing like affability to conceal one's family skeletons. A haughty manner is a direct bid for the rest of the world to rake up ancestral secrets that you thought buried.

After a long series of tests German scientists seem to have disproved an old theory that resin is a beneficial ingredient in soaps, their decision being that the washing power of a soap decreases as the resin content increases.

Woman's World

Mrs. Clara Foltz, First Woman to Be Assistant District Attorney.

MRS. CLARA SHORTLEDGE FOLTZ.

Mrs. Clara Shortledge Foltz is the first woman in the United States to be appointed to the office of assistant district attorney. Mrs. Foltz has her home in Los Angeles, Cal., where she was made assistant district attorney several months ago. She is the sister of Samuel L. Shortledge, who is the law partner of Delmas, the man who defended Harry Thaw. Up to the time of the earthquake her home was in San Francisco, but when the conflagration which followed the quake destroyed it she moved to Los Angeles and took up the practice of law there. She rapidly made a name for herself and proved so able in arguing cases that the district attorney finally asked her to join his staff.

Mrs. Foltz has a commanding presence and an eloquent and pleasant voice. Her eyes flash as she speaks, and she puts strength into every sentence, while her language evidences wide reading and original thinking. She is not masculine in any sense and is a stanch antisuffragist. When asked to give her views recently on the suffragist question she declared that there was little likelihood that the suffrage would be extended to women and gave as her reason that the women of the country generally were opposed to entering a field peculiarly masculine.

"Nature itself has decided the suffrage question by making man stronger than woman," she said. "Woman was intended for the home and man for the battle of life. Woman has her own sphere, and it is bounded by the boundaries of family life. Take away from woman the power to look up to man, to regard him as her protector and guardian, and you take away her dearest privilege."

Mrs. Foltz has the following to say about the power of the district attorney's office: "The district attorney is not and should not be a prosecutor pure and simple, because his position and peculiar relation to the people make him an officer of justice and not a mere avenger of crime.

"It should be his duty and privilege to see that the scales of justice do not incline any more to severity than to condonement, and his aim should be not to achieve a record number of convictions, but rather to bring about the attainment of absolute fairness in the trials in which he takes part."

Servant Problem 3,000 Years Old.

It is rather comforting for distraught housewives who have difficulties with their domestics to know the servant problem is nothing modern and not, as has been surmised, an effect of a perpetual war between capital and labor. Mistress and maid, man and master, have always been in antagonism to each other. Reverse the situation and it would be the same, as it has been ever since the world began. A Philadelphia authority rejoices because at Fordham university it has come to light that nearly 3,000 years B. C. the Egyptians were having as poor a time with servants as some people in the United States are experiencing this very day. It was not all rapture and roses in the best families of Egypt owing to this branch of domestic life not bearing proper fruit. From some ancient papyri which have recently been unearthed in a tomb near Memphis maxims have been deciphered that are eye openers. The Egyptians must have had a terrible time in their households when such sentiments as these survive the centuries: "In sooth thou shalt find it hard to satisfy thy servants despite thy earnest desires, for if thou be harsh with them they shall say: 'He is a cruel master. Lo, we shall go!'" Solomon knew what he was talking about when he said there is nothing new under the sun, for it made no difference to Pharaoh's servant, "even though thou give princely gifts of gold [tips, of course] and precious stones to thy higher servants, content is not in them, for they shall say: 'Lo, the master is suddenly grown gracious! We shall go.'" If any more of these manuscripts dealing with this subject are found it is hoped they may be deciphered for the consolation of the world. Misery always loves company, and even these musty maxims of 3,000 years ago are as fresh as daisies.

To facilitate the seating of patrons of moving picture theatres where there are no reserved seats without the use of ushers, a New York man has patented a system whereby an incandescent lamp remains lighted on the back of each seat as long as it remains unoccupied.

BOXES FOR BRIDE'S CAKE.

The Heart Shape Design a Popular Selection.

The statement that it is not what is done, but how it is done, that counts verges on the trite, but it is particularly applicable in the little things that contribute toward a pleasant time for wedding guests.

A wedding cake is no longer kept for weeks and weeks. It is cut into little pieces and sent or presented to the guests and friends of the happy pair. Just how to give this in an attractive form is sometimes a question that clamors for its answer in the rush of the last few days.

Boxes can now be purchased at stationery departments of any large store, and the accessories are within the reach of the majority of brides.

There is a charming little circular box that looks like a miniature wedding cake. When tied with white ribbon or with silken cords that reflect the color scheme of the decorations it is well worth having. The ends of the bow are gathered into the tops of tiny silver bells.

Perhaps the heart shaped box of white is more appropriate. This should hold a heart shaped piece of cake, and the top of the box should be tied down with broad ribbon, fastened under a rosette.

Square forms are always good. The addition of a card with the best wishes of the bride and bridegroom is a little personal touch that is well worth while. Through the knot of ribbon a spray of asparagus fern can be slipped. It lasts for weeks and gives the freshness that is desirable, especially for boxes that are to be sent away through the mail.

To the friends who are present there can easily be given a spray of leaves with a blossom from the decoration of the table or rooms. Tied with a gold or silver cord, a long, narrow box will hold a fresh sprig of flowers. People like to carry with them some part of the festivities. The mania for souvenirs still prevails.

Of course the custom of having the cake cut by the bride herself can easily be observed, for during the reception following the small pieces can be boxed and tied by a special committee of friends and distributed to the guests before their departure.

As to the dreams that may come when the fair recipients sleep with the bride's cake beneath their pillows, who can tell whether they can vie with the pleasure of receiving it in so charming a form?

Tasty Summer Dishes.

It is difficult to find a more tasty entree for a summer dinner than baked tomatoes served on the plate with the meat or in individual ramekins. A little cold boiled tongue or ham mixed with the breadcrumbs filling the tomatoes is a tasty addition. Plenty of butter should be used in seasoning cooked tomatoes of any kind, the butter neutralizing the acid of the vegetable. For the benefit of persons who have never stuffed and baked tomatoes it might be said that a slice is taken from the top of round, apple shaped tomatoes and the pulp is removed and mixed with breadcrumbs, rice or macaroni with or without a little minced meat and with or without onion juice and minced parsley. Melted butter should be used to moisten the crumbs, rice or macaroni. The tomatoes should be put into a baking dish and be baked in a hot oven about fifteen minutes or until they are tender and thoroughly heated through.

The dried pieces of the cheese box may be grated and mixed with rich cream seasoned with salt and paprika and left to stand and ripen for a day. The result is an excellent cream cheese which may be served with the salad course or for a supper. Sour cream may be employed.

For a timely luncheon dish cover the bottom of a baking dish with cooked fresh or canned asparagus cut into short lengths, turn over it some rich white sauce and then break on the top an egg for each person to be served. Bake until the whites of the eggs are set.

Electricity For Stains.

There seems to be no limit to the uses to which electricity can be put in the household.

The scientists are learning to harness it up into a first rate maid of all work and making it do everything, from washing the clothes to rocking the cradle, or they would if they had cradles in these up to date households.

But one of the newest uses to which electricity has been put is that of a speedy spot remover.

A technical magazine says that a new electrolytic bleaching apparatus has been invented which enables a woman to remove within two or three minutes any accidental stains from articles such as tablecloths, lace, embroidery work, etc. Tea, coffee, wine, fruit, ink of any color, may all be effectively and inexpensively removed within a few minutes, and above all, the electrolytic method does not destroy the fabric of the article treated.

A new machine separates the whites and yolks of opened eggs by allowing the former to pass through a sieve and automatically ejects bad eggs, which will not separate, their weight tripping a tray.

Points For Mothers

What becomes of precocious children when they grow up? Nobody knows. It is a good thing that average gets hold of them or we would be a land overflowing with geniuses. There would be so many of them that common people would not be missed from the directory, says an exchange.

As a matter of fact, the men and women who are doing things when they are fifty years old are not the ones who were pointed out on children's day. Very often precocity is a flower that blooms early and withers early. Even the big men and women who stand out in history were commonplace children, while their precocious companions sleep in obscure graves. The most precocious thing George Washington did was to lay low the historic cherry tree, and this is more than duplicated each day by boys who never rise to dizzier pinnacles than school directors.

Too often the boy who stood at the head of the spelling class comes when he is forty years old to the boy who stood next to the end for a job. Congress has within its halls today men who didn't learn to read until twelve years of age. Life is not a dash and sprint, with the prize to the child who gets away from the starting line first, but is a day in day out Marathon, with the laurel to the one who keeps plugging along. More life meets are won by plugging than by sprinting.

So let the mother of the ordinary child up and clear her looks. Do not envy the precocious child of your neighbor. Rest secure in the knowledge that the precocious child across the street may be only a morning glory to dazzle for an hour, while your own child, with its glories yet unrevealed, may be a lily of the valley to gladden hearts for many days.

Overattention to Children.

Few mothers realize the risk of overcaution and overattention to their children after they are old enough to play and romp about. A child is happier with few and simple playthings than with a multitude of complicated toys. There is no such good fun or good training as making oneself useful in doing little things like work, and it is cruelty to deprive the child of this pleasure and stimulus. Let the brain and body be trained through hand, foot and eye. Give the boy a carpenter's bench; encourage the girls to do housework. Where possible let both boy and girl have a little garden patch, if only a few feet square, and the care of a few plants. A woman in her home, a man in his garden—this seems to be a fundamental type from which we cannot entirely depart without risk to body and mind. Cheerfulness, sincerity, industry, perseverance and unselfishness may be acquired by practice and constant repetition as much as the art of correct speaking or of playing the piano and are far more necessary to health.

In the Nursery.

Better than chairs are low, broad seats built in all around the wall of the room. The seat should be eight or nine inches high and from one to two feet broad and may be put up by a carpenter at slight expense. The children may slide all along these and draw their toys up beside them, and there will be less danger of bumped noses and bruised elbows from tipping over of the chairs. Little pillows with durable covers may be strewn about for small, sleepy heads or to make the seat less hard. Such a seat is best made of hard wood if the floor is hard wood; if not it should be made very smooth and varnished, so that there may be no danger of splinters.

The Value of Laughter.

A famous doctor once said: "Encourage your child to be merry and to laugh aloud. A good, hearty laugh expands the chest and makes the blood bound merrily along. Commend me to a good laugh—not to a little, sniggling laugh, but to one that will sound right through the house. It will not only do your child good, but will be a benefit to all who hear and be an important means of driving the blues away from a dwelling. Merriment is very catching and spreads in a remarkable manner, few being able to resist the contagion. A hearty laugh is delightful harmony—indeed, it is the best of all music."

Here's Good Advice.

Never give medicine to a baby without a doctor's orders.

Do not use devices for keeping baby's food warm.

Keep the food on ice until feeding time, then warm it and give immediately.

If any food is left in the bottle throw it away.

When the Baby Sleeps.

Do not permit a baby to sleep with its head under the bedclothes. Trained nurses who are supposed to know better are often responsible for this habit. They keep the head of an infant so carefully wrapped for fear of draft that the child becomes accustomed to muffling.

Any one of the 26 Atlantic type locomotives recently ordered by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, will haul on a level a train of 25 passenger, ten baggage, seven Pullman and eight postal cars.

TRANSPORTING DON JOSE.

What Sir William Van Horne Found When He Went to Cuba.

Before Sir William Van Horne built the Cuba railroad, the transportation problem worried none of the Cuban Dons greatly. The country, according to Norman Rankin in July Canada Monthly, lay dreaming under a centuries-old habit of Spanish leisure. "In fact," he says, "nobody cared much whether school kept or not.

"Under the Spanish regime in Cuba traveling was a serious business. Does Don Jose Miguel Fermandez Filipe Sebastian y Herera desire to go anywhere? That, look you, is a matter for thought. He discusses it gravely with his family and friends for a week or so, over coffee and cigarettes; perhaps at the end of that time he does not feel that there is need for instant haste, and loafs over more cigarettes and fresh coffee for another ten days.

"At last, summoning up his energies, he languidly sends for Pedro, and requests that the conveyance be made ready.

"In a reasonable Spanish time (which anywhere else would be an outrageously unreasonable one) Pedro returns. The volanta-wagon is minus a wheel. Que calamidad! What misfortune! Car-r-ramba! Likewise Voto a Dios! It is to repair it. Exit Pedro.

"Business of interval, and more cigarettes. Re-enter Pedro. The volanta-wagon is repaired, but he is desolated to inform the senor that the off mare is ill. Ah, child of a pig that she is to fall ill on this most auspicious day of days! But, Santissima Maria,—with an outward gesture of the hands that casts Pedro a passive wreck at the senor's illustrious feet—the fact remains that the off mare cannot stand up. More impassioned Spanish, and another interval.

"Eventually on some one of those vista to-morrows, the volanta-wagon is at last ready. Don Jose Miguel Fermandez Filipe Sebastian y Herera deposits himself and all his names in the creaky, wooden-wheeled contraption—and spends heaven only knows how many days of hay-foot straw-foot travel in reaching anywhere.

"But it is so seldom that one wants to reach anywhere," says he, "that what does it matter? Except Englishmen and Americans, who are always wanting some mad thing. It is much better to remain in the cool patio and smoke cigarettes!"

"Spiritual Comforts" Provided.

An incident occurred at Farnum camp, where the artillery and cavalry of the Province of Quebec receive their annual training, which illustrates the danger of speaking in metaphors. It is laid down in the regulations of the Militia Department of Canada that during the training manoeuvres the artillery must not fire unless there is a medical officer present with the necessary stores to dress wounds in case of accident. The officer in command of the artillery is held responsible for the carrying out of this regulation, and this year, as usual, a surgeon with an ambulance and stores was detailed to attend the batteries during practice. One very hot afternoon two colonels who were directing the firing became overcome with thirst, and riding over to the medical officer, asked him what he had in his ambulance, thinking that he would appreciate the significance of the enquiry:

"Bandages, dressings, some instruments and two stretchers," replied the medical officer.

"Any 'spiritual comforts?'" asked one of the colonels.

"No. I did not know they were required," said the medical officer.

"Well, that's something you should never forget," said the thirsty officers, covering their disappointment philosophically.

"I promise that the matter will be attended to to-morrow," said the surgeon, and the others rode away.

Next day the two colonels, as the day progressed, began to suffer again from heat and thirst and rode over to the ambulance.

"Well, have you brought those 'spiritual comforts' to-day?" they asked with pleasant anticipations.

"Yes, indeed, I have attended to that," replied the medical officer, and forthwith introduced the chaplain of the 26th Canadian Horse.

A Canadian Punster.

Very ingenious was the manner in which the late Alexander Pirie could handle the English language to make a Canadian pun. There was a discussion in the press as to the possibility of a murderer going to heaven on an eleventh-hour repentance. Some murderer sentenced to be hanged had declared that he was going straight to Heaven. Mr. Pirie's comment was a doubt as to whether there exists a next world for men who have their "necks twirled" in this.

His most famous jest was made when the Scott Act was sweeping the counties, and he suggested that the Minister of Agriculture raise a grade of short horns for use in Scott Act counties.

In 1896, when Hugh John Macdonald joined the Tupper Administration, and came to tour Ontario, with his chief, a great deal of fun was poked at Hugh John, who was alleged to be traveling on his father's reputation. Like his father, he has a very large nose, and Liberal newspapers did not hesitate to say that that nose was his chief asset, and the strong reliance of the Conservative party. Mr. Pirie affected to be grieved over those personal references to Hugh John's nose. "It's a disgrace," he wrote. "It's worse than a disgrace. Snoutrage."

A Clever Lover.

The Montreal man who had lost trace of his sweetheart certainly adopted a novel plan to locate her. He advertised that the lady was heir to a large fortune, and then sat down and waited, while the lady's relatives put forth some strenuous efforts to find her whereabouts, efforts which were at last successful. When Shakespeare—was it?—said "Love finds a way" he must have had in mind some similarly nervy gentleman.—Ottawa Journal.

London Times Has Bouquets for the Queen City.

Writing to his paper a correspondent of The London, England, Times, sizes up Toronto's attractions in these words:

"In the short course of twenty-five years Toronto has grown from a town of 100,000 to a city of 325,000 people. Society is broken into groups. The suburbs have become fine residential areas. Boarding-houses intrude into the old genteel neighborhoods. Jarvis street is not so exclusive. St. George street succumbs to the residential attractions of Rosedale. A city of homes this is if ever there was one, and in the eyes of visitors who explore it thoroughly that must be its chief beauty and glory. It is said now that while Montreal has more splendid mansions and more men of great wealth, in fortunes of from $500,000 to $3,000,000, Toronto eclipses all Canadian communities.

"Cobalt, despite what has been lost in mere paper speculation, has given us a new group of millionaires. During the last few years these have added to the more imposing residences of Toronto as the mining activity in the north country has greatly stimulated trade and manufactures. But the chief glory of the city is its many long streets of attractive and comfortable middle-class homes, and the hardly less attractive homes of its prosperous working population. Nowhere in the world, perhaps, is there a higher average of comfort and prosperity, less poverty, or a smaller criminal population. We begin, of course, to get a foreign population and to hear strange languages in the more congested centres. But the change comes slowly, while from all over the province comes retired farmers to spend their declining days to educate their children in the city.

"The Provincial University has over 4,000 students and grouped around it in affiliation with it are Methodist, Anglican, Presbyterian, and Roman Catholic colleges. Formidable as is the rivalry of McGill, Toronto aspires to be the university centre of Canada, and at least in dignity, efficiency, and vigor the provincial university, now amply supported by the state, is equal to an honorable rivalry with the best universities of the continent. The denominational colleges are liberally endowed, but the provincial institution itself, unlike McGill, receives few considerable private benefactions.

"This, moreover, is a Sabbath-keeping and church-going city. So much is this the case that it is counted as a reproach by many American and foreign visitors. It was not until fifteen or sixteen years ago that the street railway was permitted to run on Sunday. Even then the privilege was only secured by a narrow majority, after the proposal had been twice defeated by a vote of the citizens. There are over 200 churches in the city. This is the stronghold of the Church of England in Canada, but Methodists, Presbyterians and Baptists constitute a great element of the population. There are only 125 licensed saloons in this city of 325,000 people, and they are all rigidly closed on the Sabbath. So all shops and cigar stores are closed, and we have no forms of Sunday amusement. The golfers alone, by an isolated judgment of the courts, are allowed to play on Sunday, but only a few devotees of the game take advantage of the privilege. And yet Toronto has by no means a gloomy Sunday, and in the homes there is little restraint or austerity.

"It is difficult on this continent to resist the stream of American tendencies, and perhaps it is remarkable, in all the circumstances, that British institutions and British ideas still so profoundly influence the Canadian people."

A Rigid Investigation

WILL BE MADE IN REGARD TO THE ACCIDENT AT THE GRAND TRUNK STATION — MUCH INTEREST IS SHOWN IN THE MATTER.

On Saturday afternoon a jury was empanelled by order of Dr. Yeomans coroner, to investigate the cause of the deplorable railway accident which occurred here on Saturday morning whereby Peter Young, a G. T. R. engineer, and Edward Brewer, car inspector, lost their lives.

The jurymen were

A. McGie, foreman
T. E. Ketcheson
J. W. London
E. T. Thompson
J. McWilliams
C. Walters.
D. J. Fairfield
J. F. Butler
H. Earle
H. P. Day
J. A. Roblin
M. McMullen

After being sworn in the jury viewed the remains at Tickell and Sons undertaking establishment, when an adjournment as made until Tuesday evening, when evidence will be submitted. Much interest is manifested in the affair and a rigid investigation will no doubt be instituted. At the session on Tuesday evening the G. T. R. will be represented by counsel and Mr. Carnew will be present in the interest of the Brewer family.

Had the emigrant special, which was westward bound, not collided with the light engine upon which Young and Brewer met their death a more serious accident would in all probability have been recorded. At the G. T. R. station at the time of the collision, passenger train No. 3 westward bound was standing upon the same track as the emigrant special, which was approaching the station as we are informed, at a good rate of speed. In all probability the special would have crushed into the passenger train if it had not struck the light engine. From where the light engine was struck to the point where the passenger engine was standing was only about 100 yards distance Had such a rear end collision occurred it would have been a most terrible affair. It is freely asserted that two semaphores were set against the emigrant special. The correctness or not of these rumors will no doubt be brought out at the enquiry.

The New School Site.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer:

Dear Sir,—I have been giving some attention to the actions of our School Board in connection with the selection of the site for the proposed new School building and consequently the other day I went down and took a look at the Lingham property for which I understand our Board has made a definite offer which totals about $4000 for the piece of land required. I also viewed the Leavens property and while I must admit that the latter site is in its present condition very unattractive, nevertheless, in my humble opinion, as compared with the Lingham property, it is, for several reasons the better site for the new school. But we are at once met with the objection that this site would be too far away from the homes of a great many of those who would have to walk to this school In answer to this it may be said that the additional walk required to cover the distance from the spot where it is proposed to erect the building if put on the Lingham property to the spot proposed for the school on the Leavens site, can be accomplished in three minutes, or a little less time, and the extra walk would be to many pupils rather beneficial than otherwise, from the standpoint of healthfulness. Then, if we compare the most extreme points from which our pupils would have to walk to reach this school with the distances many children in country districts have to travel, in order to attend school, it will be seen that our children would have no very good reason for complaint on this ground. Now, of course, it would cost considerable to level up the distillery land, but when done it would be much more attractive and suitable for a school than the Lingham site. The whole plot would then be elevated and dry as compared with the other. The Lingham property is all, comparatively speaking, low land, but very low near Dundas street—so low indeed that it would at certain seasons of the year be unfit for a play ground and the result would be very wet feet and perhaps rheumatism or other ills, and this could not be remedied except at very great expense. Then again, a nice school building stuck up on one corner of this lot would give a very unsymmetrical appearance to the whole situation. Whereas, on the contrary, if the same structure were placed on the Leavens property, fronting Dundas street, say 60 or 80 feet from the street line and midway between Charles and Ann streets, the play grounds could be at the rear of the building on dry land at all seasons of the year, and the ground in front of the school could be beautified with a nice green lawn and flower pots, etc. There is another great advantage to be gained by placing the school here and that is that one of the greatest eye-sores of the city would be turned into a place of beauty and thereby serve to some extent as a permanent advertisement for the city to tourists and other passing to and fro on the Kingston road But I find it stated in the Ontario of the 25th inst., that on this property "is a waterway the head of which is a constantly flowing stream, that at certain seasons of the year, discharges a very large volume of water, and that it would be necessary to pipe this water at a cost of $800 or perhaps $1000, and if a culvert were found necessary the cost would reach $2000. Now, to my mind, this spring is a very valuable adjunct to this property and I am told it is capable of forcing water 17 feet high on this lot. This would deliver water into the second story of the school and water too that would certainly be preferable to that brought from the bay. As to the cost of piping and constructing a culvert I am satisfied that the above figures are greatly exaggerated. The surplus earth taken from the culvert would be profitable to dump into the hollow on the lot and some manner saved in that way Formerly there was (and I think there is now) a 4 x 4 foot drain across this property which carried off all the water even when most voluminous It has been estimated by a competent judge that the stone and brick used on this ground would be worth at least $600 after deducting for cost of taking down walls (including chimney) and cleaning off the brick and stone ready for use. Now the conclusion of the writer is that if the Leavens property can be bought for $1500 (and he believes 5it can) it would be the least costly site, everything considered, and by far the most desirable (when improvements are completed) from the standpoints of utility, beauty and health, as well as being a more valuable asset for the city. To my mind the offer made by the School Board for the Lingham property is more than double what it would bring if sold for residential purposes.

Yours, in the interest of the taxpayers.

The Last Sad Rites.

The obsequies of Peter Young and Edward Brewer, the victims of the collision at the G. T. R. station here on Saturday, took place to-day and both were largely attended, showing the esteem in which the deceased were held by their fellow employees and citizens generally.

PETER YOUNG.

At 9.30 the funeral of Peter Young occurred. The cortege, which was composed of the members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers members of the city baseball league and citizens on foot and in carriages proceeded to St. Michael's church where a requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Meehan. The sacred edifice was filled to the doors by sympathizing friends. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful in design. After the services at the church the remains were conveyed to St James' cemetery, where they were laid at rest.

The bearers were Messrs. V. Brown W. Symons, J. Boyle, W. Young, W Lynch and Goe. Cornish.

EDWARD BREWER.

Under the auspices of the Orange Society, of which the late Edward Brewer was a member, the funeral took place this afternoon. Services at the house in Thurlow Township just north of the city limits, were conducted by the Rev. M. Gilbert Interment took place at the Belleville cemetery. Many were in attendance at the obsequies, including a number of G. T. R. employees. A number of floral tributes were placed upon the casket. The bearers were members of the Orange Society.

New Pastor for The Baptist Church.

Rev. Chas. G. Smith, M. A., B. D., at Yale University, who until recently was paster at the Baptist church at New Haven, Conn., has acepted a call to become pastor of the Baptist church in this city. The Rev. gentleman will not commence his duties here officially until October 1st. He was, however, in the city yesterday and occupied the pulpit at the Bancroft church. His discourse were highly appreciated by the large congregation which were present at both serices. Rev. Mr. Smith is an excellent preacher. In the evening his text was from Revelat'on 3rd Chapter and 2th verse. His subject was "Christ knocking at the door of the human heart."

Death of a Former Resident.

Mrs. Allan Linton, a former resident of this city, died at the General Hospital, Toronto, as the result of an operation which she underwent a few days ago. Deceased was about 44 years of age, and was a lady who had many friends. She was a member of the Methodist Church. A husband three sons and one daughter survive. The remains arrived here at noon toda and were taken to Moira for interment.

An automatic burglar-proof lock has been patented for freight trains. If broken, it sounds an air whistle and sets the brakes on the train.

The damage and waste caused by smoke in the larger cities of the United States each year is estimated at $500,000,000 by an official of the Geological Survey, who says his figures are conservative.

Electric lamps are inserted in the floors of passenger elevators so a person entering a car at night will know just where he is to step. The light is switched on or off automatically as a car stops at or leaves a floor.

CRIPPEN IN ENGLAND.

Alleged Murderer Is Hissed as He Arrives at London.

London, Aug. 29.—Chief Inspector Dew and Sergeant Mitchell of Scotland Yard and two wardresses, with Dr. Crippen and Miss Leneve, arrived at Euston Station at 7 o'clock Saturday night from Liverpool.

Three taxicabs were waiting at the station, and the party immediately was driven to the Bow street police station court, where the accused man and women were formally charged with the crime and then placed in cells.

An immense crowd at Euston hissed and booed the pair when they emerged from the station, but the police prevented further hostile demonstrations.

Dr. Crippen, who was arrested at Father Point, on the charge of killing his wife, Belle Elmore, in their Hilldrop crescent, London, home, arrived in Liverpool on the Megantic at noon Saturday. Miss Ethel Leneve, who went to Canada with Crippen, and who is also held on the charge of murder, also landed from the steamer. She was in charge of two matrons, who journeyed to Quebec for her.

Crippen displayed extreme nervousness during the last stages of the voyage. Effort was made to keep the celebrated prisoners in their cabins during the day, and few of the Canadian soldiers saw them until the time for disembarkation arrived. As the steamer neared the English shore Dr. Crippen grew excited and showed evidence of fear, the first time since his arrest. Those who attended him on the voyage say that the chief concern now of Scotland Yard is that the alleged murderer may lose his reason.

The man keeps muttering to himself, and his conversation with the guards has been quite incoherent. His moustache has turned white. He has a week's crop of whiskers, which give him an uncouth appearance. He will be closely watched until his case has been disposed of by the courts, for fear that he may be given an opportunity to suicide.

Miss Leneve, on the other hand, appeared quite jaunty when she was escorted down the gangway. She is confident of acquittal. Whether she knows anything of the killing of the Elmore woman is a matter of doubt, though it is believed that if she knows anything she has confided all to Inspector Dew.

Roberts Wins Big Prize.

Ottawa, Aug. 29.—The most successful meet in the history of the D.R.A. came to a close on Saturday, with the piece de resistance, the Governor-General's match, when the 150 riflemen who had qualified in the first stage fought out for the big money. The weather was fine, but a light wind was a little tricky and was puzzling to the less experienced shots. The first honor, a particularly handsome gold medal, went to Corpl. Roberts of the 10th Regiment, this being the first big event he has won. In doing so he showed considerable nerve, as at his last shot at a thousand yards he required a bull's-eye to win, and some one unkindly reminded him of it. He was perfectly steady, however, and got the desired five points. St. Catharines, with Major McLaren, 10th Regiment, had the honor of winning second place, and Pte. W. Short, G.G.F.G., carried off third place for Ottawa. Between the Guards, 43rd and C.A.S.C. the capital city riflemen have six on the Bisley team, and carried off a lot of money.

The Grand Aggregate was won by Color-Sergt. Freeborn of the 13th with a score of 358. Staff-Sergt. P. Armstrong was second, Lieut. Morris third, Pte. Clifford fourth, and Lieut. Roberts fifth.

Strike for Closed Shop.

New York, Aug. 29.—Parades of protest broke out all over the east side Saturday afternoon, on receipt of the news that Justice Goff had ruled in the State Supreme Court that a strike to enforce the closed shop involves a conspiracy in restraint of trade.

Bands of the 60,000 cloakmakers, now on strike, marched through the streets, one of them to the City Hall, carrying banners and American flags, and shouting "Closed shop" at every step. There was no violence, but unrest and anger were everywhere visible among the strikers.

Premier at Nelson.

Nelson, B.C., Aug. 29.—Nelson received Sir Wilfrid Laurier Saturday night with enthusiastic acclaim—church bells rang, bands played whistles shrilled, torches flared, rockets shot heavenward, the streets were canopied with electric illuminations while business houses and residences were hung with colored Chinese lanterns. A procession was formed, and the Premier, addressing the cheering crowd from a carriage at midnight, expressed appreciation of the magnificent reception accorded.

Fear for Woman's Safety.

Durand, Mich., Aug. 28.—Increased apprehension was felt yesterday regarding Miss Belle Scott of Schomberg, Ont., who was returning home after a visit with her brother, John Scott of Chicago. She is known to have been a passenger on the wrecked Pullman car, and her brother, who came here to seek her, has been unable to find any trace of the young woman.

If Miss Scott was killed the number of dead will be increased to eight.

Lower Express Rates.

Springfield, Ills., Aug. 29.—The big express companies of the country were dealt the most severe blow of their existence Saturday when the Illinois Railroad and Warehouse Commission promulgated an order cutting in half many of the rates now charged by the companies and making sweeping reductions all along the line. The state commission orders that the schedule of rates fixed by it shall become effective on Oct. 15.

Fire at Peterboro.

Peterboro, Aug. 29.—Electric wires under the first floor of Cressman's dry goods store are supposed to have started a fire at ten o'clock yesterday morning, which caused $500 damage to premises and heavy loss to stock.

Designed to withstand earthquakes, the foundations of Mexico's $6,000,000 national theatre, building at Mexico City, have shown themselves proof against several severe shocks.

ITALIAN IS STABBED

Guiseppe Rizzio of Toronto Hurt in Drunken Fight.

He Is at Point of Death In General Hospital, Suffering From Wound In Abdomen, and Rocco di Sabbato Is Being Looked For by the Police —Witnesses of the Fight Are Very Unwilling to Tell Anything.

Toronto, Aug. 29.—With a dangerous gash in his abdomen, Guiseppe Rizzia, Italian laborer, living at 106 Claremont street, is at the point of death in Grace Hospital, and the police are scouring the city for Rocco di Sabbato, 208 Claremont street, his assailant. The stabbing occurred at the home of the injured man at 5.30 last night in the presence of a dozen other Italians, who refuse to talk of the affray.

A dozen Italians had been drinking in the kitchen all yesterday. Three kegs of beer had been consumed. Rocco, who had just come in from the front of the house, became engaged in heated discussion with Rizzio. He reached into a coat pocket and produced a red razor case. There was a vicious upward movement of his hand and he and Rizzio fell to the floor. Rocco got up and went quietly out and was seen to walk slowly south on Claremont street. Rizzio did not rise and a stream of blood flowed from a long rent in his clothing. It was some time before medical aid was summoned, and then Dr. D. W. McPherson, 556 Bathurst street, was called. He found the man lying on the floor, a cut an inch long on the left side of his abdomen, and the intestines protruding. He had the man removed in Matthews' private ambulance to Grace Hospital, where surgeons worked over him for an hour and a half.

The police were notified by 'phone to the Esther street station at 6.20, and Sergt. Umbach hurried to the scene, picking up Detective Cronin on the way. Cronin picked up a razor case in the hallway, which bystanders said was that from which the razor had been taken, but the weapon could not be found. A search was also made at 208 Claremont street, where Rocco boarded, but there, too, the officers were met with the same shrugs and professed ignorance.

Rocco's trunk was searched, and a letter found addressed to him at 34 Carr street, but readdressed to the Claremont street house. A picture postcard showing the man wanted was also found. The Carr street house was found to be vacant, and at an address in St. Claren's avenue, to which the former occupants had moved, they learned nothing of Rocco's whereabouts.

Rocco is said to be 22 years of age and single. He was short and thick set. He is said to have worked on cement pavements for the city, but to have quit his job on Saturday. Rizzio is 39 years old with a wife and children in Italy. He had been in this country two years.

Inspector Dickson and Detectives Twigg, Archibald and Jarvis kept up a search all through the night throughout the Italian settlements in the city.

It was in this same locality that Pasquale Ventricini committed the murder for which he was hanged in June, and less than a year ago an Italian was arrested in this very house for a serious stabbing.

Toleration Is Needed.

Montreal, Aug. 29.—Mayor Guerin, in attending the laying of the cornerstone of the First Presbyterian Church of Montreal, on Saturday afternoon, gave evidence of a broad Christian spirit.

His worship, who is a Roman Catholic, pointed out the necessity in Montreal of toleration and a brotherly spirit among those professing Christian beliefs. For the eucharistic congress, he bespoke a warm welcome from all classes to the city's many visitors. The remarks of the mayor were loudly applauded.

The new church will unite the congregations of St. Gabriel's and Chalmer's Churches, the former one of the oldest Presbyterian churches in Canada.

Owen Sound Progressing.

Owen Sound, Aug. 29.—With very little opposition the shipbuilding and furniture factory bylaws were carried Saturday. The first authorizes the bonusing of a million dollar project to the extent of $50,000 and the investment of a corresponding amount in stock in the concern. The undertaking is being financed otherwise in Great Britain by a prominent engineer, who has been identified with the largest shipbuilding and engineering projects on the Tyne and other marine centres.

Dangers of Aviation.

Arnhem, Netherlands, Aug. 29.—While the Dutch aviator, Van Maasdyke, was attempting a cross-country flight near this city, the motor of his aeroplane suddenly stopped and the machine plunged to the ground. The aviator was instantly killed.

Skull Fractured.

Havre, Aug. 29.—M. Legagneux, the French aviator, was seriously injured while competing for the total distance prize. His aeroplane struck a post and the machine fell to the ground, burying the aviator beneath it. Legagneux's skull was fractured.

Motor Exploded.

Paris, Aug. 29.—Aviator Ressemann was making trial flights here within the aerodrome when the motor exploded. The aeroplane fell to the ground from a height of 65 feet and was smashed.

Honor for Mrs. Ward?

New York, Aug. 29.—A London cable to The Tribune says: There is a rumor that Mrs. Humphrey Ward will succeed Florence Nightingale in the select circle of the Order of Merit.

Though the earth is adding 100 tons of extraneous matter, such as meteoric particles and cosmic dust, a day, it will take 1,000,000,000 years for it to accumulate a layer an inch thick all over.

THE MATURING WEST

EAST MEETS WEST WITH NEW AND OLD TOWNS IN BOTH.

The Visitor to the West Who Has Looked Upon the Prairie Cities as Prosaic Mushroom Growths Is Surprised at Mass of Fascinating History Lying Behind Some of Them—More Experienced Than East.

The literary discovery of the Canadian West has been the achievement of a very recent period, writes Roden Kingsmill in The Canadian Courier. The Wild West we had long ago from Ballantyne, Butler and a dozen of their followers, but only of late has the Westerner begun to figure largely in fiction or descriptive article as anything but a curiosity. At present, native and alien writers are alike solicited to write of the West as it is, just as if the West as it was yesterday or day before yesterday had been quite a different place. An Englishman, in a recent English review, gives us, with a flowered opulence of phrase, an idea of his surprise at western conditions: "Tanned by the prairie winds, warmed by the glowing sunshine of the level lands, standing where meet the trade currents of East and West, with command over both, the Canadian Westerner has in his grasp a glorious destiny, and he seems capable of living up to it."

Nobody surely desires to speak slightingly of the amelioration of the Westerner's lot which has followed the introduction of such discoveries and inventions as dry farming, irrigation, the co-operative local telephone and its companion, the Government lines, and the automobile without allusion to which no discourse on the West of to-day can be called complete. But other people cannot reasonably be asked to admire the West's performance unless they themselves have been unequal to similar feats. The participants in a long-distance run do not turn around at its end to marvel at one another's speed or endurance—unless, perhaps, one of them is a boy or a weakling from whom nothing much was to be expected. The West, not so long ago, was as sensitive to being snubbed or patronized by the East as was New England when Wendell Holmes waxed wrathy because foreigners displayed their "certain condescension." But though the West is now more urbane—perhaps does a little patronizing itself—toward its cities, it is a reasonable question how much longer it need be regarded as a youngster.

Every so often some writer on Canadian affairs speaks of the "experiment" of a federal country within the Empire. And yet Canada as a nation is in point of fact one of the oldest, in place of being one of the youngest in the sense that our form of government has continued in operation for more years with less alteration than many of the others. Our instrument of government is older than that of Germany, France, Japan, Russia, Norway, Turkey, Spain. The same argument may with justice be applied to the claims of the West. Montreal was founded by the French, yet almost no sign of French occupation remains in the streets or edifices of the city. Even Quebec is much more modern than ancient. On the other hand, not even Winnipeg can show so large an area of brand new buildings, so many acres that were market gardens ten years ago, as are to be found in Montreal or Toronto. Residents of Winnipeg, who in the eighties were offered acre lots on Portage avenue for $100, are not more numerous than Montrealers whose fathers could have bought equal acres on St. Catherine street for a like amount or Torontonians who misguidedly let go generous slices of central property. "How much this is like British Columbia!" said a Westerner driving through dukedoms of Nova Scotia apple orchards. "How much this is like Ontario!" said Easterners who motored with Mr. R. L. Borden through the Riding Mountains when he toured the West four years ago.

In any event, it is only figuratively that we speak of a community as growing old. The only Anglican prelate in Canada who was born in his diocese is the Archbishop of Rupert's Land—and he is the oldest bishop, also. Where shall you find a sleepier—or pleasanter—town than Selkirk on the Red River of the North? It was a thriving village three generations ago when lusty young Ontario and Nova Scotia cities of to-day had not been chopped out of the forest or set atop their coal mines to transmute carbon into gold.

And so it is only figuratively that we may speak of communities as growing old. Greybeards, though near the passing of the Great Divide, move west into the very newest boom towns; babies continue to be born in cities that saw Madame de la Peltrie or entertained Frontenac. If that town is oldest which can trace back a coherent and connected history for the longest period, then we must not forget Selkirk and Winnipeg and Esquimalt. And add Fort Churchill. All can put in very plausible claims for admission to the fellowship of the good old towns. The Canadian press has had occasion to refer to the highly modern energy of Moncton, whose Board of Trade are booming the New Brunswick railway centre with a vigor that prairie-dwellers could not better. Any western community that has gone on doing the same thing—wheat dealing for instance—in an increasing scale for twenty years or so is older, in a sense, than Amherst, which has so broken with traditions of a leisurely past that it is in the front rank of woollen-producing communities; or Sydney, with its burrowing coal mines and roaring furnaces; or bustling St John; or Quebec, which, with Levis, is the third greatest boot and shoe manufacturing centre in the Empire. Away from the railway lines in some parts of the West, or in Ontario, are to be found villages which are stagnant in appearance as Valleyfield or Welland or Sherbrooke are brisk and up-to-date.

If there is a critical period in the life of any town, it is when the last of its old settlers dies. The man who came into the wilderness with his Red River cart and saw the first bushel of wheat ground into flour—in a mortar, maybe—is a character that the East knows not of. The old settler still inhabits the West. The newcomer who was too young to vote—if there had been any place to vote—in the mid-seventies is probably a grandfather to-day. The grandchild of the first white boy born in Manitoba is alive in Winnipeg to-day. The Westerner knows how the death of the oldest inhabitant can be a real climacteric. After he is gone there remains no one who can remember a time when the town was not. And, after all, what town can say more than that?

Although the fisheries yield more than 1,205,000,000 pounds of sea food annually the demand exceeds the supply to such an extent that more than 400,000,000 pounds are imported each year.

VILLIERS WAS ANGRY.

Reminiscence of War Correspondent's Lecture Tour In Canada.

Frederick Villiers, the famous war correspondent, who has declared his intention of settling in the Canadian West, was on a lecturing tour through Canada some half-dozen years ago. Among the places in which Villiers was billed to speak was a Western Ontario city in which lectures are notoriously ill-attended. So much is this the case that the manager of the theatre where the Villiers' talk was to be given did not think it worth while to advertise his coming at all extensively.

Villiers came. The local newspapers recognized the bigness of the man, and gave him a couple of columns of space. These papers, however, did not appear until the evening of his lecture—too late to bring him an audience. When the distinguished visitor came on the platform, there were about one dozen and a half people in the badly-heated house. Most of them had come in on passes. The lecturer looked over his audience with some surprise, but began his talk without comment, and carried it through to the end without abbreviation, but also, it must be said, without marked enthusiasm.

The latter quality he reserved for a little extra speech which was not on the program. In it he delineated in concise, but cutting, terms the character of that particular theatre manager, who had neglected to advertise his coming. The audience, which had applauded feebly throughout the regular lecture, was moved to still more marked appreciation. The thirty-six hands beat as one, as Mr. Villiers continued to outline his opinion of the manager, who was squirming uncomfortably in the doorway. And as the audience dispersed, its members looked in vain for the usual form at the exit. The manager had fled. Mr. Villiers' "roast" is still remembered in that Ontario town as one of the most scathing ever delivered within its borders.

The Story of the Icelanders.

Lately, there has been history on the Red River. A few days ago, a little party of Icelanders filed out of their church and marched to the big steamer Winnitoba for a short excursion. They were a reflective crowd, thinking of the old days. Thirty-five years ago the first men of Iceland reached Winnipeg. From there they pushed out in barges northward to the west shore of Lake Winnipeg. The trip was not very smooth. Sometimes the frail craft grounded; notably when the St. Andrews Rapids was reached. Four days they drifted. At last, the mouth of the river greeted them; then there was a pause till the Colville of the Hudson Bay Co. fleet chugged into sight and hauled the lonely foreigners on board. On Sunday, Oct. 20, 1875, at a jut of land on the west coast known as Willow Point they disembarked from the Colville. Possibly this Sabbath Day was the most depressive that they ever spent in their lives. From the crowded thoroughfares of the east to the trails of the wilderness was rather an abrupt transition. Indians stalked out of the bush and welcomed them with mild wonder. The night were hideous with the barking of prairie wolves.

That was thirty-five years ago. Willow Point is now Gimili of the Icelanders, one of the prosperous immigrant settlements of the Dominion. To-day there are at least ten thousand Icelanders in Canada — great many assimilated. Icelanders sit in the legislatures, publish newspapers; some of the young chaps have won Rhode Scholarships and played football. Such is the making of Canada.

He Was Not Surprised.

"What kind of ducks are these?" asked the visitor in the ornithological department at the museum.

"Labrador," said the attendant, "We paid $1,000 for those two specimens."

"Gosh," exclaimed the visitor, turning to his wife, "he says they paid $1,000 for 'em! I've bought finer ducks for half a dollar many a time. What have you got 'em in that glass case for?" he inquired, addressing the guide again.

"Because they are about the most notable exhibit we have. Those birds were shot in 1856. Labrador ducks are now extinct."

"He says," exclaimed the visitor, turning to his wife once more, "they put 'em in that glass case because they haven't a pleasant odor. And I don't wonder at it. They were shot in 1856."

G. P. Pitched.

A pleasing diversion from the routine of political meetings occurred recently at Melville, Sask., when the occupants of the Government cars challenged the press car to a game of baseball. Since leaving Fort William Sir Wilfrid has been pressed almost beyond his strength, and was entitled to a rest. F. F. Pardee, M.P., was captain of the Government forces and R. H. Patchin led the newspaper men. Hon. Thomas McNutt, ex-Speaker of the Northwest Territories Legislature, was umpire. Hon. G. P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals, pitched for the Government.

Sir Wilfrid was an interested spectator, and after the Government team had defeated the united press forces by a score of 9 to 7 he complimented his colleagues, and said: "You have saved the Government by a small working majority."

Beautiful Girl Prefers Death To Dishonor in New York City.

New York, Aug. 13.—Carefully guarded by police, an unknown beautiful girl, apparently highly cultured and educated, lies in a precarious condition in a local private hospital with a bullet in her breast, which was fired by herself with suicidal intent. She was not a guest of Astor Hotel, but calmly walked through the crowded corridors at midnight, stayed in the ladies' parlor and did the deed. She is a blonde and about twenty-five years of age. A letter to her mother, unaddressed, is signed Norah. She says she was defenceless against insincerity, sordidity and disillusionment of life. "It is really deplorable," she wrote, "that a girl cannot get along honorably in New York. I might have succeeded had I conceded to the wishes of men with culture and money, but no morals." Her chances for recovery are slight.

The police say the explosive was sufficient to blow the entire building to pieces had it exploded.

B.-P. MISSES HOSTS

Hero of Mafeking Arrives in Toronto Surreptitiously.

While Representatives of City and Province and an Army of Boy Scouts Line Up at Union Depot to Welcome the General—One Girl In Scout Clothes Is Attached to the Guard of Honor.

Toronto, Aug. 30.—Because he hadn't been informed of the reception awaiting him at the Union Station and having taken the advice of a fellow passenger that Parkdale station was more convenient to his Rosedale destination—which it wasn't—Lieut.-Gen. Sir Robert Baden-Powell, hero of Mafeking, unintentionally disappointed several distinguished personages, a guard of honor of 300 boy scouts, and a big representation of the general public that had gathered to greet him.

"I wanted to see the slums of the west end anyway," said the eminent soldier, "but I must say they were happy and prosperous looking slums."

"I rode part of the way and walked the rest, stopping on the road to talk to a few workmen," he replied.

The disappointed ones at the Union on the arrival of the C.P.R. train, which was nearly 2 3-4 hours late, were Mayor Geary, Ald. Maguire, chairman of the reception committee, and Ald. McCausland, representing the city; W. K. McNaught, M.P.P., and ex-Mayor Oliver, representing the Exhibition board; J. F. Mackay, president of the Canadian Club; T. C. Irving, J. Castell Hopkins and F. G. Osler, son of E. B. Osler.

Three hundred scouts were lined up from the entrance through the rotunda to the train platform in command of Scout Masters E. F. Britton, McKechnie, Assistant Commissioner H. G. Hammond, and Brigade Adjutant J. K. Stalker. However on the arrival of the train the Toronto boys escorted their touring fifteen British comrades in arms to the Exhibition grounds by way of the old fort. Squads from Haileybury, Brampton, Napanee and Whitby were also in line.

One of the most interesting figures among the boys was a young girl about 16 years of age, Miss Brightwell, who dressed in khaki short skirt and waist with hat similar to that of the boys, accompanied the Brampton detachment as a girl guide. She has only been out from England for a few months.

Major-Gen. Baden-Powell is full of the boy scout movement. He was seen by the reporters at the residence of E. B. Osler on Beau road shortly after his arrival. He was resting on the piazza and on noticing the boys approaching, stepped out to the front door and gave them a warm welcome.

"The scout movement," he said, "is making wonderful progress because the right kind of men are taking hold of it. Lieutenant-governors, ministers of education and schoolmasters are becoming interested in it, because it is an educative movement. There seems to be a general mistake that the scout movement is to secure recruits for the army, where as it is to teach better citizenship, to make the boys men of character, and to make them stronger men in every respect.

"The meaning of the 'scout' with us is frontiersmen, and the life of the pioneer is held up before them. They are taught the questions of health and how to give first aid. In that way we introduce to them the chivalry of knights and inspire them with a sense of public duty. They are taught to use their heads and hands."

According to the chief scout, the boys are given very little military training, because the purpose is not so much to make soldiers out of them as good citizens, and for this reason the scout masters are generally men of imagination, who can employ them in their spare [illegible] at something other than drill.

Gen. Baden-Powell hopes to have some local man to donate a ship on the lake here, so that the boys can do sea scouting as well, and use the boat also as a club house. They would very soon get the call of the sea and be of use in the Canadian navy. His boys were learning seamanship all the way across, and will try an examination on the way back as to what they have learned.

Fired to Conceal Murder.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 30.—Coroner Kerr will hold an inquest into the circumstances surrounding the death of Richard Sims, a legless negro, who met death in the fire that destroyed the Whirlpool Rapids Incline Railway early yesterday morning.

A startling rumor is to the effect that Sims was stabbed in the chest and the building then set afire. It is said that there is usually considerable money kept in the place, there being a thriving souvenir stand, carrying stock valued at thousands of dollars. It is thought that an attempt was made to rob the building after Sims died.

The loss is estimated at $50,000, Woodford's grist mill also falling prey to the flames.

HE DENIES CONFESSING

Dr. Crippen In Police Court Enters Plea of Innocent.

Inspector Dew at Preliminary Hearing In Bow Street, London, Says Suicide Was Contemplated by Prisoners—Miss Leneve Is Charged With Harboring and Maintaining Crippen, Knowing of the Crime.

London, Aug. 30.—Both Hawley H Crippen, the American doctor, and Ethel Leneve, his typist, were accused of the murder of Belle Elmore, the former's wife, in the formal charge read to them in the Bow street Police Court yesterday. Miss Leneve was charged also with harboring and maintaining Crippen after the crime and while knowing that he committed it.

Dew swore that when he made the arrest Crippen said:

"I am not sorry. My anxiety has been too much." He told Crippen that he must put him in handcuffs, "as you have written that you intended jumping overboard." To this Crippen replied: "I will not do that. My anxiety has been too awful."

A card was found among Crippen's effects and on the back of it the following: "I cannot stand the horror I go through every night any longer, as I see nothing bright, and as my journey is coming to an end I have made up my mind to jump overboard tonight. I know I have spoiled your life, but some day you may learn to forgive me. My last words are of love."

Dew also introduced a torn piece of a card on which Crippen had written: "Shall we wait until to-night, about 10 or 11? If not, what time?"

Asking after Miss Leneve, Crippen said to the inspector: "I will do all I can for her. It is only fair to say that she knows nothing about it. I never told her anything."

Dew concluded, repeating a conversation which he had with Crippen during the return trip to Liverpool. Crippen said: "When you took me off the ship (at Quebec) I did not see Miss Leneve. I do not know how things will go. They may go all right; they may go all wrong. I may never see her again, and I want to ask you to let me see her. I won't speak to her. She has been my only comfort for the last three years." Crippen was allowed to see his companion in trouble.

Solicitor Newton stated before the court opened that Crippen told him: "I confessed nothing. I have vehemently and strenuously affirmed I know of no crime and have taken part in none. During my voyage to Canada on the Montrose I had not the slightest suspicion I was watched. The arrest came like a thunderbolt. I could not at first realize I was a prisoner."

Objected to Rizzio's Music.

Toronto, Aug. 30.—Guiseppi Rizzio, the Italian laborer, stabbed at his boarding-house by his fellow-countryman, Rocco di Sabbato Sunday night, is still in a critical condition at Grace Hospital, where it was said last night that he might possibly recover should blood poisoning not develop from the punctured intestines.

Enquiries by the police yesterday disclosed the cause of the stabbing as the victim's objection to music played upon a concertina by his assailant.

It is said by those in the room that Rocco was playing when Rizzio remonstrated. Rocco resented it, and there was a scuffle between the two. It was not until Rocco had gone and Rizzio had climbed the stairs to the bathroom that he discovered that he had been seriously stabbed.

Girls Lack Sense of Religion.

Boston, Aug. 30.—Dr. Stanley Hall, president of Clark University, Worcester, and a prominent pyschologist, in statements made recently that girls turning sixteen years of age are absolutely irreligious, has stirred up a wave of indignation among prominent society people and educators in the Bay State.

Dr. Hall said: "The budding girl is as baffling a problem as the soul of a woman, and the world now knows that instead of no soul at all, woman now has one, two, three or four more than man.

"The young girl is absolutely irreligious in her nature. She sees only the immediate present, whereas a boy looks into the future.

"Her thoughts are turned to rats, puffs, psyche knots, fudge, giggles and other ephemeral things."

Constable's Trip.

Port Arthur, Ont., Aug. 30.—T. R. Folkes, a Dominion constable, has arrived here after one of the most arduous trips ever made by an officer of the law. He came from the national transcontinental construction, north of Pigeon Lake, and for the 300 miles [illegible] in charge of Tony Canea, a raving lunatic, who repeatedly attempted suicide.

Folkes had no other companion on the lonely trip across the lakes and through the muskegs and wildernesses.

Burned by Lightning.

Portage La Prairie, Aug. 30.—Yesterday's lightning and thunderstorm caused the Portage Industrial Society a heavy loss, when the barns at the Island Park were struck and burned. Less than a year ago the grand stand was burned.

The Methodist Church And Amusements.

The general conference of the Methodist Church meeting at Vancouver has decided to drop the footnote to the rules that put dancing and some other amusements in the list of things in which good members would not indulge. Hereafter it will be a matter of individual judgment whether a man will or will not share in practices the father have censured The change in the conduct of the brethren as a consequence of this action will probably not be noticable The good Methodist will go on in his circumspect way because he thinks it right, and the Methodist who is not quite so good will indulge at times in what he has been accustomed to indulge in the past.—Montreal Gazette.

German Manners To Be Reformed.

SIMPLIFIED SALUTES FOR MEN ONE THING PROPOSED — A LARGER PART OF THE GERMAN PRESS REGARD THE INNOVATION WITH FAVOR.

A movement for the reform of certain social usages is on foot in Germany. The reformers say that German manners are far too formal and ostentatious. They object, particularly to the customary method of exchanging salutations on the street. According to the unwritten law of the land two German gentlemen who are acquainted greet each other by removing the hat with a sweeping ceremonious gesture.

In Baden some days ago a society was organized especially to discourage this practice. The members are pledged to meet their men friends by simply touching the rim of the hat in a sort of military salute.

How much opposition the reformers will have to overcome if they are to be successful is shown by the case of an official in the Finance Ministry of Hesse-Darmstadt. As a loyal member of the society he declined to greet his superior official, the Finance Minister, in the customary fashion and used the more democratic "German greeting' adopted by his fellow reformers. Although the society numbers 1000 members in Darmstadt and the Grand Duke himself views its work with favor, the official was found guilty of disrespect to his superiors and fined 20 marks.

A large part of the German press seems to regard the innovation with favor and it is not improbable that in the near future there will be a simplification of German manners.

Horse Got Tired Waiting for Fare.

"Big Ben" Has Had a Cleaning.

WESTMINISTER PALACE CLOCK HAS HANDS FOURTEEN FEET LONG AND DIALS A SCORE OF FEET IN DIAMETER

"Big Ben" has had his face—or, rather, faces—washed. And he caused even more trouble than any healthy juvenile whose loyalty to the making of mud pies causes him to exert every effort to evade the maternal scouring designs. Though it gets no holiday itself the big Westminister clock has taken advantage of the Parliamentary recess to get a thorough landering. For two weeks a number of workmen, looking like midgets against the background of the lofty tower of Parliament home, have been clamberng about swinging cradles and climbing ropes with the agility of sailors in order to give the soap and water treatment to this, one of the most powerful striking and most accurate public clocks in the world.

"Big Ben's" four dials each are twenty-three feet in diameter, while the centers of these faces are exactly 180 feet from the pavement. The figures have a height of two feet, and the minutes spaces are one foot square. The music hall artists have taken up the theme, and mologists tickle English auditor's by describing how "Big Ben" covered "his face with his hands," and all that stuff. But the cleaning force meant business and, contrary to these punning assertions, they took off the interfering hands and sent them away to be painted. This was no thrilling job, for the minute hands, which are made of copper, are fourteen feet long, weigh about two hundred pounds each, and hae the capacity to travel approximately a hundred miles each year. The hour hands are nine feet in length, but even heavier than those which deal with the minute periods of time.

With the exception of this summer cleaning the clock's general health is quite satisfactory. Though fifty-two years of age it keeps perfect time and has not varied a second in weeks. The present day of electricity, however, is to work changes with "Big Ben." Some time ago the gas beacons which illuminated its faces at night were abolished in favor of electric lamps. Now electricity is to put the governmental "clock winders" out of business. They, too, have had their own troubles in keeping "Big Ben" busy on the time circus. For fifty-two years, as at present, two or three men have climbed 374 steps to the clock room three times weekly and put in from three to four hours of hard work each time in turning the winding cranks. The striking apparatus, which operates the big bell, weighing almost fourteen tons, that gives the clock its name, is capable of running four days, at the expiration of which period weights averaging over a ton each must be lifted up their slides by a windlass contrivance. Now, if present plans are carried out, electricity is to perform all the work, and all the attendants will have have to do will be to ply an oil can at intervals.

PAPER TO THE RESCUE.

It Saves Laundry Bills and Cuts Out Dishwashing.

Are we approaching a paper age in housekeeping? Is the revolt of woman against the endless washing of dishes to be met with paper plates, cups and service shells, and are laundry bills to be lessened by the use of paper table covers and doilies? It would be a charming solution. Fancy at the end of a meal just gathering up tablecloth, dishes and all and thrusting them into the fireplace or the waste paper basket! It would be housekeeping made easy. And it is fast becoming practicable, for these paper articles are constantly improving in quality. The only drawback now is the price. When a dozen paper service shapes, for instance, are thrown away after the lobster a la Newburg course, from 60 cents to $3, according to the quality of goods, is gone.

But they are very attractive, these service cups. They come in all possible devices, and as they are fashioned of handmade paper, impervious to grease and damp, any sort of food can be put in them. It is even possible to cook creamed oysters, chicken, etc., in them, so that individual portions can come straight from the stove to the table in paper shells.

There are fancy shapes to serve jellies and ice creams in, with lace paper doilies under them. The paper napkins and table covers are very fresh and cool looking for summer, and those of simple design are not at all expensive. The doilies and centerpieces in lace design are very fine and almost as pliable as those of real lace and linen.

As for the plates, while at first thought the idea of eating off paper plates does not seem inviting, no one can object after seeing them, for they, too, are proof against damp and grease, and they are very decorative. These and the service cups are to be had in designs suitable to the seasons and the different holidays as they come. Hostesses in the country, where help is difficult to procure, will find it a great convenience to have a supply of these paper devices on hand.

Housework Made Easy.

It is clearly every woman's duty when the days of summer approach to lighten her domestic labors as much as possible in order that she may enjoy the open air pleasures and so store up strength and health for the comparatively shut in winter days.

One piece house dresses of calico or lawn are nice because they are cool, easily laundered, do not fade and are always becoming.

To keep the house cool and clean in the easiest way we should have bare floors, small rugs which are easily shaken and simple muslin draperies. Many are using double-sash curtains at windows for summer, and the effect is quite pretty. The lower curtains are fastened to the sash and so raise with the window, leaving the entire space for air to enter.

Heavyweight sheeting with wide hems all around make dainty bedspreads. They are light and easily laundered.

The kitchen floor may be scrubbed with an ordinary scrub brush fastened to a mop stick, so that one need not get down on hands and knees. Surplus water can be taken up with cloth in another mop stick.

A wise housekeeper keeps a paper over the catch-all pan under the burners of the gas stove and changes it often. That's easier than scouring the pan.

On the sill she keeps a small pot of growing parsley, and she always has green on hand to flavor soup and to decorate the meat platter.

AN ANCIENT CRAFT.

Lovers of fine book-binding will find a rare treat in the Applied Art Section of the National Exhibition this year. Such noted English artists as Miss Maud Bird, Miss Gladys Edwards, Mr. Frank Garrett, Miss Mary Robinson, and Miss Irma Rowntree are contributing exhibits of inlaid, tooled, and colored bindings, affording an oportunity to practical workers and connoisseurs for seeing some of the best things that are being done to-day in that craft.

VALUABLE PAINTINGS.

RARE OLD MASTERS DISCOVERED IN NOVA SCOTIA.

Halifax, Aug. 28—Mr. J. Purvis carter, the well-known English artist and art critic, who a short time ago in the course of a visit to Halifax inspected among other oil paintings one of Diana, belonging to the estate of T. J. Wallace, barrister, and pronounced it a Van Dyke of great value, is back in the city accompanied by Mr. Robert Wickenden, New York, a well-known American artist. Since his last trip there Mr. Carter has unearthened another Van Dyke in Nova Scotia. It is at St. Bernard's, Digby, and is a picture of the crucifixion. It is not in the best of condition, owing to its age, but Mr. Carter is certain of the master hand. It pictures a Saint in prayer at the foot of the cross, and is a work of strong pathos and expression. At Digby, also, Mr. Carter located other valuable paintings, one after the crucifixion by Guido, and Our Lady and the Infant Jesus by Francesco Mola, as far as can be judged at present.

Church Union Scores a Point.

At the Methodist Conference church union has certainly been advanced a stage. There, a small majority dissenting, the principle has been endorsed, although the terms have not been formally accepted. The attitude of the Methodists, it must be said, was far more friendly towards the idea than was that of the Presbyterians, at the General Assembly. The latter stood for delay, and were disinclined to push the issue to the point where action will be necessary. As a matter of fact the project is so large, and the interests involved are so intricate, that even the most earnest advocates of the scheme are floored when they come to work out the details of the amalgamation.

One of the things to be considered in the carrying out of the union is the arrangement for education, and the conditions under which the clergy can be trained. By the Presbyterians the collegiate system has been drawn from Scotland. The Methodists, on the other hand, derive their methods from England. It will be difficult to unite colleges having such divergent policies, and such varieties of teaching on matters that are essential. The reconciling of the conflicting practices is also a ticklish question. It is true that the basis of union, as already announced, makes some provision for this feat; but the difference between the itinerancy and the permanent appointment has not really been bridged; Nor have the troublesome doctrinal points been settled. A very difficult question is that mentioned by Judge Maclaren, the transference of the endowments of churches and colleges from the church that has received them to the new denomination. This involves a good deal of legal work, as experience, not only with the recent amalgamation among Presbyterians in Scotland shows, but as our own history makes plain. There, is, indeed, much to do before a union can be effected. This "much," however, does not consist merely of the arranging of legal formalities, or of the settlement of conflicting doctrinal views. It calls, in addition, for the bringing home to all concerned of the conviction that union is the proper policy to carry through.

In order to enforce this view the union argument, instead of being addressed to church courts, must be laid before the people at large. Unless the congregations are convinced unless the rank and file are ready for the change, it is in vain that a change is made. Possibly, the best preliminary to a general union is an amalgamation of a local character wherever possible. If in the small communities, where two churches are doing the work of one, the Methodist or the Presbyterian would yield to the other, the idea of union would take root, and in time bear the fruit for which its advocates look.— Mail and Empire.

COINS AND STAMPS.

(Philadelphia Ledger.)

The change in the coinage and the postage stamps imposed upon monarchal countries by the occasional change in sovereigns affords an opportunity for the revision of these important symbols of government activity which ought to be welcomed. Perhaps the revision is not always attended by an advance in artistic design. The criticisms of some features of the Edwardian coinage in Great Britain show that sometimes the alteration is for the worse, but there is this advantage in the frequent change that bad designs have a smaller chance of permanency and there is always the hope of something better the next time. An Australian associate of the Royal Academy, Bertram MacKennal, has been commissioned to design new models for the coinage of George V., and the artistic folk of the United Kingdom are looking for new coins that will be worthy of the nation. A few of the new Georgian stamps which have already reached this country are not reassuring, but it will be unfair to judge the new series on so slight a sample. It is understood that the new King is an enthusiastic philatelist, but whither this fact will have any effect upon the artistic qualities of the stamps which are to bear his effigy is by no means assured.

M'GILL'S NEW SCHOOL.

Medical Faculty Has a Fine Modern Home.

When the 500 or more students in medicine of McGill assemble for another year's work in the autumn they will find the new $800,000 Medical Faculty Building prepared to receive them.

It is pretty safe to say that none of the universities of the world will afford its students and professors a more practically designed and complete home for their avocations.

As befits a modern medical training college, the first consideration of the builders has been hygienic.

The vaulted passages and corridors are wainscotted with white tiling, which finds place also around doors and windows, where wooden moulding is usually employed. Where wood is used at all, it is old oak, chemically treated to resist fire. The lesson of the disastrous fire which destroyed the old building and its valuable museum has not been overlooked.

The administration department and faculty room are on the McGill College avenue side of the building, and are beautifully finished in oak. Adjoining on the campus front are students' libraries and reading rooms of equally sumptuous design and finish, the leaded windows bearing in colored escutcheons names famous in medical and surgical science from Aesculapius and Galen down.

There are two striking tablets also in the upper corridors, to the memory of G. T. Holmes, M.D., LL.D., and R. P. Howard, M.D., LL.D., both former deans of the faculty.

The class rooms and smaller lecture rooms are on the campus front side on the three stories.

The two extensions, which run almost close to the Royal Victoria Hospital, are devoted on the Avenue West side to pathology, chemistry and anatomy respectively. Dentistry also finds a place on the ground floor, several demonstration and class rooms being devoted to that branch of the science.

In the basement the subjects for dissection will be disposed in airtight receptacles, and preserved by an alcoholic arrangement of great practibility. An enclosed special elevator will convey subjects to the dissecting room on the third story. These arrangements are of peculiar interest, and represent the latest word in anatomical education.

The eastern extension is fitted up for museum purposes. Its distinguishing feature is a central lighting tower, surrounded by massive pillars, and low-tiled walls, with handsome hatchments displaying the special coat of arms of the faculty. The two lower floors will contain the pathological specimens, the uppermost Dr. Shepherd's collection.

These large apartments are at present being fitted up with steel and glass air-tight cases of uncommon design by Messrs. M Edwards and Co., of Syracuse, N.Y.

The building itself was erected by Messrs. P. Lyall and Co., and is of fireproof construction, stone, tiles and steel being the structural material employed. Like so much that is connected with the upbuilding of what is best in Montreal, the beneficence of Lord Strathcona is represented in the new structure, as is the honorable memory of other merchant princes of that city.

Brothers Arrest Brothers.

Hamilton, Aug. 30.—Phillip and John Wintermute, East Murray street, were arrested yesterday afternoon, charged with breaking into the store of Mrs. King, North James street, and with assaulting Constable Joseph Duffy. The officer found them in the store and attempted to arrest them. He alleges that the two men attacked him. His brother John, who is also a policeman, came to his assistance, and between them the Wintermutes were taken in.

Many Still Out of Work.

Montreal, Aug. 30.—Over 100 employes of the Grand Trunk, who answered the strike call several weeks ago, are still out of positions, notwithstanding that the strike has been settled for several weeks. The majority of these are freight conductors, whose former places are still occupied by the men who took positions as strikebreakers with a three months' agreement.

The unemployed men are still receiving remuneration from the strike fund. Some of those out of positions are passenger conductors who, in the days previous to the strike, almost invariably had charge of trains carrying railway officials on inspection trips.

Bears Near Barrie.

While coming into town on the morning of the 9th, Mrs. Thomas Dawson was surprised to see a black bear and cub standing on the side of the road near the home of Alexander Payette on the 8th con. of Vespra. The bears were within 100 yards of the house. At the sound of voices the larger one reared up and stood watching the rig. "Look at him," said Mrs. Dawson to her little boy, "look at him. It's a real bear." The animal stood blinking gravely at the rig and its occupants for a few moments, while the horse manifested a desire to climb the fence on the opposite side of the road. Presently, with a low grumble, containing nothing but satisfaction heard only in bears who have dined right royally on strawberries in the woods, Milady Bruin dropped on all fours and ambled into the swamp, followed by the sleek cub.—Barrie Gazette.

Considerate.

"Have you ever done anything to make the world happier?" asked the solemn looking person with the unbarbered hair.

"Sure," answered the jolly man with the double chin. "I was once invited to sing in public and declined."

NEW FURNITURE.

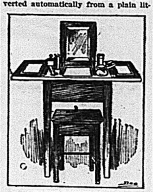
Two Ingenious and Useful Inventions For the Home.

A USEFUL DRESSING TABLE.

The Chafing Dish Cabinet Is the Soul of Hospitality—A Boon to People Living In Small Apartments and In Boarding Houses.

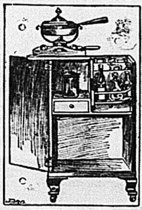
A folding dressing table and a chafing dish cabinet are the latest ingenious pieces of furniture made for the dwellers of small houses and apartments where every inch of room counts and where every clever space saving device that is attractive to look upon and yet adds to the comfort of living is welcomed with open purses. The last word in compactness of arrangement and simplicity of design is spoken in these last examples of the artisan's genius.

The dressing table is a reproduction from an antique adapted to present day needs with present day mechanism concealed in its polished mahogany top, by means of which it is converted automatically from a plain little table that could stand unquestioned in the parlor or living room—or any place in the flat for that matter—into the most convenient and spacious dressing table. The top is divided into two parts. By lifting the leaves on their invisible hinges a center part rises from below like an elevator, bringing into view a well selected toilet outfit mounted in silver, each piece fitting perfectly in its own little compartment—comb, brush, hand mirror, powder and salve boxes and manicure implements. In the middle, lying flat on its face, is a good sized mirror fitted with hinges and uprights that is easily lifted in place after the table is open and folded flat when it is to be closed. Nothing could be more ingeniously deceiving and serve two purposes so skillfully.



FOLDING DRESSING TABLE.

The chafing dish cabinet, so unobstrusive in its outside appearance, is the soul of hospitality. Within its smooth wooden doors are four compartments and two drawers. One, the lowest, is set aside for the chafing dish resting on a portable tray of white opaque glass bound with wood, in which are handles at either end. The glass is quickly cleansed and does not become too hot to touch. In another compartment is a fixed rack for glasses and another, which swings out so as to be in easy reach, for a set of cruets and condiments and a place for pepper, salt and all the things necessary for a chafing dish supper. There is a place for a cracker jar, too, and in the drawers are napkins, knives and forks. Besides, there is room for plates, if they must be kept there, and any number of packages, from which the supper is culled. The top is flat and just the right height for the cook to stand comfortably to stir. It is a boon to the hospitable hearts of people who live in apartment hotels and boarding houses, where nothing tastes as good as something made by one's own hand and where nothing is more fun than to gather around a steaming chafing dish for a rarebit or an a la Newburg in the wee sma' hours. Who among the vast army of boarders has not longed for just such conveniences when restaurants are closed or the trouble of dressing to go out seems the greatest woe in the world?



CHAFING DISH CABINET.

Massage of Hands.

Massage of the hands, and especially the fingers, will do much to keep them soft, firm and youthful looking. The hands, by the way, indicate age more surely than the face, a fact not generally known.

A Beauty Tip.

A skillful doctor of the scalp says she gets best results for the hair by working freely on the muscles that run down the neck at the ears.

A transformer built to test high voltage insulators in a German electric plant develops the enormous pressure of half a million volts across its terminals, the sound of the discharge being almost deafening.

ROSE TO THE OCCASION.

It Was the Chance of a Lifetime, and She Made the Most of It.

The burglar hesitated. Back of him was a sheer drop of twenty-five feet to the ground. In front of him was a determined woman, grasping in her hand a huge revolver. She covered him steadily.

"I won't shoot," she said, "if you will remain still."

She advanced upon him and, poking the muzzle of the gun in his face, reached into his pocket and pulled out his revolver.

"Come in."

The burglar obediently stepped inside the room. All his courage was gone.

"Sit down," said the woman.

He sat down.

She got a huge ball of heavy cord from her bureau and spent the next twenty minutes in tying him up.

Then she pointed out of the window. "Is that your wagon out there behind the barn?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"Thought you would carry away my silver in it?"

"Yes, ma'am."

The woman called her husband, who had been hiding behind the baby's crib in the next room.

"Here, John," she said, "take some of this furniture out."

John came in and got to work. The burglar watched with curious eyes. Suddenly his face blanched. He looked out of the window and saw in the light of the moon what John was carrying.

"What are you doing to me?" he asked.

The woman began cutting his cords.

"I'm going to load you up with all of the old eyesores that we have had in the house for these many years," she said merrily—"all the furniture presented to us at Christmas by kind hearted relatives, all the prizes we have taken at card parties, all the family portraits—everything that we have been simply dying to get rid of."—Life.

AT THE BEEHIVE

Chas. N. Sulman.

The ...Veiled Lady...

stairs, Irene Hope's glorious voice rang out once more.

"With such a heavenly voice, this 'fair Damosel' should have the face of an angel!" thought Jack, as he deliberately waded through the rest of his letters. "By Jove! I believe I'm really suffering with heart disease," mused Gordon; "I hope it will turn out to be only an 'affection.'" His curiosity was piqued. "Pshaw! I'll make Selfridge tell me the whole story of this rara avis in prosaic St. Louis. Bring me a cigar, Jackson!" he cried.

"Directly, Sah!" answered the sable guardian, handing him a card. It was a business-like pasteboard.

PHINEAS ORTON.

"Ah! the great Pinkerton wonder worker! Show him in, Jackson! I suppose he is a sleuth of the dime novel order,—draws his ten dollars a day and expenses, and looks wise! The bank set him at this to please me. I reckon it's money thrown away!—Come in!" Gordon's voice rang decisively.

Mr. Phineas Orton entered without flourish. Calm, neat, and even fashionable in appearance, he was devoid of the eagle glance and inscrutible manner, which is a stock capital of the ideal detective. Gordon was startled. This man was too "good form" to be useful. "Pray take a seat, Mr. Orton! I'm glad to see you! There are some fair cigars! What have you to tell me?" Orton, frank and manly looking, thirty years of age, with a genial manner, was certainly prepossessing.

"I'm pretty nearly done, Lieutenant!" he said, with a pleasant ring in his voice. "I would not bother you till you were a little easier. I was in the war myself, and I know what it is to be worried while wounded. I do not know that you will approve, but I had to act without consulting you. I have spent a little money for you, and am done here, unless I go to Detroit and work up poor Neill's private life."

"What have you done here?" Gordon asked with some impatience. "The old thing, money! money! another leech!" mused the officer.

"I have brought you this," said Orton, simply, handing a soiled and crumpled envelope to him. There were stains upon it—dark stains. "I gave five hundred dollars for it."

"It is sealed! Do you know what it is?" Gordon strained to rise! His shoulder twisted under him. He fell back helpless.

"No," the detective simply answered. "I'll open it for you when you wish. To be brief, I was given carte blanche by the bank. This is no every-day affair. I have a theory I can't account for, but I made up my mind that Neill was hounded down. The bank put his rooms, and the still vacant office, at my disposal for thorough search. The police for once were polite, and let me alone. I found nothing at first, and I studied this case vainly for awhile. Like a flash, it occurred to me that a methodical man like Neill, an old soldier, would not mix up his private affairs and his business.

"All the papers in his rooms were evidently arranged for his approaching marriage. Now, Lieutenant! every man keeps some little old trifles. Would Neill destroy them at this time? No! He would either deposit them safely or carry them with him. Acting on this, I got a chance to get at the clothes Neill wore when killed. I got this out of them, and I paid five hundred dollars on the sly for the privilege of taking them away to examine them. I felt this envelope inside the lining. It's an old soldier trick! I used to carry some money that way to baffle the rebels. Now! I dare not admit that I took this away! The Chief rightfully should have it! But you were nearer Neill than he. You are also my employer."

"You have done well!" Gordon heartily grasped Orton's hand. "Open this for me! There may be herein the key of the Mystery."

"Wait a moment!" Orton simply said. "When I got this, I concluded that this, or something like it, was what Neill's late visitor wanted to get. I searched two days in the office room alone; the room where he was slain. I even took up the carpet. When done I washed my hands at the marble stationary corner stand. In the discharge outlet, I found this, as the water did not run off freely,—some one had lost it while washing there." He handed Gordon a woman's ring.

The Lieutenant writhed in impatience. "My God! if I could only be up and doing."

"Patience!" cried Orton. "I thought from the first, I know now, a woman killed Neill. Don't hurry. She is far away now. Whatever she was, she was a 'cool one,' for she searched his body for something!—By so doing, she was forced to cleanse her hands, and she quietly washed them, with his dead body lying at her feet!—This ring slipped off!—She was a young woman, dressed in black, and a lady. Now, you have my whole story."

"How do you know this?" Gordon queried, wide-eyed.

"The ring suits a delicate hand, and was even too large for her. It is an old jewel! His intended marriage bespeaks the cause of the crime. And I found a shred or two of loose black stuff in the sharp latch of the corner wash-stand."

"Orton! you're a genius!" the cavalryman cried.

"Well, Lieutenant! my name is not really Orton. I am no diviner; I use ordinary sense. And now you know as much as I! I don't want to know the contents of these letters yet. Don't be precipitate!—I suggest that you examine them first. I think I had better go to Detroit and look up Neill's early record. I'll wait till you read the letters. Let me open the envelope carefully for you." Orton lit his cigar while Gordon feverishly pored over the letters. They were three in number. Their brevity made the task easy.

"Was I right? It was a woman's work; and after the death blow she wanted the letters back, if he had them?" Orton was cheerful, almost smiling.

"You are right! It was a blow to avenge some wrong of the old time, and struck him at the very foot of the altar." Gordon's eyes were far away and dreamy. "What woman?"

"Now, this man Jenks, who is coming from California, writes that he has some important papers. The Chief will meet him," Orton continued. "Keep this quiet till you know the contents of the others, and all about Jenks. I would go away if I were you, when able, and have these photographed in some town, not too near. I would then deposit the originals in safety. We must find a handsome young woman in black, who has been lurking around Neill's office. She evidently located him, and knew of his marriage. If it was one of the ordinary adventuresses of the day the affair would be simply a blackmail for money! No declassee would care enough for him to kill him. Either this person demanded marriage, or his abandonment of the proposed union. He refused, and was killed when unsuspecting an attack. Neill was a cool, fearless soldier! I have some of his history from military friends. Now for the ring!" Orton showed its points! "Old, well worn, fine gold—the delicate intaglio of Venus—a rare one, antique, classic—a lady's favorite ring, handed over to a daughter. Not a young girl's ring."

"You are right! Orton!" Gordon assented. The detective resumed:

"You'd better use the best microscope you can get. I make out 'Baldwin,' or something like that; the engraving is nearly effaced. If you sanction me, I'll go up to Detroit and rummage up the past record of Neill. I could go to-night."

"Do so! Telegraph me when you are done! Write your address! If I need you, I will wire you! When does Jenks Arrive?" Gordon was wearied,—his raw wound fevered him.

"In three days the Chief will send him to you. Please don't forget that he must know nothing of this discovery yet."

Orton aided Gordon to compose a note to the bank. The five hundred dollars paid the custodian of the articles in Neill's coat was duplicated for the detective. Orton pocketed the check carelessly. "I leave to-night, sir!" he simply said. "Be sure to photograph and deposit these priceless originals. I only want to study them on my return. Get this Californian's whole story."

"Orton! you are above this business! What made you a detective?" Gordon eyed his employee sharply, as he handed the detective a bundle of good cigars, and a flask of old "Kentucky Bourbon," now reserved for the "Seventh" officers' mess.

"Oh! I'm a university man," Orton lightly said. "You know what becomes of college graduates in a land where abstract learning conveys no power!—Cowboys, car conductors, wanderers, private soldiers, adventurers, waiters—many of these are too often college men!"

"Any other reason?" said Jack, impulsively! He regretted it, for Orton's cheek flushed instantly.

"See here! Lieutenant Gordon! you are the Master of Belvoir! I am only your paid servant! Yet, even you have no right to ask me this question. We are both young! I will answer! It was a woman!—just what sent Neill to his early grave, and may send you to the devil! I am well on the way."

Jack grasped his hand. "I owe you an apology! See here, you must come over to Belvoir with me."

"All right! Good night!" replied Orton, as he opened the door. "I'll report soon."

He was gone. Gordon keenly examined every detail of the delicate, old fashioned ring, and shuddered to think of a fair white hand, decked with gems, driving a dagger into Neill's faithless heart. And the lethal weapon; had it been cleansed and borne away? Gordon fell asleep with the ring in his hand!

The music of Irene Hope's voice was stilled. He slept till the twinkling stars were in the eastern sky. His dreams were haunted by a beautiful woman in black, a fair young woman, a flashing-eyed Judith, a la mode! When he awoke, good-humored Doctor Selfridge was gazing at him.

"Bravo! Jack!" said the surgeon. "Next week you can be down stairs. Miss Irene Hope is anxious to meet and know the hero of the Washita battle. You are coming around splendidly."

Gordon gazed kindly at the surgeon. Physician, guide and friend, Selfridge was a leader in the community. His wife, a gentle and beloved mother, united to a character of sterling worth, that wistful patient manner, so marked in the quiet, retiring helpmate of the southern man of distinction.

"Tell me, Doctor? What is your young friend like? I hear her music, if I cannot see her face," the officer queried. Good-humored Selfridge bustled down stairs, returning with a picture.

"There she is, my boy!" he said, proudly. "Next week I hope to have you 'on light duty,' turning music sheets for her." Gordon was absently gazing at the entrancing picture. "See here, you young dragoon! I have my office hour soon. Good-bye." And the son of Esculapius hurried away.

When Jackson toiled upstairs with Gordon's latest repast, the young officer was still gazing at the fair face smiling upon him. He dropped it quickly, as the black proudly arrayed the feast.

"Put that where I can see it, Jackson!" said Gordon. "No," he quickly said; "give it back to me." And Jack Gordon, forgetful of that sweet "cousin" in old Kentucky, slept with Irene Hope's picture under his pillow. Youth! Golden Youth!

Five days later Mr. Horace Jenks, of California, sat in Gordon's room. The warrior was now able to sit in his easy chair, and measure the outer

READY FOR FAIR.

Toronto Exhibition Is Being Opened by Baden-Powell To-day.

Toronto, Aug. 30.—When Lieut.-Gen. Sir Robert Baden-Powell presses the magic button at 2.30 p.m. to-day, and the shrill siren whistlings and rumbling of machinery tell of industrial life awakened, it will mean that the Canadian National Exhibition has entered upon the 28th year of its existence.

The inaugural ceremonies this year will take place in front of the grand stand, an innovation which will please the public, for the auditorium of the dairy is a cozy affair, giving little accommodation to the thousands who attend the official opening. Then will follow the review of the 2,500 boy scouts and the public will be free to wander over the 260-acre of grounds, from the model military camp on the west to the home of the live stock in the east.

The directors' luncheon in the administration building at 1 p.m. will have Sir Robert as its specially distinguished guest. He will be escorted to the grounds by Honorary President W. K. McNaught and Second Vice-President Oliver will perform a like duty for the British Boy Scouts. President George Gooderham, M.P.P., will be in the chair, and the gathering promises to be a notable one, but speeches will be short. They have to be. Before Baden-Powell presses the button he will speak, and before that Mr. Gooderham will read the annual address, following a hoary custom. Then the formalities will be over.

Korea Swallowed Up.

Washington, D.C., Aug. 30.—The treaty between Japan and Korea, by which the hermit kingdom is annexed as a sovereign part of Japan has been made public by the State Department.

Existing Korean schedules covering imports from foreign countries and regulations governing coasting trade will be continued for ten years. The copyright and patent laws of Japan will be extended to Korea, and Japan's existing treaties will be applied so far as practicable. Korea's existing open ports will be continued.

Provision is made for the support of the members of Korea's imperial family, for peerage grants to deserving Koreans and for the appointment of Koreans wherever possible to administer the country's affairs.

Tourists Couldn't Land.

Kingston, Aug. 30.—A crowd of American tourists numbering 200, arrived here Sunday from the Thousand Islands, were not allowed to land by the customs officers. They remained on board the steamer America and enjoyed a water trip, declaring they will give Kingston the cold shoulder in future.

ONTARIO'S GAS WELLS.

Natural Light and Heat Is a Feature of Western Peninsula.

A man driving along the shore of Lake Erie, in that somewhat inaccessible region adjacent to Selkirk in Haldimand County, comes upon some objects set out in the lake that suggest defences against some future foreign invader. One's mind turns at once to Fenian raids and perhaps to a query whether defences of this sort are not contrary to the provisions of the Rush-Bagot treaty. The apparent defences are concrete arrangements with recesses on the land side and a circular front sloping toward the top, facing Uncle Sam's country. A series of pipes and valves adds to the mystery.

Inquiry, however, shows that the "round towers" are no more nor less than the covers of natural gas wells sunk in Lake Erie to secure the precious fuel and lighting material for large Canadian cities and towns many miles away. The fields hereabouts are studded with wells from which the farmers often reap large rentals, but the four competing companies were not content with land operations and last winter began boring under Lake Erie. They met with the same success as on land, and at a depth of about 800 feet secured a good flow, though naturally varying in different wells.

The drilling operations for the wells farthest in the lake were carried on during the winter, with the apparatus standing on the ice, for Lake Erie, being shallow, is frozen for some distance out during the cold weather. The workmen found it a cold job, for the winds that swept over the ice fields did not suggest proximity to any banana belt. Since then the operations have been extended and several lake wells are now being sunk. The gas companies believe they will find oil by drilling still deeper, and later on it is proposed to make the experiment. The proximity of the Pennsylvania oil fields just across the lake is the basis for this belief.

In the vicinity of this gas supply most of the farmhouses are lighted from the wells, though the great bulk of the gas is piped to Hamilton, Brantford, Paris and Galt. The roadsides are seamed with the pipes of the competing companies, until one would think he were in a city too young to perfect its public services. Most of the houses are old and weather-stained from a half century's storms from tumultuous Lake Erie. Gas lighting and fuel, pianos and top buggies now signal the arrival of a happier day.

The upper works of wells appear in the grain fields every few yards, and the farmer as he circles around them with his binder is only solaced by the large rental which he derives from a good producing well. One man indeed has an automobile for himself and for each of his two sons, the fruits, it is said, of the natural gas wells on his property.

Canada's Mountain Grandeur.

We have in Canada one of the grandest mountain ranges on the face of the earth; one of which we may feel tremendously proud when we hear it spoken of; one replete with the most varied and attractive gems of alpine scenery. In these mystic regions wide snowfields of dazzling whiteness undulate through miles of space; black cloud shadows chase one another across the shining surface; the ribs of rock stand out sharp like the frame of a mighty skeleton. Here ice-rivers drain lakes of snow up in the clouds and tumble in a wild confusion of seracs over rocky beds walled in by mountain sides; waterfalls leap down rock precipices; cascades thunder from the heights; rock falls cut wide gashes in the virgin forest; shining, jewel-like lakes of exquisite shades of blue and green reflect their surroundings so perfectly that it is difficult to know where land ends and water begins. In the primeval forests of mighty conifers there are spreading boughs, festooned with beards of moss, and the foliage is so dense that it creates a dim religious shade illuminated only by the slants of sunlight that find a way through the openings. These forests are filled with wonderful things; prickly shrubs six feet high, that wound the flesh with sharp spines; rare flowering plants that delight the eye with beautiful blossoms, and bushes loaded with luscious huckleberries and full ripe raspberries. In sequestered nooks there are beds of rare orchids and other handsome flowers. Half hidden by the foliage, great blocks of rock, as big as houses, have fallen from the surrounding heights; their sides are seared with age and covered with lichens, and on their crests are colonies of baby spruce trees that have settled there and thrive on the moss-grown surface.—Arthur O. Wheeler, in The Canadian Magazine.

A Crushing Retort.

In a certain New Brunswick county, where the councillors served without any sessional indemnity whatever, Councillor C. was defeated in a contest in the parish of X., and at the next session to which he was elected the councillors voted themselves $5 per day.

Councillor C. supported the resolution. He believed, he said, that his services were worth $5 per day to the electors of the parish of X. and that if he had not thought so he would not have offered his services.

"Mr. Warden," said a member who was opposing the increase, "there is nothing in that. Three years ago Councillor C. offered his services to the electors of X. for nothing, and they rejected him."

Wiser After All.

The late John R. Cameron, of The Hamilton Spectator, was an adept in the use of the English language for pun and funmaking. He accused another newspaper of pirating it's leading articles, and thereupon called for "three shears for our esteemed contemporary." Once The Buffalo Courier said that "Canada did not know enough to come in out of the reign-Britannia." Cameron's rejoinder was that "Canada, at any rate, knew enough to keep out of the hail—Columbia."

After a long series of tests German scientists seem to have disproved an old theory that resin is a beneficial ingredient in soaps, their decision being that the washing power of a soap decreases as the resin content increases.

ORDER OF "WAR CHIEF"

CANADA HAS A KNIGHTHOOD THAT IS UNIQUE.

Many Notable Men Have Proudly Worn the Distinction of Having Been Made Chiefs of the Six Nations Indians, Including King Edward, King George, the Duke of Connaught and Others.

A few weeks ago Sir Henry Pellatt was made a chief of the Six Nations at the Q.O.R. reunion and pageant. More recently the honor was conferred on Count de Lesseps, the daring French aviator.

Apart from the picturesqueness of the ceremony it is one that by reason of its associations that makes it an honor comparable to the decorations of European countries.

The Indians do not choose carelessly, and among their honorary chieftains are men in the list of whose names no man need be ashamed to find himself enrolled.

It may not be generally known that His Majesty King George V. is entitled to wear the buckskin coat, the moccasins, and the flowing plumes of an Indian chief. At the Council of the Six Nations of Indians at Brantford, Ontario, about a year ago, a letter was read from King George, then Prince of Wales, acknowledging the receipt of an address appointing him one of the war chiefs of the Mohawk nation. The letter ran as follows:

"I am glad to learn that the Six Nations are just as loyal to the British cause and British institutions as their forefathers were in the past, and that they are just as willing to take up arms in defence of the British Empire as their forefathers were. I have no doubt that should the occasion arise for the British Crown to demand similar services from the Nations in the future, they would not fail to maintain worthily the glorious traditions bequeathed to them by their ancestors."

Our late monarch, King Edward, was raised to the honor of chieftainship of the redskins when he was Prince of Wales. His Majesty's Indian name was almost unpronounceable, but in English it signified "Son of the Great White Mother." Another royal Indian chief, who can carry unquestioned in any part of the world both tomahawk and scalping-knife, is the Duke of Connaught.

Perhaps the most famous Mohawk war chief among the "palefaces" is Mr. Percy Wood, the well-known sculptor. As head of the Turtle Clan of the Upper Mohawks he bears the title of Rah-rih-wa-pas-du, which, translated, means "The Lasting One." Mr. Wood was raised to this honor through a monument. In the days when the whites and the redskins were about to go to war for the possession of land which the redskins considered their property, a Mohawk chief, called Thayendanegea, forded the Grand River at great risk, and the city which grew up on the borderland of the Indian reservation which he had saved by his courage was named in his honor. The short name for Thayendanegea is Brant, and the city was named Brantford.

Many years later Mr. Percy Wood was commissioned by the British Government to go to Canada and erect there a monument in honor of Thayendanegea and the tribes of Mohawks, Seneca, Onondoga, Tuscaroro, Oneida, and Cayuga, representing the Six Nations. As Thayendanegea was chief of the Six Nations when the American Colonies threw off the English yoke, it was thought proper that he should occupy the place of honor on the summit of the monument. It took Mr. Wood three years to complete the monument, and when it was unveiled the descendants of the Six Nations Indians were so pleased with it that they there and then made the sculptor chief of the Turtle Clan of the Upper Mohawks, he being christened Chief Rah-rih-wa-pas-du in the usual Indian manner, and presented with a string of wampum, war-paints, tomahawks, scalping-knife, shields and robes.

Mr. Wood is very proud of his moccasins and plumes, and has worn them on many notable occasions. Being invited to witness the Diamond Jubilee procession in 1897, Mr. Wood turned up at the grand stand which had been specially erected for distinguished visitors in all the glory of an Indian chief.

Mr. Robert Barr, the novelist, accompanied the Canadian Minister to the hunting grounds of the Iroquois Indians, and the redskins were so pleased with him that they made him one of their chieftains, giving him the title of the "White House."

Conventions at Victoria.

To be the convention city of the coast, is Victoria's ambition. The Outpost City of the Empire has just made a bold bid for the most important meeting which has yet signified its intention of drifting Canadawards this year. The invitation signed by the mayor, backed by the Board of Trade, the Vancouver Island Development League, and the Canadian Club, has been duly forwarded to the American Library Association. President Gomper's laborites and other big bodies which frequently visit Toronto. These fetes don't do a city any harm. Generally there is a hot time in the old town to-night — music, dancing, sight-seeing and speeches; but the influence is not altogether frivolous. When the last committeeman has packed away his badge, there still remain new ideas percolating through the deserted banquet hall; surely some citizens will have a grip of principles they never felt before. The spell of the American Library Association will be purely literary; six hundred men of letters discussing the architecture of Carnegie libraries and the making of the books, perhaps on the side getting inspiration for fat volumes—watching Satellite Channel in the evening.—Canadian Courier.

To facilitate the seating of patrons of moving picture theatres where there are no reserved seats without the use of ushers, a New York man has patented a system whereby an incandescent lamp remains lighted on the back of each seat as long as it remains unoccupied.

THE NEXT CENSUS.

The Counting of 1911 Will Cover a Wide Field.

The next census of Canada will be taken under date of June 1, 1911, and will embrace the subjects of population, mortality, agriculture, manufactures, minerals, fisheries and dairy products.

Population will be recorded under the heads of residence and personal description, citizenship, nationality and religion; profession, occupation and trade or means of living; wage-earnings and insurance; education and language spoken, and infirmities.

Every person living on 1st June will be entered on the schedule of population by name, as member of a family, institution or household, together with place of habitation, sex, relationship to head of family or household, and whether single, married, widowed, divorced or legally separated. The month of birth, year of birth and age at last birthday will also be recorded.

Entries will be made for each person to show the country or place of birth, year of immigration to Canada, if born elsewhere, year of naturalization if formerly an alien, and also racial or tribal origin, nationality and religion. Every person of alien birth who has become a naturalized citizen is a Canadian by nationality; and every British subject with residence in Canada, as well as every native of Canada who has acquired citizenship by birth or naturalization, is also a Canadian by nationality. But there is no Canadian by racial or tribal origin, unless the Indians are so counted.

Every person having an occupation or trade will be entered for it, but if employed in the census year at some other occupation for part or whole time he will be so recorded also. If the person is working on own account, the entry will be so made. An entry is also required to be made showing where the person is employed, as farm, in woolen mill, at foundry shop, in drug store, etc.

Wage earners are entered to show the number of weeks employed in 1910 at chief occupation or trade; at other than chief occupation if any; the hours of working time per week at chief occupation, or at other occupation, if any; the total earnings in 1910 at chief occupation; the total earnings at other than chief occupation; and the rate per hour when employed by the hour.

Entries are required to be made for each person showing the amount of insurance held at date of the census upon life, as well as against accident or sickness, together with the cost of such insurance in the census year.

Under the heading of education and language, records will be taken for every person of five years of age and over showing the number of months at school in 1910, and if the person can read and write, and the language commonly spoken by each person. The cost of education in 1910 for persons over 16 years of age at college, convent or university is also called for.

The last question on the schedule of population relates to infirmities. It calls for a record of each person having an infirmity. If blind, deaf and dumb, crazy or lunatic, idiotic or silly, a record thereof will be made in the proper column, and the age at which the infirmity appeared is required to be specified.

Hays' Lesson In Diligence.

The anecdote anent C. M. Hays, president of the G.T.R., which is given below, is going the rounds of the Canadian press, and is used quite properly as a counsel to diligence in young men.

Charles Melville Hays was in the passenger department of the Atlantic and Pacific Railway at St. Louis when he was not much over 17. One day Mr. Talmage, vice-president and general manager of the Gould roads, entered the room. It was a little before lunch hour, and half the clerks were putting on their coats. Others were looking at their watches and leaving for the wash-room. In the general commotion of breaking up there were a few who were still busy, and among them was young Hays. Talmage approached him and asked the time of day. The young man did not hear, and Talmage put a hand on his desk, repeating the question. Hays looked up, surprised to see the chief at his elbow.

"I beg your pardon, were you speaking to me?" he asked.

"Merely asked the time—that was all," said Talmage.

Hays glanced about the room until his eyes rested on the office clock and said:

"It's eleven fifty."

"Thank you," said the general manager, strolling out.

It was directly after that conversation that Talmage picked Hays out as his private secretary and confidential clerk. The fact that Hays was thinking more about his work than about breaking away had impressed the general manager in a most favorable way.

Reporter Was Late.

If you know of an item or piece of news, tell us about it. That's just what we want. But a newspaper man sometimes experiences more difficulty in gathering news than one would imagine. This was the case with a reporter in a neighboring town who a few days ago was sent to write up a fire in a residence. Going to the door he enquired for the lady of the house. The maid said she was out. "Are any of the family at home?" inquired the scribe. "No, they are all out," was the reply.

"Well, wasn't there a fire here last evening?" "Yes," said the young lady, "but that's out too."—Caledonia Banner.

Taft's Aunt Delia Has Some Advice For Will.

"AUNT DELIA" TORREY.

"Aunt Delia" Torrey, as most people know, is the favorite aunt of President Taft, and it was at her home in the pleasant town of Millbury, Mass., that "Big Bill" spent his vacation when a student at Yale.

"Aunt Delia" was celebrated for the making of delicious apple pies, and, apropos of these pies, Miss Torrey is feeling quite put out over a bogus apple pie recipe which is going the rounds of the newspapers as her famous formula. She has been receiving hundreds of letters, some of them suggesting changes in the recipe. "If it were mine," said "Aunt Delia," "I wouldn't mind these criticisms, but it puts me in a false light when folks think that I have been making imperfect pies for the president of the United States."

When asked by a man reporter for the recipe she said: "Now, young man, that is my secret. Besides, if I told you, you would get it all wrong in the paper. What man knows the meaning of a recipe? All that a man can do is to eat the pie and perhaps grumble about it. Will never did, but he's an exception and has the most evenly balanced temper of anybody I ever saw."

When asked about the effect of Mr. Roosevelt's homecoming Miss Torrey replied, "Well, I haven't thought much about it, though I know Will will be glad to see Theodore again and to know that he is safe and sound after his wonderful trip.

"Politics? Why, I don't believe I know anything of the subject. I have said before that most of the criticism of Will has been due to the fact that he has really tried to work out a tariff policy. Now, nobody can effect a tariff that will suit everybody. Look at the way President Cleveland failed in trying to please the country. Then President McKinley was killed before he had time to take hold of the subject. Theodore Roosevelt avoided it, and that has a great deal to do with his popularity, but Will has tried to give the country a tariff, and he has to stand, of course, a great deal of criticism.

"Do I intend to give Will any advice when I see him? I most certainly do, and the main part of my advice will be to tell him not to work too hard. Will I give advice to Theodore? Well, as I said, I'll advise Will to take a rest, but I wouldn't dare to say that to Theodore—I know he wouldn't follow the advice if I did."

Lovely New Photographs.

Every woman who can scrape together the wherewithal—the process is costly—is now being photographed to look like one of the old Georgian prints.

It is all in the finishing, but the results of the oval pictures, with their soft gray tints blending into a landscape background, are delightful and make even a plain woman look her best.

These prints blend from the oval into a square background of similar tints, and the picture is framed in flat molding like the frames of the same period.

The present coiffures are especially suitable for such a picture. A low frock will give best results and looks in keeping with the period. Occasionally a large picture hat with gown is becoming.

These Georgian prints are taken in several sizes, but those that most closely approach the old time square prints are most effective. Sometimes a line of dull gold added inside the frame heightens the tone.

Boiled Fish.

If you always fry fish try boiling it for a change. Cut three pounds of fish into thin slices and sprinkle with salt. One quart of water, one-fourth whole pepper, one tablespoonful chopped onion, one tablespoonful chopped celery and one tablespoonful chopped carrot will be required. Clean fish and let it stand in salt for an hour. Put the vegetables in the water and boil until the water is well flavored, then add the fish and let it simmer until the fish leaves the bones. Place on a platter and serve with slices of lemon and parsley. A white sauce may be used if desired. Flavor the sauce strongly with lemon.

STILL COMING TO CANADA,

Grand Trunk Pacific Train No. 1 had four extra cars went out of Winnipeg Aug. 18th, with 150 American farmers from different points along the line in the Prairie Provinces. These house-seekers laugh at the fake back to Uncle Sam stories. Many of them have already visited the West and have located their homesteads or bought land. They argue that a new country which has never had a total crop failure in a quarter of a century is a good gamble.

Advices received by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway from the superintendent of the Canadian National Buffalo Park at Wainwright gives the information that there are now 752 Buffalo including calves born this year, in the enclosure. There are about 100 buffalo left on the Pablo ranch in Montana and the final roundup of those animals is now going on, and the delivery of this number will be made about October. When these remaining Buffalo are added to Buffalo Park it will make the largest herd in the world, and in fact, the only herd of any consequence in existance. This Park is one of the interesting feature of Wainwright on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway.

Duchess of Roxburghe a Favorite of New English Queen

DUCHESS OF ROXBURGHE.

The Duchess of Roxburghe, who was May Goelet of New York, and the Duchess of Buccleuch are warm friends of Queen Mary of England. The story goes that they will aid the present queen in ridding the court of men and women who enjoyed the favor of King Edward VII., but who ordinarily would not be received, in select social circles. "The free and easy" members of King Edward VII.'s court, it is said, are doomed to social oblivion, and the former Miss Goelet will assist in the revision of the court list. The Duchess of Roxburghe occupies an enviable position. She was admired by King Edward VII., but for several years has been a warm friend of the woman who now is queen. She and her husband associated much with the Prince and Princess of Wales, and the four found much in common. Though as Princess of Wales the present queen seemed to care little for society, she already has shown a stern mind and a thorough appreciation of the social problems ahead of her and has assumed with much vigor the management of the court ceremonies.

A Guessing Luncheon.

Girls who want to give clever midday feasts to their friends should try a guessing luncheon, in which all or many of the dishes are given names.

Every guest is given a chance to find out what the food is before the feast is served. Cards are handed around and small pencils. There are a dozen or more sentences written on the card, each of which stands for a food. The one who guesses the most of these correctly is awarded a prize. It is not necessary to serve the food; it is only necessary to guess it. A jumble would result if the hostess served the luncheon which is on the card.

One of the best of these is as follows:

First.—Emblems of silence—Oysters.

Second.—The penalty of looking backward—Salt.

Third.—Made keen by its mother— [illegible]

Fourth.—Boston diet—Beans.

Fifth.—Forbidden to Jews—Pork.

Sixth.—Emblem of stupidity—Goose.

Seventh.—Universal crown—Hare.

Eighth.—Largest part of the foot—Sole.

Ninth.—To shrink from danger—Quail.

Tenth.—Ludicrous situations—Pickles.

Eleventh.—Tailor's tool—Goose.

Twelfth.—Country of the "sublime porte"—Turkey.

Thirteenth.—One of Noah's sons—Ham.

Fourteenth.—Woman's weapon—Tongue.

For canning peaches allow to every eight quarts two pounds sugar and three quarts water. Make a sirup, stirring until the sugar is dissolved. As soon as it boils skim carefully. Meanwhile peel the peaches, pack in sterilized glass jars, making sure before you begin that your rubbers are new and the tops of the cans perfect. Settle the fruit as you pack by shaking the jar. Fill the hot jars with boiling sirup. It will require about a pint to each quart jar. Adjust the glass top half way over the jar, but do not put on the rubber. Set the jars in the oven in shallow pans half filled with boiling water. Close the oven door (and the oven should be only moderately warm) and cook the fruit fifteen minutes.

Take from the oven. Having adjusted the rubbers, fill each jar in turn with the boiling sirup, which should have been kept hot on the back of the stove. Fill so full that the scalding liquid runs over, then put on the top, wipe and seal. Set the cans on a board or thickly folded paper out of a draft until cooled, when you can probably tighten the top still more. This sirup does not make the fruit sweet. If you prefer to have it sweeter increase the proportions of sugar. Peaches put up this way in cans look better than when cooked in a kettle, then dipped into the can. When the peaches are large they must be cut in halves, but leave in the pits for flavor.

To Make Northwest Passage.

Capt J E Bernier of the steamer Arctic has set out on his trip to the far north with the intention of making the northwest passage. He has sent from Chateau Bay to the Department of Marine and Fisheries a program of his proposed voyage, which is as follows: From Chateau Bay he will sail for Albert Harbor, Pond's Inlet; from there he proceeds to Beechy Island. The next place of call will be Bealy Island, the next Winter Harbor, and from there he will go to Herschell Island.

Capt. Bernier intimates that if he reaches Herschell Island without any accident he will proceed direct from there to Vancouver, B.C.

Are the tops expensive? No. We sell them complete for 10c per dozen, the price of rubber rings that are any good.

Board of Education.

MUCH TALK ABOUT THE NEW SCHOOL SITE BUT NOTHING DEFINITE DONE — REFERRED BACK TO COMMITTEE FOR FURTHER INFORMATION.

At an adjourned meeting of the Board of Education held last evening the members in attendance were Messrs. W. S. Morden, chairman; J. H Anderson, C. F. Sharpe, C. M. Reid, W. P. Hudson, J. F. Wills, T. F Ketcheson, W. R. Taylor, G. A. Bennett, W. S. Smith, S S. Moore, W N. Ponton, B. Mallory, F. S. Deacon and P. Harrison.

The object of the meeting was to consider the purchasing of a site for the erection of a public school, but a purchase was not made, and the Board adjurned until Saturday evening, when the matter will, no doubt be settled.

Mr. F. R. Lingham, who was present, addressed the Board and stated that he would be willing to assist the Bcard in the matter of procuring a site. He would be willing to give the Board certain property he was owner of at $8.40 per foot instead of $10 as originally asked.

When figured out it was ascertained that the piece of property contemplated to be purchased would cost $4,802, which was somewhat less than the first offer.

Ald. Robinson, in answer to an enquiry, said that he had been informed by Mr. D. R. Leavens that the property known as the old vinegar factory on Dundas street could be procured from Mrs. Leavens for $1.50.

Mr. Bennett contended that the Leavens property was too far east for a school building. A more central site was preferable.

On motion, R. W. Adams, was heard and he stated that in the first place he had obtained a price from Mr Leavens, namely $1800, but subsequently the price was increased to $2500. These were the only figures which were in possession of him.

Mr. D. R. Leavens addressed the Board and stated that the price of the lot was fixed at $1200 and it was estimated that there was $800 worth of material upon the ground consisting of brick, stone, etc. On behalf of Mrs. Leavens, he would offer the Board the property for $1200 without the material, or $2000 for the lot and material thereon.

In answer to a question, Mr. Leavens said there was 2 acres of land in the property offered the Board.

Ald. Wallbridge said that sewers were being built adjacent to the Leavens property, which would readily drain some parts of the property. The levelling of the lot could be made by using the material taken out of the excavation for the school building. He had been advised by Mrs. Leavens that she was willing to take for the property and the material upon it $1500, the amount mentioned in Ald Robinson's letter to the press.

Col Ponton spoke strongly against Mrs. Leavens property as being unsuitable for a school site, and it was also an extraordinary proceeding that the price given to the Board in the first place for this property was $2400 and now we have two prices submitted, namely $2000 and $1500. He (the speaker) thought Mr. Lingham's property was by far the more preferable site.

Mr. J. F. Wills was of the opinion that the Leavens site was not as well suited for a school site as was Mr Lingham's property.

Mr. Hudson considered that the Board should purchase the Leavens property, which could be levelled up at a very small cost. Neither smoke or dust would interfere with the school if built on that property.

Mr. Moore moved, seconded by Mr. Hudson, that the Board purchase the Leavens property.

After some further discussion the motion of Mr. Moore was allowed to stand as a notice of motion, and a motion moved by Mr. Wills, seconded by Mr. Sharpe, prevailed. It was in effect that the matter be referred back to the Sites, Building and Repairs committee to ascertain the cost of procuring the properties mentioned and the cost of fitting up the same for suitable school grounds.

Mr. Bennett proposed that an architect be employed to prepare plans for a school building, but it was decided to defer this matter until a site had been procured.

The question of the date of the opening of the schools was discussed, and it was decided that they would open on Sept. 1st, as agreed by the Board at a previous meeting.

Board adjourned until Saturday evening.

A party of Bristol merchants and manufactures sailed from Avonmouth on Thursday August 18th as a special delegation to Canada for the purpose of looking into the possibilities that are available in the Dominion The party will arrive in Quebec on Wednesday August 24th and a series of entertainments are beng aranged for them by the Harbour Commission of Montreal and the Board of Trades of Quebec, Montreal and other cities. As the prominent manufacturing towns and cities in Eastern Canada are situated on the Grand Trunk Railway the party spend most of their time on this line and Mr. William P. Fitzsimons, Commissioner of Industries, G. T. Ry. Montreal left for Quebec last Saturday to meet the party on the arrival. This party is a very influential one and their visit will no doubt be a great benefit to Canada.

To The Public

Manager Hurley wishes to express his regrets to the citizens of Belleville, who so kindly favored the Opera House with their patronage last night, for the delay in presenting the vaudeville acts.

Mr. Rosen, who was originally billed to appear, was taken violently ill yesterday afternoon while enroute from Toronto.

At the twelfth hour it was imperative that the management should secure talent for the evening bill.

Two acts were immediately put aboard train for Belleville due to arrive here at 9:10. A carriage which the manager had in waiting at the station rushed the performers to the threatre with all possible speed, and on their arrival Fox and Fox, the juvenile singers, dancers and talkers, consented to go on in their street clothes.

The management also expresses its appreciation and thanks for the kindly indulgence exhibited by the audience last evening under such adverse circumstances and states that the following acts will positively appear to-night and Wednesday at the usual time 7:30 and 9 P. M.

Dorothea Read & Co. will, during the course of performance, make five complete changes of custume. Miss Read, who is known throughout the theatrical world as the "Queen of Scottish dancers," was chosen to dance at the Queen's Celebration.

Fox and Fox presented a singing, dancing and talking act that is really worth going to see.

SWORD—BURNHAM.

At Pope St. West Belleville, on Monday, 29th August, a quiet wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Sword, of their second son David to Miss Minnie Durham, recently from the old country. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. M. Hubly, of Emmanuel Church. The young couple will reside in town.

Dedication of a Memorial Window

At Demorestville, Prince Edward County, on Sunday, August 21st, a handsome memorial window was dedicated the memory of the Rev. C E. Gordonsmith, F.S.Sc., a former pastor of this congregation. The window, which is a beautiful representation of the Sermon on the Mount is the gift of his widow, Mrs. Gordonsmith, of Belleville, to the dignified and comfortable church which has just opened, half the cost of which was generously borne by Mr. Wellington Boulter. The present pastor, the Rev. Mr. Nichol, paid a warm tribute to the influence of Mr. Gordonsmith's life and work and the Rev. Mr. Sharpe of Exeter, Ont., also took part in the service, which was most interesting Solos were sung by Mrs. Dr. Walker of Riverside, California. Among those present were Mr. Gordonsmith's widow and eldest son and daughter Mr. C. Gordonsmith, of the Montreal Witness, and Mrs. J. C. Langston also of Montreal.

Scotchmen Have A Great Nicht

The Scotchmen of this city met at a special meeting last night and initiated eight more new members making twenty-four members in all in two weeks. Grand Organizer, Mr. Morrice seems to have done great work in Belleville, and the Scotchmen were not slow in showing their appreciation of his efforts last night, as the farewell was one of the best tendered to any Scotchman in this part of the country.

After the initiation and the business of the Camp was completed Mr. Wm. Malloch, Chief of the Camp, called upon the Past District Deputy Grand Chief, John McIntosh, to occupy the chair for the remainer of the evening, and the following program was gone through.

The first number was a march on the pipes by four of the most stalwart pipers in this country. Grand Pipe Major Albert Johnstone, Wm. McIntosh, Wm. Grant and Mr. Clark. As the sound of the pipes died away the enthusiasm of those present was great, and cheer after cheer went up till in fancy the dear old hills of Scotia re-echoed back the sound.

Song by Mr. Gregg.

Sailor's Hornpipe by Thomas Bowie Canada's champion dancer.

Dr. MacCall gave a very lucid description of the Camp since its inception and his words were very much appreciated.

Piper Clark played the "Chimes" and it is doubtful if ever such playing was heard in Belleville.

Mr. Baxter sang a Scotch song.

Grand Piper Major Albert Johnstone and Wm. Grant played a duet on the pipes, the "Green Hills", and the music was sublime.

Ald. Robert Bogle gave a splendid recitation.

Organizer Morrice sang a Scotch song.

At this stage of the proceedings the brethren had refreshments and enjoyed themselves immensely. Afterwards, Mr. James MacKay, representing the Caledonian Society of Milwaukee, was introduced to the brethren present and made a fine speech telling the brethren how much he loved this Canada of ours and especially the Sons of Scotland.

After the pipers played the "Cock of the North' the Scotchmen all joined hands and wished one another a "guid nicht," this bringing to a close the greatest Scotch night that has ever been held in the City of Belleville.

INSANE MAN'S CRIME

Gustave Merkt of Toronto Kills His Wife and Himself.

Sixty-Five-Year-Old Man, Who Was Recently Released From Asylum, Buys a Revolver and Slays His Wife, Who Was a Cripple—Coroner Censures Authorities For Letting Merkt Out of Institution.

Toronto, Aug. 30.—An inmate of an asylum, confined there because his family had fears for their safety because of him, yet apparently allowed to come and go from the Queen street institution for the insane as he pleased—that was the condition of affairs concerning Gustave Merkt which yesterday resulted in him shooting and killing his wife, and then himself at the Merkt home, 10 Roberts street.

Merkt was 65 years of age, his wife, a cripple, was ten years his junior. The weapon, a 38-calibre revolver, is believed to have been purchased yesterday morning, and the fact that a note, conclusively showing the murderer's demented condition, was dated the 28th, would indicate that the crime was premeditated.

Two bullets took effect in the woman's head, and she was found lying in a pool of blood in the little sunlit summer kitchen of her home, while the man, also twice shot, was found prostrate in the drawing-room, still clutching the weapon, it and the hand that held it bathed in blood.

The feature of the case occupying the attention of Coroner W. A. Young, who will open an inquest at McGill's undertaking rooms in College street, at eight o'clock this evening, in the question of the responsibility of the authorities of the asylum in allowing a man, criminally insane, to come and go from that place as he pleased.

According to the story of Henry King Clarke, a night telegraph operator, a boarder in the Merkt home, who was asleep in his room, he heard two shots in rapid succession at 11.55 yesterday morning. Boys were in the habit of playing with a gun, and he thought nothing of it. A few minutes later he heard two more. Then he rose, shaved and dressed himself and went downstairs, just as a daughter of the dead couple, who works down town, came in for lunch. The girl went straight through to the kitchen and found her mother dead.

"My God, has father been home?" she cried to Clarke, who then turned to the drawing-room. There they found the man's body. Clarke rushed to the street and gave the alarm, and the fainting and hysterical girl was carried to the house of a neighbor.

Dr. W. E. Ferguson, 264 College street, and the police were summoned. The woman lay on her face with a bullet wound on either side of the head. About one of these the powder marks and singeing of the hair were evident. A wound of exit showed beneath the left eye and a bullet was found beneath the body. Another bullet, which had struck the plaster wall beside the door to the back kitchen, was picked up in the middle of the kitchen floor. In the drawing-room a search revealed a hole in a rear window made by a bullet, which was found embedded in a window casing outside. There were two wounds in the right side of the man's head, with another, probably one of exit, under the left eye. Another bullet could be felt under the skin of the left temple. The wounds of entry were surrounded by powder marks. In the revolver were found four empty shells and one undischarged, and there were more loaded shells in the pocket.

In the vest pocket, neatly written in ink, was found a note. This was the last cowardly blow at an honest and faithful wife! It read: "To the public and the press: This is the end of 37 years and five months of married life with an insulting, drunken, false and swindling woman. Hell can't be any worse. My last wish is that my body be cremated."

Surrounded by Icebergs.

Philadelphia, Aug. 30.—After a run of twelve days and despite unusual perils at sea the ship William P. Frye, from the Hawaiian Islands, with 90,000 bags of raw sugar, arrived at the Spreckels sugar refinery Sunday night. Off Cape Horn the ship was surrounded by Antarctic icebergs and field ice, covering an area of 18 miles. Many of the bergs ranged from 50 to 200 feet high.

Salt Palace Destroyed by Fire.

Salt Lake City, Aug. 30.—Salt Palace, a structure built of salt and one of the scenic features of Salt Lake City, was destroyed by fire yesterday, entailing a loss of $25,000. Defective wiring was the cause of the blaze. Salt Palace had been used for a number of years as an amusement resort, and its bicycle saucer track was one of the finest of its kind in the world.

This Girl Escaped.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—There is joy in the home of George Jagemann, for Miss Lena Jagemann, the daughter, who had been mourned as one of the victims of the wreck near Durand, Mich., is on her way to Chicago from Toronto to assure her parents that she is alive. Her parents would not sufficiently credit her telegrams announcing her safety.

Zaccheus as An Alderman.

London, Ont., Aug. 30.—Rev. G. W. Dewey, formerly of Toronto, caused a sensation in his sermon Sunday night by saying that Zaccheus was the greatest grafter of ancient times, and had he been living to-day in London would unquestionably have been elected a member of the City Council, and would have shone in politics.

Infantile Paralysis at Ottawa.

Ottawa, Aug. 30.—Infantile paralysis is spreading in this city, and one death, that of a four months' old child has occurred. Dr. Law, medical health officer, has located eight additional cases in the past few days, making twelve, so far. He is taking isolation steps to avert a serious epidemic.

A familiar shaving paste known as cream of almonds is made by melting one part of caustic potash into three parts of lard with enough essence of almonds added to give it a flavor.

TO IMPROVE EAST LINE.

C.P.R. Reported to Be About to Spend a Million.

Montreal, Aug. 30.—There is a strong opinion prevailing here that the Canadian Pacific, after spending large sums in the West, will now turn attention to the lower provinces, and that they have fully decided to make Halifax the winter port for mails and passengers.

That the company will bring Halifax within 16 hours of Montreal appears to have been decided upon, the only question being as to how Montreal and Halifax harbor can be hitched by such rapid train service.

The opinion prevails, however, that the C.P.R. will start from Fredericton Junction or thereabouts, and build a new line straight across New Brunswick and Nova Scotia to their proposed winter port at Halifax, and that this work will be hurriedly pushed forward in the very near future. It is said also that the proposed extension will be of the very highest quality of railway, so as to permit passenger trains being run at a very high rate of speed.

If this turns out correct, or nearly so, no doubt a new entrance will be secured into Halifax, and already there are rumors that property has changed hands there for this purpose. Extensive improvements are also contemplated on the Dominion Atlantic, as soon as the C.P.R. gets possession. Besides building a telegraph line from Truro to Yarmouth, the Canadian Pacific will spend a round million on the roadbed and bridges.

The Government annuities system has been in operation now for eighteen months. The total of annuities sold is $650,000. The average amount is $250. About one-third of the purchasers are women.

Fearing that international complications would ensue from the continued attacks of the populace on the Bogota City, District of Colombia, Railway Co., an American concern, the municipality of Bogota has bought the company, paying $800,000 for it.

Denounces Masonry.

Montreal, Aug. 30.—Mgr. Alfred Archambault has decided that a good Catholic can make no difference between Freemasons, be they of French, English or Scotch rite.

They are, in fact, all alike in the eyes of the Bishop of Joliette, who declares that Freemasonry in general aims at the destruction of the Roman Catholic Church, or social order, or political authority and the marriage tie. His lordship also said that all members of any of these lodges would not only be refused the sacraments of the mother church at the hour of death, but will also be refused Catholic burial.

Mgr. Archambault then referred to grave charges that certain residents of Joliette were members of these forbidden lodges, and declared that if this could be proven, he would denounce such persons from the cathedral pulpit and would ask the faithful to vote against them either at municipal, provincial or any other election.

At Jackson Again.

Victoria, B.C., Aug. 30.—Heretical teachings in Methodist Colleges, or what has become known as the Jackson controversy, came up before the Methodist general conference yesterday, and after a discussion which lasted for three hours, it was decided to leave such matters to the procedure of the church. This decision was reached by a vote of 125 to 84.

The attack on Rev. Mr. Jackson was led by Rev. Dr. Shearer, who quoted extensively from his writings and from those of men arrayed for and against the higher criticism. He was supported by H. M. Winter. Chancellor Burwash and N. W. Rowell, K.C., replied.

Blind Woman's Vigil.

Guelph, Aug. 30.—Edwin Henry Hall, an old resident, lay dead in his home near Suffolk street for some time before his aged and blind wife knew that he had died. She thought he was sleeping when he did not answer her, and covering him up as well as she could, she sat beside his bed and patiently waited for him to wake up. All Saturday afternoon and night and nearly all Sunday she waited. Then some neighbors came in and told her the truth.

Reporters Barred.

Montreal, Aug. 30.—It is given out officially that Cardinal Vincent Vannutelli, the papal legate to the congress, will not be interviewed during his sojourn in the Dominion. His excellency has especially asked that no reporter be allowed to board the Lady Grey, which will bring the church dignitary up the river. Mgr. Bruchesi leaves this evening for Rimouski, where he will meet the cardinal legate.

A Lot of Undesirables.

Toronto, Aug. 30.—There have been three hundred and fifty-seven persons deported from the province since the beginning of the year, chiefly at Niagara Falls. An unusual number have been deported during the past two or three weeks from Fort Frances and Rainy River, principally hoboes.

A Fairy Tale.

Ottawa, Aug. 30.—The officials of the Finance Department give an absolute and emphatic denial to the story published in Toronto and Montreal yesterday to the effect that $50,000 in English bank notes was found in a box sent to a locksmith's for repairs.

The argument advanced in favor of a new phonograph which has its records in the form of endless belts is that it is possible to provide much longer selections than by the older methods.

THE NEW SUNSHADE.

Raffia makes our porch cushions this summer and the newest of our parasols, and a pretty, dainty, light kind of sunshade it is, to be sure, one that will stand any amount of wetting. Indeed, the raffia parasols may be carried right into the surf without damaging their beauty or usefulness.

In the illustration the model is in natural colored raffia, and the long fringe is an attractive finish. The handle is of brown wood and elaborately carved. The handle is long, as is the case on all the best parasols of the summer.

To Save Alcott Home.

Efforts are being made to inaugurate a movement for the preservation of the old Alcott homestead in Concord, Mass., where Bronson Alcott lived and died and where Louisa Alcott created the immortal children that run through the pages of "Little Men" and "Little Women." The place at present is fast falling into hopeless decay, and action must be started soon if it is to be preserved at all. "Perhaps if Miss Alcott had been dead two centuries instead of only about thirty years her former home would not be in such a dangerous plight as it is in today," said a New York woman who is trying to interest others in its preservation. "But by and by Miss Alcott will have been dead 200 years, and if Orchard House is not saved now American soil in future generations will be the poorer for our neglect. We never shall raise a harvest of ancient association for our land unless we take care of the associations while they still are comparatively modern."

Useful Trifles.

A small brush, such as is used in a mucilage bottle, is just the thing to remove caked salt from shakers or to keep the lips of pepper shakers clean.

If you use glass jars for storage purposes and cannot insure careful handling it is well to protect the edge with pasted strips of adhesive plaster unless you do not object to chips of glass in your food.

For a leftover salad mold cold spinach in a shallow custard cup, turn off on hearts of lettuce, sprinkle with the yoke of hard boiled egg, run through a vegetable press and cover with mayonnaise.

Vegetable salads will be more appetizing if the mayonnaise contains onion juice. Where the taste of onion is not liked a flavor can be given by rubbing the bowl with garlic.

Gardening For Nervousness.

Gardening as a curative pastime is the newest idea introduced by the head of a fashionable sanitarium for nervous women, and each patient has her particular plot to look after. She is even given the task of spading up the ground and is expected to spend a certain amount of time daily cultivating it regardless of the weather. On clear days, after the garden hour, the entire force of fair women is supposed to turn to and rake and burn leaves and fagots and play they are amateur farmers. The benefit that the out of doors life and interest do to the nerves is incalculable, and the novelty of it makes it something to be looked forward to.

A Dainty Fragrance.

To impart the delicate fragrance of any flower to one's letters the oil of any desired flower can be added to the writing fluid. Scent the blotter and place it with the letter paper, but do not put flower oil or perfume upon the paper. A package of invitations can be scented by keeping them overnight in a closed jar containing oil of flowers on white wool or cotton.

Beneficial results are said to have attended experiments in a London hospital by which asthma, bronchitis and even tuberculosis patients were required to breathe compressed air for a few hours at a time.

ROSEBERY'S GRAND UNCLE.

He Was a Canadian Lawyer Who Lived and Died In Quebec.

Few are aware that the great publicist, Lord Rosebery, had a grand uncle who played a prominent part in the public life of Lower Canada half a century ago. He was the Hon. Francis Ward Primrose, advocate, who lived most of his life in the city of Quebec and died in 1860 at the age of seventy-six. The deceased gentleman was the second son of the then Earl Rosebery, and might, of course, have had a prominent career in England. He came to Quebec in early manhood, for reasons which made it inconvenient to live in England. For many years he stood at the front of the legal profession in Quebec, and that he earned and retained the good opinions and respect of his fellow practitioners, is illustrated by the highly flattering and complimentary resolutions adopted by them after his death. His remains were interred in Mount Hermon cemetery. Mr. Primrose maintained no correspondence with his family in England during his residence in this country. Prior to coming to Canada he sat with honor in the Parliament of Great Britain and Ireland, where he was a consistent supporter of Liberal principles. An obituary notice published in The Quebec Telegraph at the time of his death, said: "He was one of the junior counsel of the unfortunate Queen Caroline, and in youth was a prominent cadet of a great Whig family, and, even then, a trusted member of the Whig party. Like his brother, the present Earl of Rosebery, he was an intimate friend of Lord Brougham's, when Brougham, a rising barrister, was struggling at the bar without his noble and honorable friends's advantages of birth and station. He was equally intimate with Denman and a whole galaxy of the forensic talent of the day. In Canada he wore the robe of Queen's Counsel with dignity, conducted the crown business for a brief space impartially and well, and was an advocate of the first rank, uniting the fire and energy of youth to the caution and experience of age, as all will admit who heard his full and elevated voice and noticed his vigorous and appropriate action on his very last appearance before the courts, or noticed how he could quote old statutes and old authors from the capacious stores of his vivid and accurate memory, while young men with book in hand painfully toiled after him, or the manner in which on occasions he poured forth the lessons of constitutional and Parliamentary law from the deep and rich lore of English history."

JUDGE HAGARTY'S MASTERPIECE

From time to time there reappears in the press allusions to a celebrated paraphrase on "The House that Jack Built" which contains a wealth of synonyms not less remarkable than its mock, pompous and grandiose descriptions of the commonplace incident. It was published anonymously and went around the world but is generally admitted to have been the work of the late Chief Justice Hagarty of Toronto.)

Lo! here, with hirsute honors doffed succinct
Of saponaceous locks, the priest who linked
In Hymen's golden bands, the torn unthrift,
Whose means exiguous stared through many a rift,
Even as he kissed the virgin all forlorn,
Who milked the cow with complicated horn,
Who in fine wrath the canine torturer skied
That dared to vex the insidious muricide,
Who let the auroral effluence through the pelt
Of the sly rat that robbed the palace Ian had built.

The loud cantankerous Shanghai comes at last,
Whose shouts aroused the shorn ecclesiast,
Who sealed the vows of Hymen's sacrament,
To him, who robed in garments indigent,
Exosculates the damsel lachrymose,
The emulgator of that brute morose,
That tossed the dog, that worried the cat, that kilt
The rat that ate the malt that lay in the house that Jack built.

Indian Drama.

Oberammergau gets the credit for being the home of the Passion Play—perhaps not altogether justly so. This year the great drama is being produced once more there. But Canadians won't need to cross to Europe to see it. The Passion Play is due to come off on the British Columbia coast—acted by the Skale Indians who hunt and fish on the Fraser. For several days the Fraser has been black with hundreds of redmen speeding from Puget Sound in their canoes. The big United States reservations in Washington and Oregon are silent places now, depleted of the Indians, who have been granted permission to attend the religious celebration of the Canadian tribesmen. Even up in Alaska, Indians are hastening to join the babel of tongues. The British Columbia village has become a vast, picturesque panorama; Skwa, which ordinarily is the usual western fur station—shops, shacks, houses; withal a touch of romance in the little painted church from whose steeple booms for fifty miles into the mountains, the first brass bell that ever went over the trail to the northwest.

Watched It Grow Up.

A certain local character in a New Brunswick village whose statements were often more emphatic than truthful was once a witness in a petty trial involving the ownership of an auger, and positively identified it as the property of one of the parties to the suit.

"Do you swear that you know this auger?" asked the attorney for the other side.

"Yes, sir."

"How long have you known it?" continued the cross-examiner.

"I have known that auger," said the witness in an impressive tone, "ever since it was a gimlet."

His home is at Uxbridge, and he was to have been married this year. Intense sorrow is felt over the sad affair.

McCullough was not permitted to change his plea from guilty to not guilty. In the witness box he said Trapnell handed him his keys and some money, and told him to get duplicates made.

Trapnell said Moir was a young man and it was a shame to see him locked up, and when the keys were made McCullough handed them to Moir.

Supt. English said he had warned Trapnell that Moir was a scheming, dangerous man.

WOMEN IN CHURCH COURTS.

After Ten Minutes the Proposal Is Vetoed by Conference.

Victoria, B.C., Aug. 31.—The Methodist General Conference yesterday morning discussed for ten minutes a proposal to admit women into the church courts. The motion was then put and defeated by a vote of 65 to 34.

Ministerial reserve delegates to the Ecumenical Conference are: W. H. Emsly, Dr. W. Sparling, G. W. Kerby and Dr. A. Stewart.

A department of finance, with T. R. Parker of Toronto as general secretary, is one of the new ventures of the conference.

The steady conservatism of the delegates was plainly manifest when a number of recommendations to change the wording of the discipline was voted down and one recommendation especially carried to have churches built so that people could kneel at prayer, in accordance with the instructions of the discipline.

Justice Maclaren thought it was a constitutional question and might prejudice the union negotiations. The vote stood 24 in favor and 64 against.

The recommendation for quarterly boards to make regular provision for an annual vacation for the pastor carried enthusiastically. The number of circuit stewards may be increased in churches having over 400 members, one steward additional to every extra hundred members. Quarterly boards may elect alternate delegates to the annual district meeting.

Provision is made for holding a regular annual congregational meeting.

Laurier's Hope.

Cranbrook, B.C., Aug. 31.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier and party continued their progress through southern British Columbia, leaving Vernon early and entering at Kootenay Landing for the Crow's Nest Pass route.

No decision was made concerning land conditions in Lushwa Valley, where homesteaders receive only 40 acres and claim a quarter section, as land is not fruit bearing. At Cranbrook, an hour and a half stop was made and Sir Wilfrid addressed a crowd of 1,500. He remarked that the conduct of the last election in British Columbia was not such as to reflect credit on them. The policy of the Government had been to preserve British Columbia for the white people, and to exclude the yellow races. He hoped that at the next election the province would reverse its verdict.

An informal reception was tendered the party on the arrival in the evening at Fernie.

The Kaiser Misunderstood.

Danzig, Aug. 31.—Emperor William, at a dinner Monday night in the castle at Marienburg, the old seat of the Knights of Malta, given in his honor by the dignitaries of the Province of West Prussia, made a speech which was a counterpart of that delivered last week at Koenigsberg.

Taking the Koenigsberg speech which His Majesty evidently regarded as having been misunderstood by the press, he said:

"When I represented myself, like my sainted grandfather, as being under the protection of the highest and as working under the highest commission of our Lord and God, I assumed that every honest Christian, whoever he might be, did the same."

Company Must Feed Cattle.

Toronto, Aug. 31.—A fine of $75 and costs was imposed upon the C.P.R. in the Police Court yesterday for cruelty to animals in having carried a load of 27 head of cattle from White River to Toronto without food or water during a period of 65 hours.

An agreement with the shipper, in which it was agreed that the man in charge should water and feed the cattle was produced by the defence, but the magistrate read the act, which said that should the owner fail to feed and water, the company must do so. It was also shown that the man in charge had asked at Sudbury that the cattle be watered and fed, but was told that there was no yardman.

Would-Be Murderer Shot.

WELCOME TO LEGATE

Big Fleet of Boats Will Meet Cardinal Vannutelli.

Anglican In Ottawa, Writing to The Citizen Protests Against Government's Participation In the Eucharistic Congress by Giving Reception to Cardinal—Bishop of London Received no Public Celebration.

Quebec, Aug. 31.—Accompanying Cardinal Vannutelli, papal legate to the Eucharistic Congress, now en route here on the Empress of Ireland, is Cardinal Logue, primate of all Ireland, and other dignitaries of the church.

The legate and his party will land here, and a welcome will be tendered to them by Archbishop Begin and the Lieutenant-Governor on the terrace of the Hotel Frontenac. Subsequently the legate and party will proceed on the Government steamer Lady Grey, via Three Rivers and Sorel to Montreal. The party are expected to reach Montreal on the afternoon of Sept. 2. The flotilla that will escort the Lady Grey to Montreal will meet her in the neighborhood of Point aux Trembles. It has been preparing for the function, and the effect is certain to be impressive. The yachts will fly the papal flag at the bow, and the Canadian or British flag at the stern. They will line up in two rows on each side of the Lady Grey and will steam up the river at a uniform speed. It is expected that over a hundred yachts, coming from all parts of the province, and also from Plattsburg, N.Y., will take part in the demonstration.

Ottawa, Aug. 31.—A leading Anglican of the Archdiocese of Ottawa made vigorous protest in The Citizen yesterday against the manner in which the whole machinery of the Federal Government is being used to boom the eucharistic congress at Montreal. He says:

"Two ecclesiastical dignitaries, representatives of two great divisions of the Christian church, are visiting Canada. One is the Bishop of London, a subject of King George and a representative of the state Church of England; the other is Cardinal Vannutelli, a subject of the King of Italy and a representative of the Church of Rome.

"The Bishop of London, on his arrival in this country, met with a fitting reception from the Anglican body, but, very properly, received no official recognition from the Canadian Government.

"With Cardinal Vannutelli a different course is pursued. The Government, representing all Canadians without regard to sectarian differences, has delegated one or two of its members to welcome the Italian on behalf of the people of Canada, the troops maintained by the taxation of Catholics and Protestants alike, are ordered out to serve as his bodyguard, and the Government steamer Lady Grey is placed at his disposal. What is the cardinal to Canada, or Canada to him, that he should be singled out for such honors?"

General Dispensation Granted.

Montreal, Aug. 31.—The Pope cabled yesterday a general dispensation in Montreal on congress Friday, Sept. 9, owing to the difficulty of crowds of visitors of getting proper Catholic food.

Pugsley Back In Ottawa.

To-morrow Dr. Pugsley leaves for St. John to meet Sir Robert Perks.

The Canadian Navy

The Liberal press throughout the country is making much of the fact that numbers of French Canadians and Germans settled in the West have assured Sir Wilfrid Laurier that they are willing to send their sons to man Canada's navy. The avidity with which these sporting offers were seized upon by those organs, which find it necessary to support the Government in return for the sweet fruits of patronage, proved that the administration was sorely in need of a kind word respecting the proposed expenditure of millions for the creation of a naval force which will be of little use to the Empire in the time of war, and which will only take part in England's battles when it suits the whim of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. It is doubtful if the bulk of the people of Canada who are putting up the money for this "Order in Council" Navy, realize that their hands have been completely tied by the valuable opportunist he sits at the head of the council table. All the young French Canadian and German lads in the Dominion could not raise one finger to repel an enemy of Britain until the High Mogul in the palatial residence on Laurier Avenue made up his mind that the Canadian navy force should enter the fray. We are therefore completely at the mercy as a nation, of the man who at the time when the whole Empire was roused over the South African war had to be literally kicked into sending the clamoring contingent to the front. The navy, the creation of which was authorized by the majority of Parliament last session cannot be of any assistance to Britain. It cannot even fire a gun without permission, and England might be swept from the seas before the Leader of the Government gave the word which would pull the trigger. Even the Toronto Globe realized that if Canada was to do anything it must be of a practical nature. On March 24, 1908, the Globe said editorially:

"But as a matter of fact war is in progress. The contest in shipbuilding is war. If the Mother Country were engaged in a desperate conflict Canadians could not get across the ocean fast enough to the aid of the Mother Land. But we must remember that out aid is as much needed now as if a physical war instead of a shipbuilding war was on. It is Canada's duty from every point of view from our affection for the land of our fathers' and for our own self interest to take prompt and practical action."

But the Canadians who wished to rush over the seas to the defence of the Motherland would find the door locked to active participation in the struggle against England's enemies and the key in the pocket of Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Again the Globe on March 26, 1909, came out boldly—as boldly as that partisan sheet can ever hope to come—and declared:

"The sort of vessel that should be built is fixed by the circumstances The competition now raging between Great Britain and Germany is in the direction of first-class battleships. If Canada were to build a little fleet of wasps and hornets it would have no moral effect on the situation at all. What we would like Canada to do would be to manifest, by a veritable act that in this competition of the fleets, she ranges herself proudly and gladly by the side of the mother country."

Wasps and Hornets. That is exactly what Sir Wilfrid Laurier has created by his naval bill. The Opposition in Parliament asked for a tangible contribution to the naval defence of the Empire, and then go on with the building of a Canadian navy. We have utterly failed to range ourselves proudly and gladly by the side of the old land. She asked us for bread and Sir Wilfrid politely handed her a stone. If the suggestion of Mr. R. L. Borden had been accepted Canadians would not to-day have to hang their heads in shame at the petty action of a Government which brags on its pride in the Imperial tie. Sir Wilfrid Laurier looks calmly on while millions are frittered away on the National Transcontinental, on Quebec bridges which collapse, on the purchase of sawdust wharves which help materially to elect supporters of his Government, on fantastic Hudson Bay railways, on public works which do the most political good and the least public benefit, and on the hundred and one expenditures which have taxed the credit of Canada to the limit. But for the weal of the Empire and for Canadian protection Sir Wilfrid Laurier can only afford enough money to build a petty cruiser or two, which it is boasted will have such steaming powers THAT THEY WILL BE ABLE TO ELUDE PURSUIT. That is a comforting thought for those young French Canadians and Germans whose fathers have volunterred in their behalf. They are quite safe. If they are allow to fight they can easily run away.

Narrow Escape of Two Young Lads.

THEY WERE PLAYING IN A HOLE WHICH THEY HAD DUG IN THE SAND WHEN IT CAVED IN — ONE OF THEM NARROWLY ESCAPED SUFFOCATION.

As the result of a cave-in which occurred yesterday afternoon, a young life came near being sacrificed. It appears that three lads named Frank Cushing, Leo Manahan and J. Cassidy, were playing in a dug-out, which they had constructed in the sand on the brow of the hill on Rear street, adjoining the residence of Mrs. John Doyle. The lads were enjoying themselves at play, when without warning the cave-in occurred. Manahan was not caught in the falling pile of sand but his two companions were. He immediately raised an alarm and soon a number of persons were upon the scene. The only portion of Cassidy visible was his head, but there were no signs of the lad Cushing. Cassidy with presence of mind and apparently thinking only of his companion Cushing, told the rescuers not to bother with him but to dig for Frank, meaning Cushing. In a short time Cassidy was rescued but it was 15 or 20 minutes before Cushing was reached and rescued. It twas seen that he was in a precarious condition, as he was unconscious and purple in the face. Medical aid was summoned and soon the lad, by the aid of restoratives, was brought around. His escape from suffocation was a narrow one, as he would no doubt have expired in a minute or two more had he not been rescued. He was buried in sand to a depth of some 5 or 6 feet. This morning he was able to be about. In the future the lads will no doubt be more careful of their surroundings when at play. From a bystander who was upon the scene we are informed the rescuers worked like trojans, and were certainly repaid for their labors by the fact that Cushing was rescued alive.

STILL COMING TO CANADA.

Grand Trunk Pacific Train No. 1 had four extra cars went out of Winnipeg Aug. 18th, with 150 American farmers from different points along the line in the Prairie Provinces. These house-seekers laugh at the fake back to Uncle Sam stories. Many of them have already visited the West and have located their homesteads or bought land. They argue that a new country which has never had a total crop failure in a quarter of a century is a good gamble.

Famous Freaks Lose Power of Attraction.

There died a few days ago in a mountain county in North Carolina a negro dwarf whose peculiar physical conformation caused him to be sought by showmen from all parts of the United States, but for forty years he resisted their advances and died at the age of 63 without ever having been on public exhibition. The point that attractive showmen was not the stature of the dwarf—he was 34 inches in height—but the remarkable muscular development of his arms. The biceps were the size of the biceps of a man of a 160 pounds, and the finger tips extended to within four inches of the ground. The little man weighed 51 pounds, but it was estimated by atomists that his arms weighed more than half the weight of his entire body.

There has ben a steady slump in the human freak market for the last three or four years, and an "attraction" that commanded $50 or $100 a week would find it had work to-day getting an engagement at any figure. Indeed, it is a question whether Luola Zarate, the tiniest human being that ever lived, and who attracted scientists as well as the general public, could command anything like the pay she received twenty five years ago, when the crowds flocked to see her in all the principal cities of the United States.

She was a perfectly formed woman and symmetrical. She weighed less than eleven pounds and her height was not quite twelve inches. She could walk under General Tom Thumb's extended arm without brushing his sleeve. An ordinary finger ring could be slipped on her wrist, and a teacup would cover her head. The nail on her little finger was not much larger than a pin

Giants are no more in demand nowadays than dwarfs. The great majority of those who travel with shows are not as tall by two or three inches as announced on the billboards and on the programmes. While a lilliputian cannot make himself appear smaller than he really is a giant can add to his stature with thick-soled Wellington cavalry boots and high heels and accentuate the illusion of great height by wearing a hat with a tall crown.

Clang, the Chinese giant, was probably the tallest man known in modern times. His actual measurement was within a inch of nine feet, and he possessed a fair degree of muscular strength. It is not generally known to the public that the average "show-giant" has a very weak spinal column, and his muscles, as a rule, are atrophied.

The unusual growth, which is quite rapid appears to sap the strength. With the exception of Chang, there never has been a giant on public view whose lifting powers was equal to that or a healthy normal boy of 15.

The two-headed girl, Millie Christine, was probably ont of the most extraordinary freaks of nature born since the days of the strange creature described in the Historia Rerum Scoticarium of George Buchanan. This being lived in the reign of James III. of Scotland in the year 1490. It was of the male sex, and from the waist up was double. There was two perfectly formed heads, two sets of lungs, two hearts and two pairs of arms. The double body was supported on one pair of legs. This monstrosity was neither replusive nor displeasing. On the contrary, the dual mental equipment was so perfect that the king engaged a special tutor in languages and mathematics and music. The double man become proficient in all of these studies, and it was a favorite royal diversion to have the heads argue with each other on the progress made during the day's work.

Route of the C. N. R. Through Sidney.

WORK WILL BE COMMENCED ABOUT SEPT. 15, AND WILL BE PUSHED FORWARD AS RAPIDLY AS POSSIBLE.

The map of the proposed route of the Canadian Northern Railway through the Township of Sidney, from the western boundary of the city to the town of Trenton, has been filed with Mr. A. M. Chapman, County Clerk, who is also Clerk of Sidney Township.

Accompanying the plans is the following peremptory order:—"To the Municipal Council of the Township of Sidney: Take notice that you are required to file your answer to the within application with the Railway Commission of Canada, not later than fifteen days from the date of filing thereof." The date of filing the plan was August 27th, 1910.

The following is the route in detail from Belleville to Trenton. Leaving the city limits the line will keep pretty close to the bay shore and cross the property of Col. W. N. Ponton, and also the lots of Messrs. Hunt, Wilmot, Anderson, D. & D. Institute, Purdy, Sprague, De Mille, Gay, Shorey, Johnson, Detmold, Ray, Vandervoort, Jones, Davis and Bates. It will then proceed across the north end of the Roman Catholic Cemetery and cross the Kingston Road at the northeast corner of the Denyes lot. On the north side of the road it will enter the Walker property and proceed westward across the following farm lands:—

Sick Room Courtship.

WHY SOME MEN PATIENTS SEEK HANDS OF THEIR NURSES.

(Boston Herald.)

Whenever in the tragi-comedy of life, bachelor or widower marries a trained nurse there is a cry of surprise from his relations, even when they are not looking forward avariciously to his death. The indifferent as regards the disposal of his property shake wise heads or make jocose remarks. Yet what is more natural than this coronation of convalescence? For once since he left his mother's care the patient has been waited on with the utmost sympathy. If he has never been married, he realizes man's helplessness in time of sickness, his loneliness. Male friends may inquire after him. They may even visit the sick room, but their attitude is not unlike that of the emotional landlord who looked at Artemus Ward for a moment when he was down with a fever in a Western town, and said, "I never could bear to see any one die."

The flippant may say that the nurse is now trained for the capture of a husband. It might be more justly said that she is trained to be an admirable wife, and it is a pity that all women are not so trained. She is scrupulously neat in every way and many otherwise estimable women are negligent in matters of the toilet. She is quiet in her movements; she has a light walk, a light touch. She knows that food should be served daintily.

She also knows the value of reticence. She refuses to be irritated or excited. The man is persuaded that she never took the like interest in any other patient. He is constantly observing her. He could tell the number of her waist buttons and whether her hair has a tendency to curl on the nape of her neck. As he is dependent on her, he also becomes so accustomed to her that he misses her if she leaves the room, and the night watches are relieved by thought of her. Nor does the nurse, if she consents to wed the patient, throw off the mask, turn slattern and a shrew.

The wonder is that the nurse is willing to wed the patient. She sees him when she is downcast, peevish, cowardly, grotesque, complaining of a little pain, unreasonable, fussy about his dry toast. The beard of a week does not make him more heroic. He chatters about himself and his business, or he asks her impertinently about her early life. A trained nurse pays the highest compliment to the character of a man when she consents to marry him, for she knows him through and through, in his glory and in his shame. Perhaps to her all men are children and her love toward one in particular is maternal both in the present and for the future.

HOLLOWAY.

Mr. Robert McMullen, an old resident of 9th concession of Thurlow, died at his home on Aug. 28th. He leaves a widow, four sons and three daughters.

Mrs. Martin Hough and daughter, Ethel, attended the wedding of Miss Ella Cummings in the 3rd concession of Sidney on Wednesday last.

Mrs. Gordon Bass has returned to her home in Norwood after spending a few days with her mother, Mrs. G. Rose.

Miss Evelyn Wood, of Peterboro, is visiting Miss Bessie Spencer.

Miss Pearl Broadworth, who has been teaching in Carman, Man., and has been spending her holidays home, returned on the 31st.

Advices received by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway from the superintendent of the Canadian National Buffalo Park at Wainwright gives the information that there are now 752 Buffalo, including calves born this year, in the enclosure. There are about 100 buffalo left on the Pablo ranch in Montana, and the final roundup of those animals is now going on, and the delivery of this number will be made about October. When these remaining Buffalo are added to Buffalo Park it will make the largest herd in the world, and in fact, the only herd of any consequence in existance. This Park is one of the interesting feature of Wainwright on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway.

Dead Man Talked.

PULSE STILLED, HE CONVERSED WITH HIS FAMILY.

Philadelphia, Aug. 30.—To all appearances dead, with eyes glazed, pulsation stopped, his body cold and rigid, Theodore Bailey for twenty-seven minutes continued to talk to his wife and daughter till his vocal organs became paralyzed. He continued the conversation for eighteen minutes more with his daughter by means of the deaf and dumb alphabet.

Bailey was assistant manager of the Philadelphia Power Co., and while not strong physically, was a man of unusual nerve power and mentality. He had been operated on without hope of success. Saturday morning his condition grew worse, and at 11.45 he died, to all appearances. His eyes became fixed, a slight tremor passed through his body and then it became rigid, with the exception of hands and throat. His eyes nearly closed. The nurse indicated that death had come. Word was sent to his friends, who waited outside.

Then, in a whisper, with tremendous mental effort to master the inert muscles of the throat, Bailey began again to talk. For twenty-seven minutes he gave directions for the care of his estate and the education of his daughter, Laura, fifteen years old, besides uttering phrases for the comfort of his wife All this time his eyes were half closed and fixed.

At 12.12 his voice failed him. After trying to master it he made a motion with his hand indicating that he wished to write. A pencil and pad were procured. He scribbled meaningless lines at first, but then clearly wrote "paralysis" indicating by a motion the chords of his throat. A moment afterward one hand, resting on the pillows, was lifted till a finger touched his forehead, indicating that he was still conscious. His eyes were closed and there was no indication of pulse. He had all the appearances of a dead person, but gradually his fingers began to work, and he delivered a message by the deaf and dumb alphabet to the secretary: "Miss Connelly, you must be a sister to Mrs. Bailey."

When Laura bent over and kissed her father on the forehead, thinking he was beyond movement, the fingers worked again and she read:

"Kiss me on the mouth, dear!"

At 12.25 the fingers became still and did not move again.

Mrs. Bailey, in telling the story to William J. Clark, of the New York office of the General Electric Company, said she believed that it was her husband's great love for his family and his wonderful mental control over his body that made it possible for him to retain his mind after his body had apparently died.

Lettuce Cream For Summer Use.

A good cream for healing tanned and irritated skin: Four ounces almond oil, one ounce spermaceti, one ounce white wax and two ounces lettuce juice. The lettuce must be scalded with boiling water and allowed to stand a few minutes. Pour off the water and pound the lettuce to a paste in an earthen bowl or mortar, then strain through cheesecloth. Melt the first ingredients in a double boiler over a slow fire. Do not let them come to a boil. Just melt them, then drop by drop add the lettuce juice, constantly beating the cream with a fork until all the juice is added and the cream perfectly smooth and cold.

Crippen In Hospital.

Epidemic In Russia.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 31.—Eight new cases developed at Odessa during Sunday and Monday. Prof. Rein, head of the special sanitary commission, which is fighting the pestilence in South Russia, reported yesterday from the Province of Yekaterinoslav that the railways of the southeast had registered 2,319 cases among their passengers and employes.

Never go into the woods or out of the way places without being supplied with remedies in case of an emergency. Always take a hot water bottle and a medicine kit, stocked with such simple home remedies as you are accustomed to use.

In addition, there should be whisky, bandages, absorbent cotton, adhesive plasters, quinine, mustard and belladonna plasters and some colic tablets. An ointment to allay stings or itching is also good.

Woollen Mill Reduces Time.

Almonte, Aug. 23.—Commencing this week, the Rosamond Woollen Co. of this town, will run their large woollen mill only four days a week.

A Clean Man

Outside cleanliness is less than half the battle. A man may scrub himself a dozen times a day, and still be unclean. Good health means cleanliness not only outside, but inside. It means a clean stomach, clean bowels, clean blood, a clean liver, and new, clean, healthy tissues. The man who is clean in this way will look it and act it. He will work with energy and think clean, clear, healthy thoughts.

He will never be troubled with liver, lung, stomach or blood disorders. Dyspepsia and indigestion originate in unclean stomachs. Blood diseases are found where there is unclean blood. Consumption and bronchitis mean unclean lungs.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

prevents these diseases. It makes a man's insides clean and healthy. It cleans the digestive organs, makes pure, clean blood, and clean, healthy flesh.

It restores tone to the nervous system, and cures nervous exhaustion and prostration. It contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs.

Constipation is the most unclean uncleanness. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure it. They never gripe. Easy to take as candy.

The ...Veiled Lady...

world through the window panes. A grey-eyed, waxen-faced, smiling man was Horace Jenks. Quiet of dress,—careful of speech, with a complacent air, and yet a decisive manner.

"I have seen the Chief, and given him the valuable papers Neill sent me. I have left the ranch titles with the bank. But I have something to show you alone, Lieutenant!—I know you were Neill's best friend here! Before I do so, I will be frank. I am what we call a 'sporting man'; I suppose you would say 'gambler,'" he said, with a faint sneer on his ever-smiling lips. Only an actor, a Jesuit, or a professional "sporting man" could maintain the unruffled demeanor of Jenks of the watchful eye.

"It's neither here nor there, where I met Neill; we were boys together. He sent me to California this sealed envelope. I studied its contents on the train. Look at this! I have not opened my lips. You and I must act together," Jenks said. "There's the whole deck; you can now make the game!" Gordon eyed Jenks. Forty years of age, well kept, and self controlled, he would "pass muster" in many circles. "I have to go abroad, —to Paris on business," Jenks continued. "The ranch management I will fix up with the bank. This other thing is a private matter for us alone."

The Master of Belvoir winced. Confidential with a gambler! He examined the papers. One was a brief scrawl in a woman's hand. Its words were few and menacing: "I will see you once before your marriage. Remember the past!" "That's not much," said Gordon, dropping it.

"Not much," bitterly replied the Californian. "The firm hand which penned that, drove the dagger into Neil's heart! There's no attempt at disguise there! Do you know that handwriting? Have you ever seen it before?" His glance searched Gordon's very soul, deliberately. Gordon met the gambler's eye without flinching, and lied for the first time, like a man. He must protect Orton.

"No! I have never seen it," he slowly said; and as he spoke, lying in his bosom were the three letters which Orton took from their strange hiding place. The writing was in the same feminine hand.

"Read his letter over to me," said Jenks, briefly. He was very grave. "Read it aloud."

Gordon gazed at Jenks in some surprise, and read,—it was in Neill's well-known chirography:

"St. Louis, Dec. 10th, 1865.

"Dear Horace:—

"I have just received the enclosed. It speaks for itself! As I intend to leave in a few days, for my marriage, I dare not bear it about with me.—It's part of an old affair. Honor seals my lips even now. My antagonist is a woman. I cannot go forward, or back, with either justice or safety. Of only one thing I am sure. If anything happens, you will guard and turn over my half of 'Las Flores' Ranch to Agnes Herndon, my bride, to whom I have left all. My will is at the Bank of St. Louis. If I can get away quietly to Europe, this trouble may blow over. God knows, though, what a maddened woman may do!—I may receive a punishment; perhaps, as the world would say, a deserved one!—To you, my old schoolmate, I leave the task of seeing simple justice done. I left Detroit to avoid this business. It has caught me here. I saw Lieutenant Gordon yesterday. You can address him, should there be any grave results. Whatever of the past clings to this, will die with me. The Estate is in good shape, and if I get out of here, and away to Europe, all may yet be well. Gordon is a fine man, and a rattling gallant soldier. He has a bad wound, and he was in the very thickest of the battle of the Washita. I mail this at once. There will be no scandal in the matter; if anything happens to me, I fear it will be something much worse than mere journalistic gossip!

"God bless you, old boy! You've been a true friend to me. Keep this letter safely for me.

"Egbert Neill."

Gordon's head dropped on his bosom. "Poor fellow!" he softly whispered. "He was game to the last, anyway!"

The gambler nodded gravely. "The code of 'the profession' is to 'die game' and silent.—Lieutenant!" said he, huskily, "I've got to go abroad. I propose to follow up this matter to the end.—I've often sat facing luck dead cold against me! But I know the Cards of Life. I'll run this woman down, if it takes me ten years!—In the meantime, I leave this with you. I want to arrange about the ranch. Each share will be worth a hundred thousand in five years. Neill owned a clear half. There's no expense, and very light taxes; I'll advance them. He trusted his hardly earned money to a gambler's honor. I'll stay in with this thing." Gordon stared in amazement; there was an unbidden tear glistening in Jenks' eye.

"Jenks! You're a good deal of a gentleman, for a sporting man." Jenks smiled.

"Now! I'm going to prospect around a little. I don't believe that woman got in and out unobserved. Your office janitor is a drinking man. He says he saw nothing. Some one saw something, I am sure; I will find that some one. As for the woman,—no one of the stamp to lead Neill away, would fall into any such desperate situation, without her own consent at the time. It's all nonsense," the adventurer said. "I know the sex! Man's vices vary. The daughters of Eve are changeable, violent and even when vicious, throw themselves back on all the rights of their primal innocence! Mr. Gordon! there's only two kinds of women,—good and bad. I had a good mother,—she had a bad son!—I am just what a tough life has made me. My hand is against every man's, —excuse me,—I don't mean 'Poker,'" he concluded, with a faint smile.

"When shall I see you?" Gordon questioned.

"I will spend a couple of weeks here before I sail. I'll lay for 'points'—no one knows me here, except some of the 'fancy,' and they are all 'square.' Good-bye! I'll come to you."

As his football echoed on the stair, Jack muttered: "A bad man,—a good friend,—a square sport,—a gambler! California's singular product.

Under the stimulus of Jenks' visit, and Orton's letters spurring him to action, Jack Gordon, four days later, joined the family circle. His right arm was still in a sling, his left shoulder bandaged, but "Gordon of the Seventh" was himself again. The "cavalry fatigue" in its simplicity, accentuated his noble face, made pallid by suffering and confinement.

"Gordon! I shall have to put you under the care of this young lady," said the genial Doctor, as Jack appeared on evidence at the first dinner The cavalryman knew well the tender kindness of Mrs. Selfridge, but his heart fluttered as Irene Hope turned her beautiful dark eyes on him! "I fear I shall be a tedious charge, Miss Irene!" the officer replied, gazing admiringly at the beautiful apparition by his side. Strangely, the St. Cecilia of St. Louis dropped her eyes and forgot a direct answer! Before the dinner was ended, Gordon's cordial manner charmed all!

The strange subtle magnetism which draws southern people together, even in the hurly-burly of cosmopolitan cities, knitted them closely! "For once a picture does not lie!" Gordon thought, stealing a sly glance at the beautiful woman of twenty at his side Even the modest home costume could not disguise the royal beauties of her superb form. In all the glory and freshness of the early noon of womanhood, Irene Hope's face was a dream of classic beauty. Her eyes, deep and searching, thrilled the wounded cavalier. Her voice, in velvety softness ranged flutelike over the scales of the harmonies, to which she gave her very soul. The dark hair rippling from her brow, framed a face noble in repose, and supremely radiant when her rare smile lightened its classic contour.

Gordon's first dinner was a social success; but even the gentle pleading of Mrs. Selfridge could not urge Jack to any great gastronomic feats. "I've lost the best two months of my life. D——n the Indians!" thought Jack. And then the compensations of life came to him. "If it were not for that Cheyenne sneak in the right-hand lodge, I wouldn't be here." Simple-minded Gordon veiled his confusion behind his wineglass, when the Doctor, with truly southern florid expression, toasted "The Fighting Seventh" and painted Gordon as the very "pink and flower of chivalry!"

"Don't believe half it! Miss Irene," said Jack with self-depreciation: "I'm only 'one of the Subs!' Custer was the life and soul of the greatest hand-to-hand victory ever gained over the Indians of the plains, except 'Patsy Connor's Bear River fight!"

Miss Irene replied: "I am afraid you are modest, Mr. Gordon.

Jack laughed merrily: "Modesty is not a Kentucky fault, Miss Irene!" he replied, thinking to himself, as he gazed on her ivory neck, and fair shapely head: "By Jove! I've give half of Belvoir to hear her call me "Jack!"

"Anything new in the Neill case?" blurted out the off-hand Doctor. Gordon, who closely followed the papers proceeded to describe his interview with Jenks, and lightly touched on Orton's ability. "We'll run the guilty one down yet, Doctor!" he said with animation: "Jenks will never abandon the trail. I have a theory that these horrid crimes always have some inherent weakness of plan; some trifling accident happens which leads to final discovery." Gordon generalizing was cut short by observing Irene Hope's ghastly pallor. Even the Doctor's gentle wife noticed it.

"Pray excuse me, Miss Irene! These are no subjects for ladies!—I should be ashamed of myself!" he remarked with self-condemnation. "Let me ask you to forget this horror, and favor us with some music. I have only heard you as yet from a distance."

The girl smiled gratefully.

"I do not like such terrible things. I fear my singing will only tire you it is, after all, 'professional' work, you know!" Before Gordon sought the repose of his couch, the fatal spell was on him which Beauty casts upon the Brave! Headlong Jack's daily crucial examination of her picture was encouraged by the glamour of the presence of this child of song; who looked a goddess, and who walked like a queen

In a week, Gordon and Irene had dropped into that dangerous intimacy which lies between the lines of brotherhood and sisterhood, and the ecstatic state of two enraptured souls, wandering in these later days, in a fairy land of their own building up. Jack's bandaged right arm being in a sling prevented him from writing. In sunny afternoons, Irene Hope, the loveliest of volunteer secretaries, resolutely attacked Gordon's pile of unanswered letters Several of these were reports from Orton. Nothing of importance was developed by the Detroit investigations Jenks was yet without any return from his cat-like prowling around the scene of the murder. Little by little Gordon yielded to a complete confidence with Irene. Doctor and Mrs. Selfridge were not especially interested in the dad agent, a northern stranger!—By tacit consent the unwelcome topic was shunned; yet the officer was forced to speak of it in detail to his lovely scribe. The latest letter from Orton contained a request for copies of the three letters, and a set of the photographs of the only relics of the guilty one. "By Jove," thought Orton. "I must send the copies to him at once. I can't get away for a day or so to have the photographs made; but I'll do so quietly next week. I can't write myself; I must trust Irene."

Sitting watching the beautiful girl bending over the table, and noting her flying fingers, he thought: "Ah! could

SAVED BY A SNUFF BOX.

Fit of Sneezing Kept Tiger From Eating English Officer.

Perhaps no man's life was ever saved to him by a more curious circumstance than that attending the experience of a captain of the Bengal Lancers. He had been on a visit to a civilian friend in Rajputana, and went out for a walk in the country about sunset.

After going four or five miles he found himself in a narrow path on the side of a steep hill. The path was a mere ledge in the rock, with a deep chasm on one side and a wall of solid rock on the other. It was not a pleasant place in which to come face to face with a big tiger; but that was just what happened to the captain.

It was too late to withdraw; so he determined to brave it out. The animal had evidently been asleep; for it continued for a few moments to lick itself into full wakefulness. The captain stood still. Presently the tiger took a few steps forward and made a dash at him. Luckily its teeth seized him by the flap of his coat, just over the breast, so that he was not hurt by the blow.

Then the captain had a chance to appreciate the feelings of a mouse when it is shaken by a cat. The tiger shook him till his senses left him. Perhaps it was as well they did leave him; for the beast held him over the deep chasm, and a fall would have been as fatal as the animal's onslaught.

When the captain recovered consciousness, a few minutes later, he found himself lying flat on his back, with his feet dangling over the precipice. He opened his eyes, only to see the sky above him. He dared not move; for the tiger might be close at his elbow. So he shut his eyes and remained motionless.

Then he thought he heard a strange noise at a little distance, a sound as of somebody sneezing. His first thought was that some on had come to the rescue and beaten the tiger off; but this was proved to be wrong by low, disagreeable, tigerish growls mingled with the sneezing.

He turned slowly. He could hardly believe his eyes. There was the tiger slinking off with his tail between his legs and sneezing violently as he went, his face distorted by most piteous grimaces.

The truth then dawned upon the soldier. In shaking him the tiger had caused his snuffbox to fly open out of his waistcoat pocket, and had received the contents full in the face.

Women and Feathers.

James Buckland, who is fighting for a law in England to prevent the traffic in plumes for hats, calls women who wear feathers on their hats "scented barbarians." He is caustic in his arraignment of women who would have birds killed to supply them with vanity decorations. "The befeathered Herodias," says he, "cannot plead she errs in ignorance. The truth is that, for all their boasted refinement, some women remain in their impulses little else than scented barbarians. They are in such utter bondage to vanity as to be at the mercy of every whim of fashion, and when fashion decrees that feathers shall be worn they are absolutely without conscience or feeling, so far as the treatment of their victims is concerned."

The writer also attacks woman's ideas of art in clinging to feathers as an artistic adornment. He says: "Feathers as a personal embellishment appeal to her only because they are barbaric. What woman but one without cultivation of mind would imagine that she was beautifying herself by carrying about her person the corpse of a bird? To one of matured understanding, who is not usually enamored of the suggestion of death, a woman who exhibits such raw perception of the beautiful excites no other feeling than one of pity and contempt."

The Southern Seas.

Readers of old records of exploration in the South Seas will recall frequent references to the heavy swells of the ocean, which impressed the navigators with the idea of their remoteness from land. Doctor Vaughan Cornish explains the great size of the sea waves in high southern latitudes by the fact that south of the Cape of Good Hope the prevailing wind in all longitudes is westerly. Thus when a west wind springs up it finds a long westerly swell, the effect of a previous wind, still running. The new born wind increases the steepness of this swell, and so forms majestic storm waves, which sometimes obtain a length of 1,200 feet from crest to crest. The average height attained by sea wave in feet is about half the velocity of the wind in miles per hour.

Esquires.

Two centuries ago, declares The London Chronicle, persons engaged in trade, even though of gentle blood, held they had no right to be addressed as "esquire." In the report of the historical manuscripts commission on the Welbeck Abbey papers appears a letter from Nathaniel Harley, merchant at Aleppo, to a correspondent in London, which concludes with the remark, "Pray, sir, inform your clerk who superscribes your letters that no merchants are wrote Esqs. but fools and coxcombs." And yet Nathaniel Harley was the brother of the Earl of Oxford, leader of the Tories, whom Swift proclaimed "the most virtuous minister and the most able that ever I remember to have read of."

Dust Laden Records.

Searching for important old manuscripts at the British public record office, whether by Shakespearean students or others, is disagreeable work. Nine-tenths of the manuscripts are covered with the dust of ages, and an hour among them makes the searcher as black as a sweep. Some of the documents are so fragile that they can scarcely be touched without their falling to pieces, such as those rescued from the House of Lords fire in 1834, which were so hopelessly saturated with water that bundles of them had to be squeezed dry in powerful presses. It has been estimated that it would take fifty housemaids fifty years to spring clean the contents of the record office.

SASKATOON.

There's a town that's coming strong,
Saskatoon,
And it's coming right along—
Coming soon;
There, the summer winds are low,
Where the summer roses blow;
You can stand and see it grow—
Saskatoon.

In a valley, O, so fair,
Saskatoon,
(See the railways will be there,
Very soon);
Sunny skies and fields of gold,
Land you'd like to have and hold,
Place to have your fortune told,
Saskatoon.

Pearl, then, of a Promised Land,
Saskatoon,
Shimmering, chinook-wind-formed,
Saskatoon.
Fairest land from sea to sea,
Land of opportunity,
"One best bet," take that from me,
Saskatoon.

FOILING SIR WILLIAM.

His Natural Finish Parlor Is Buried Under White Lead and Turps.

A new and amusing story of Sir William Van Horne is told by Norman Rankin in the July issue of Canada Monthly. It seems that when Sir William was constructing the Cuba Railroad he decided to install a typical railroad hotel in Camaguey, midway of the island, and with his keen eye for detail he had an idea as to its decoration.

"Why not fit up one of the parlors," said he, "with panellings of the beautiful native woods of the island? It seems to me that such a room would interest visitors greatly, and give a handsome effect."

"Fine," said everybody, and his suggestion was carried out to the letter.

Next time he arrived in Camaguey, the hotel was practically complete, and Sir William recollected his hardwood room.

"Yes, it was there," said everybody, but with a singular lack of enthusiasm.

"I should like to see it," suggested Sir William mildly.

"Certainly, oh certainly," said everybody, and hastily changed the subject.

Sir William was deaf, dumb and blind to the beauty of the weather, the excellence of the service, and the sudden death of everybody's grandmother. He wanted to see that hardwood room, and with drooping ears everybody, checkmated, led him to it.

It had been panelled in all the different varieties of beautiful native hardwoods, according to schedule, from ceiling to floor. It had given a beautiful effect, as Sir William had foreseen. And then a gang of painters, putting finishing touches on halls and corridors, had wandered in, observed its paintlessness, and given it two heavy coats of ivory white.

Like the black on the darky, it wouldn't wash off, and ivory-white that parlor is to this day.

Radcliffe Still an Active Man.

Those who have read the accounts of the numerous hangings in the Province of Ontario at the hands of one Arthur Ellis have wondered perhaps what had become of John Radcliffe. Radcliffe, most skillful of executioners, is in the West and his abilities are by no means rusting for lack of use. An interview with him in The Daily Columbian of New Westminster, B.C., records a visit to that city. He said that he felt more at home in New Westminster than in any other city in Canada with the exception of Toronto. Mr. Radcliffe is not inactive, for at this city of his choice he hanged a Japanese murderer and in the same week put an end to two Indians who were lying under sentence of death at Kamloops. "The work is telling on me a good deal now," said the famous hangman, and added that continuous travel was impossible at his time of life. "As a matter of fact," he added, "there is too much work for a man of my profession in this country and I am glad to see that some provinces are engaging executioners of their own." He gave as an instance of the necessity for assistance that hangings were booked for the same day at Edmonton and in Ontario. Radcliffe incidentally mentioned his interest in the game of lacrosse and regretted that he could not entertain himself by visiting a match which seemed to be the most important event of the day in New Westminster. The reader can only express the hope that his interest in lacrosse was not professional.

A Toronto Grace Darling.

William Bateman, Toronto Island constable, and his wife figured in a scene of splendid heroism recently. The yacht Nelda, with seven people on board, was overtaken and capsized by a gale of southwest wind, when just east of the eastern entrance of Toronto harbor and about a mile off shore in the lake.

Two of the people on the Nelda were drowned, being imprisoned in the cabin by the waves. The other five owe their lives to the efforts of Constable Bateman and his wife, who without a moment's hesitation, put off in a small boat and effected a rescue at the risk of their own lives.

The storm came suddenly as a lightning flash, the wind rising immediately to a velocity of fifty miles per hour, and the riot of waves also made the surface of the lake one smother of foam. After forty minutes' hard battling with wind and wave, Constable Bateman and his wife got the survivors on board their small boat and landed them safely on the island.

It is only four or five years since Mr. Bateman was appointed constable at the island, and yet in that time he and his no less heroic wife have rescued close on half a hundred people from the waters of the harbor and the lake. Mrs. Bateman has acted the "Grace Darling" on more than one occasion, having rescued over a score of persons from watery graves. She holds the medal of the Royal Humane Society for life-saving.

After a long series of tests German scientists seem to have disproved an old theory that resin is a beneficial ingredient in soaps, their decision being that the washing power of a soap decreases as the resin content increases.

"THE THIRD PARTY."

Hon. Peter Mitchell Was a Bohemian of a Long Disappeared School.

The last of the series of disastrous fires which have pursued the career of The Montreal Herald is responsible for some interesting reminiscences by Mr. Lutton, the veteran Quebec journalist, who for years has contributed a weekly page of comment to that model among weekly newspapers, The News and Eastern Townships Advocate of St. Johns, Quebec. Particularly interesting are Mr. Lutton's references to Hon. Peter Mitchell, M.P., one of The Herald's famous editors, who used to be described as "The Third Party." Of Mitchell the writer says:

"Upon the scene, then, entered the late 'Sir' Peter Mitchell, on Beaver Hall Hill, where The Herald, phoenix-like, rose from its ashes.

"Now, if ever the true Bohemian walked this planet, he did so in the person of the 'Hon. Peter.'

"When one thinks of the spaciousness of the man; his charming sense of irresponsibility; his happy indifference to overdue notes; his child-like insistence upon joy as his inheritance, his profound and careless ignorance of the duties of management; his ingenuous delight in the notion that he was moulding public opinion while he was, in reality, playing the dashing role of boulevardier; his slap-dash editorials which warned the wicked Conservatives at Ottawa that 'we had our eye on them,' after the manner of the 'Skibereen Eagle,' which warned the Emperor of Russia 'that it was watching his conduct,' or fulsomely bespattered what the "Hon. Peter' called the 'McShane-Mercier administration,' then reigning at Quebec (save the mark!)—when one thinks of these aspects and attitudes, he can only regret the passing of so gay, so delightful a figure, for which a more strenuous generation is not inclined to find a place.

"To see 'Sir Peter' sallying forth say, in the winter, enveloped from head to foot in his seal coat; to note him the cynosure of the general regard at the St. Lawrence Hall, where the local politicians used to congregate; to observe the entire delight of the large creature in life, in the passing moment, in clinking his glass smoking his cigar, throwing off coruscations of wit in the careless moment, while the paper came out or did not come out—was to observe a charming and inconsequent a creature as ever made for the general optimism and gayety."

Land Turtle.

There is one little denizen of the marsh world that makes his slow way quite unmolested amongst the prowling food-seekers of the drowned lands Science has fastened a long Latin name to this fearless little chap, but the barefoot, freckled boy calls him "mud-turtle."

He is found along the causeways and waterways of the warm, dark water and muck bottoms. At the slightest sound he pitches forward and hides himself with lightning-like contortions in the friendly water weeds and, if you stand quietly by and watch, you will, ere long, see him swim to the surface, protude his little snake-like head on its leathery, wrinkled neck and watch you from bright, yellow-rimmed eyes.

He is a curious, good-natured, even a friendly little creature.

His shell house, which he carries on his back, is beautifully marked with varying shades of grey and brown, slashed with flecks of deep vermilion

Should hungry mink or gliding marsh snake appear, he has simply to draw in his head, legs and short, spiky-like tail and be immune from danger. That shell, with its sharp, corrugated edges, makes the turtle too indigestible a meal for hungry womper, mink or marsh-coon to relish.

And so the harmless little land-turtle, who is first-cousin to the ferocious snapping turtle, commonly called "moss back" by the boy of the freckles, lives out his days. He grows very slowly and outlives almost any other denizen of the marsh or water. Through the long summer days he suns himself on bog or log and when the cold weather comes he burrows deep in the muck and sleeps out the long winter.

A Story of D. McNicholl.

Mr. T. C. Irving, of Bradstreets' agency, Toronto, is a famous collector of anecdotes and personalia. He has lately been in the West and according to The Vancouver Suns, has been telling the following stories of Mr D. McNicholl, vice-president of the C.P.R.:

"Here is the first. A well-known general manager of a big Canadian bank tried to collect a bill from the C.P.R. Whether the bill was a just one or not matters little for the purposes of this story. Anyway the general-manager became exasperated with the C.P.R. and wrote a caustic letter to Mr. McNicholl in which he said if the bill were not paid instanter he would instruct every branch of his bank not to use the C.P.R. passenger trains when avoidable, not to use C.P.R. telegraphs, nor C.P.R. express lines, nor anything with a C.P.R. label on it.

"Mr. McNicholl's reply was brief and to the point. He said if the general-manager carried out his threat he would instruct every employe of the C.P.R. to refuse any bank bills bearing the label of that particular bank. When the general-manager got that letter he concluded he had played the wrong card with Mr. McNicholl. What would happen to any bank whose bills were systematically refused by the C.P.R. can be easily imagined. Anyway the bank never boycotted the C.P.R."

Freeman the Historian.

It was an English bishop who, when the historian Freeman had worn out his patience with his rudeness, introduced him to a waiting audience as "the distinguished scholar that so admirably describes and illustrates the savagery of our ancestors."

A Scottish Superstition.

In Scotland bringing a flowering hawthorn into the house foretells a death in the family.

To facilitate the seating of patrons of moving picture theatres where there are no reserved seats without the use of ushers, a New York man has patented a system whereby an incandescent lamp remains lighted on the back of each seat as long as it remains unoccupied.

THE LOST CHANNEL.

How a Picturesque Spot in the Thousand Islands Was Named.

Few of the visitors to the Thousand Islands realize how many historical associations this region possesses. It has always been the boundary line between nations, and every great war in the history of America has seen some large or small tragedy enacted near its waters.

In the year 1760 two armed vessels, the Onondaga and the Mohawk, with 1,000 men on board, under the command of Gen. Jeffrey (Lord Amherst), set out from Oswego, N.Y., intent on capturing Montreal.

Just as the expedition was entering the St. Lawrence a lookout on the Onondaga saw a bateau filled with soldiers putting out from an island and heading down the river. Judging at once that they were French scouts, the two invading ships gave chase, hoping to capture the bateau.

After going several miles the bateau suddenly veered, at a point where three hills extend into the river, and ran down a narrow channel between a large island and several smaller ones. It then passed out into a large bay, beyond which could be seen another and a larger channel extending among the islands. Knowing that the channels between these islands are usually very deep the Onondaga continued the pursuit. When in the middle of the channel the vessel was suddenly attacked from all sides by the Indians and French hidden on the surrounding islands. The decks were swept with musketry and arrows. The guns were trained on the islands, and the attacking party was soon forced to escape in canoes. Coxswain Terry and his crew were ordered to lower a boat and to bear a message to the captain of the Mohawk, telling him to turn back into the main channel. Another boat was then lowered to seek out a passageway and, a deep channel being found, the Onondaga dropped down stream below the thickest group of islands and awaited the return of Terry and his crew. As they did not return Ensign Barry was ordered to lower the cutter and search for them. He returned after some hours, having found no trace of the boat. He had been bewildered by the intricate channels and numerous islands and had not been able to find the channel through which the Onondaga passed. It was thought probable that Terry and his crew had boarded the Mohawk, but the officers of that vessel reported that the message had been delivered and that the boat had started to return to the Onondaga. The coxswain and his crew were never heard from, and were undoubtedly captured or killed. Ensign Barry named the scene of the fight the Lost Channel, which name it has since borne.

Art Treasures In Fredericton.

That very keen gentleman, J. Purves Carter, English artist, has sprung another sensation. Last autumn, it will be remembered, he rummaged through an old lumber room at Laval University, and told the academicians that their storehouse was the greatest art gallery in Canada, alleging that it contained, for instance, Ruben's Fruit Garland, also a Gainsborough, a Salvator Rosa, and a Poussin. While a great many people agreed with Mr. Carter, some thought that clever copies had bamfoozled him. In fact, the Laval Collection is a mystery yet; no one has been able to quite decide as to the individual merits of the two million dollars' worth of art treasures in the quaint Quebec College. Mr. Purves Carter has given it up, though not his hobby of digging up rare pictures. He has migrated elsewhere, lately to New Brunswick. The other day he journeyed to Fredericton. In the Council Chamber of the Government building, four courtly figures have for years looked down benignly from their gilt frames. Who they are every high-school boy can tell: King George of Tea Party fame, Queen Charlotte, Glenig, Scottish earl, and His Excellency, the Earl of Sheffield. As to who painted these pictures, well, no one in Fredericton has been able to recollect.

Connoisseur Purves Carter has come out with his explanation. Arriving from Boston in St. John the other night, he said that the paintings of King George III. and Queen Charlotte were no less than the work of Sir Joshua Reynolds; that the Glenig one was done by Graham, famous Scottish artist, and that John Hoppner, R.A., was responsible for the portrait of the Earl of Sheffield.

Took the Wrong Cue.

When anyone shakes hands with the Premier, says The Toronto Mail and Empire correspondent who has accompanied Sir Wilfrid Laurier to the West, he at once enquires the name and then makes some remark or comment designed to please the voter or his wife. If the name is Mrs. Jones, he insists that it must be Miss Jones, and if the nationality of the speaker is betrayed by the name that fact is seized upon to advantage, but now and then the most wily politician makes a mistake. At Selkirk the other afternoon the Premier was in fine fettle and had ag lad hand and a winning smile for everybody. As he was driving off some voter grasped his hand enthusiastically.

"What is the name?"

"Sullivan."

"Oh, yes, Mr. Sutherland. I have not forgotten your name. It is a fine old Scotch name."

"To hell with the Scotch," responded the voter.

Down to 27 Banks.

With the consolidation of the Union Bank of Halifax and the Royal, and the liquidation of the Sovereign Bank, the number of banks doing business in Canada is reduced to twenty-seven. Of these fourteen have their head office in Ontario, nine in Quebec, two in Nova Scotia, one in New Brunswick. Four of these have paid up capital less than a million; all the rest over that amount.

A new machine separates the whites and yolks of opened eggs by allowing the former to pass through a sieve and automatically ejects bad eggs, which will not separate, their weight tripping a tray.

Saved Life Several Times.

The honest, straightforawrd statement of Mrs. Rhoda Pritchard of Astoria, L. I., is convincing proof of the great merit of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey as a family medicine. Thousands of such letters are received from grateful men and women who have derived wonderful benefits from its use.

"I don't know how to express myself in regard to Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. I have taken it for twenty years and it has saved my life several times when I have been given up to die by my physicians. I am now sixty-six years old and hale and hearty. I have recommended it to many people also to my immediate family, my children and grandchildren, and they in turn have recommended it to others. My children tell me I do not look a day older than fifty and I do not feel even as old as that.

"If there is one who doubts this written statement and would like to hear verbal praise of your excellent Malt Whiskey I will be pleased to see them at any time." — Mrs. Rhoda Pritchard, 6th Ave., Astoria, L. I.

ABSOLUTELY PURE & UNADULTERATED TRADE MARK

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has to its credit fifty years of success without a question as to its merit as a curative agent. During this time it has brought the blessings of health to sickly children, who find in it the strength-giving properties that are so necessary to them. It quickens and strengthens the heart action, aids digestion, restores health and vigor; makes the old feel young and keeps the young strong and vigorous. It is prescribed by doctors and is recognized as a family medicine everywhere.

..CAUTION.—When you ask your druggist, grocer or dealer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, be sure you get the genuine. It is an absolutely pure medicinal malt whiskey and is sold IN SEALED BOTTLES ONLY—never in bulk. Look for the trademark, the "Old Chemist," on the label, and make sure the seal over the cork is unbroken. Price $1.25 a large bottle. Write Medical Department, The Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y., for an illustrated medical booklet containing testimonials and rare common sense rules for health, and doctor's advice, both sent free.

NO MEDAL FOR SIR JAMES.

Sir James Whitney will never get a Cobden medal. He is too outspoken, too downright ever to be able to hope for such a prize. He simply could not talk free trade in one part of the world and protection in another. In Canada he believes that traffic reform would prove a cement of Empire. In England he believes the same thing and says so. In the very presence of the free trade Fetish he refuses to Kowtow. He is not learned to straddle the economic issue or walk the fiscal tight rope. He is not nearly so "slim" as Sir Wilfrid Laurier. It is foreign to his nature to mince words or to juggle with principles.—Toronto News.

A party of Bristol merchants and manufactures sailed from Avonmouth on Thursday August 18th as a special delegation to Canada for the purpose of looking into the possibilities that are available in the Dominion The party will arrive in Quebec on Wednesday August 24th and a series of entertainments are beng aranged for them by the Harbour Commission of Montreal an dthe Board of Trades of Quebec, Montreal and other cities. As the prominent manufacturing towns and cities in Eastern Canada are situated on the Grand Trunk Railway the party spend most of their time on this line and Mr. William P. Fitzsimons, Commissioner of Industries, G.T. Ry. Montreal left for Quebec last Saturday to meet the party on the arrival. This party is a very influential one and their visit will no doubt be a great benefit to Canada.

THE INEVITABLE MIDWAY.

A Colorful Section of the Big Toronto Fair.

The midway comes but once a year, but when it comes it brings good cheer.

In 1893 the management of the World's Fair at Chicago, who have set the pace for all other World's Fairs since that time, devised as a chief attraction a Midway Plaisance. It embraced all the amusements of the world in tabloid form in the mile over which its course extended. And it added a new word to the English language on this continent. When the word "Midway" is used it signifies fun, a resort of rollicking pleasure. The Canadian National Exhibition has adopted the idea and every year provides a Midway that is a hummer yet clean, interesting and well regulated. While the purpose of the Canadian National Exhibition is primarily educative it would miss much of its color and atmosphere without its Midway which is a necessary adjunct to any modern Exposition.

LIVING LIES.

Women Who Play to the Life at Being Men.

There are numerous instances of women living for long years as men. Most famous of such cases in England is that which was brought to light ten years ago, when an old woman, Catharine Coombes, was found to have lived as "Charlie Wilson." Few women have had so astonishing a career as "Charlie." Smoking a briar pipe, and dressed as usual in male attire, she first made the acquaintance of the Westminster police, when she walked into Rochester Row Station. To an amazed inspector she there told the story of her life. She was married at the age of 15 to one Percival Coombes, she said. Many years afterwards she wedded, as a man, a woman, with whom she lived for fourteen years at Huddersfield. For 45 years, she went on, she had passed as a man. As "Charlie Wilson" she had worked at the docks, in a printing office, on board ship, and as a painter and decorator. She is also said to have been employed as a bricklayer's laborer, and at several other kinds of toil requiring no special training. It was in Westminster, too, that a woman went so far as to seek enlistment in the Royal Artillery, and was detected by the doctor before whom she had to appear.

Another notorious case was that of a "Mr. Gillson," whose career came to an abrupt conclusion in the winter of 1905. She used to dress in the height of fashion, wearing a light overcoat of faultless fit and a silk hat, being generally accompanied by a toy terrier. She was a heavy smoker, and the only feminine trait was a passionate weakness for tea at almost every hour of the day. Her landlady's suspicions were aroused as to her sex by the way she used a needle whilst making a coat for her dog. Investigations showed that there were two totally distinct sides to this woman's extraordinary character. It was a wonderful instance in real life of a talented woman leading, almost against her will, a Jekyll and Hyde-like existence. When disguised as a man, resourceful and cunning, she victimized business men and perpetrated fraud upon fraud, and none would ever have suspected that in her home she was a tender-hearted, refined girl, an accomplished musician, a writer of sentimental verse and stories. "Gillson," was eventually arrested, however, for obtaining 21s. on false pretences, and it was whilst she was being conveyed to trial that she leaped from a train, and received injuries which proved fatal. Her real name, it transpired, was Edith Marion James.

A Family Custom.

Besides possessing literary attainments, Lady Tullibardine, the English authoress, is a musician of more than average ability, and her signature is to be found appended to several very beautiful songs. Like the marquess, she is intensely Scotch in sentiment, and when she was married, eleven years ago, a custom was observed which has been handed down in the family for many generations. When a Duchess of Atholl or Marchioness of Tullibardine enters Blair Castle for the first time she may not walk into the house, but must be carried over the threshold. The marchioness was duly carried by her husband, the marquess, and deposited in the hall amid the cheers of the retainers.

African Servants.

The "boy" servants at Nairobi, in Central Africa, seem to have reached the limit of incompetence. "I used to impress thoroughly on my own personal servant," writes an English resident, "that he must never hand me anything except on a tray. I hardly expected him, however, to bring my boots in on one, and carefully covered with an afternoon tea cloth! But, after all, these boys were raw natives, perhaps a year before running about with a spear attending to their cattle." A good many of them had not the faintest notion of what soap was, or how to use it. One very busy European mother told a boy to wash the child's face. He simply covered the child's face with soap and left it!

Crown King on May 24.

Sir George Reid, the Australian High Commissioner, speaking in London recently said: "If the coronation of His Majesty's is to take place on any date near that of Empire Day I certainly think it would be a most happy event if the great ceremonial was fixed for a day which is being more and more associated with the broader aspects of Empire and loyalty. As the years pass the significance of Empire Day increases rapidly. The Coronation, to which every subject of the King will look forward with intense interest, will assume additional significance if it takes place on Empire Day. And no one better understands the Empire than his present Majesty."

"Croppy."

So Major-General Sir Henry Ewart, who has served as Crown Equerry for the past sixteen years, and who has been made a baronet by the King, is known to his intimates. He has had a notable career as a soldier and, as becomes a Crown Equerry, is a capital horseman and whip. He has the entire control of the King's stables at Buckingham Palace. When His Majesty goes forth in state it is Sir Henry who stage-manages the equine part of the function. In his care too are the famous Hanoverian cream ponies that draw the state coach when the King opens Parliament.

Cousins on Thrones.

The number of cousins occupying thrones to-day is remarkable. King George is first-cousin of the German Emperor. Both these monarchs are first-cousins of the Duke of Saxe-Coburg, the Duke of Hesse, the Czarina of Russia, the Queen of Spain, and the Crown Princesses of Sweden and Roumania. King George V., through his mother, is first-cousin of the Czar, the King of Norway, the Crown Princes of Denmark and the Hellenes. The Queen of Norway is the King's sister and a cousin of most of the other royal people named.

Winnipeg Town Topics says:

In "My Lady Nicotine," if we remember rightly, Barrie tells the story of a telegraph editor on one of the London papers, who, finding the sentence, "The Zulus have taken umbrage," in a despatch one day when the outbreak of the Zulu war was imminent, fixed up a heading announcing that the Zulus Have Captured an Important Position — They Occupy Umbrage.

There was a match to this recently in two newspapers published not a thousand miles from this city.

A cable despatch was received announcing the death in London, from syncope, of a well-known citizen of Toronto.

One paper published it thus:

"London, July 5.—J. E. McK——, of Toronto, died suddenly on the day after his arrival from Canada on the Syncope."

The other published it thus:

Import New Zealand Deer.

Vancouver sportsmen are going to make endeavors to bring red deer from New Zealand, which are to be located in the mountainous districts of Vancouver island upon arrival. An attempt was started last year to import some of the deer species from England, but owing to the heavy freight rates the plan fell through.

It is proved that the red deer will thrive in the climate of that section of the coast, the only handicap to their life being the usual necessity of having to graze in sheep country, the sheep making short work of the grass available.

CURE FOR LOSS OF MEMORY.

Case of an American Woman Married Abroad and an Accent.

"Nothing disgusts me more," said a woman who goes abroad every summer, "than to meet in Europe Americans who seem to be ashamed of their own language. I have often come across them, but a woman I met in Carlsbad last year took the palm.

"She was introduced to me as the Countess Komoffsky or some name that sounded like that. She married a Russian or a Pole about three years before, and so far as I can gather she had hardly been any nearer Europe than a New York table d'hote before that time. She looked American, but her English was all broken into bits. She did not even say 'the,' but pronounced it 'ze.' She had great difficulty in recollecting phrases, and the result at times was a lot of French.

"Next morning I was breakfasting in the Kaiserpark with a party of shawl wrapped Americans who had drunk the requisite number of glasses from the Sprudel or the Marktbrunnen and had walked out according to prescription. One of those at the table was a New York physician who is none the less popular because he is frank in speech almost to brutality and will not stand for affectation. The countess came along and was invited to join the party. The doctor, it turned out, had known her since she was a child.

"Somebody asked her a question, and she started to reply with that accent of hers. I saw the doctor fidget. Then she made another remark in half French. The doctor said something that sounded like a swear. Then he blurted out:

"'For heaven's sake, Maria Smith, you don't mean to say that three years in Europe have made you forget your native tongue?'

"There was a hush, and then some of the women in the party smiled, but when the countess next spoke it was in purest United States.—New York Sun.

Chin Straps as Aids to Beauty.

Chin straps are peculiarly ingenious instruments of torture. The aeroplane figure calls for the long Gibson neck and throat and the Whistler chin, and in order to furnish this the chin straps must be worn for eight or ten hours at a stretch. Tight fitting bands bind the superfluous flesh around the neck, while other bands raise the chin and compress it to the proper tilt. Other bands are fastened tightly around the forehead and smooth out the wrinkles on the brow, while still others pin back the ears and iron out the drooping lines that sometimes run from the nostrils to the mouth. The rubber jacket is used simply for the purpose of reducing flesh, being worn whenever hard exercise is taken, and, uncomfortable though it is, it gives a good account of itself on the weighing scales.

Another Life Is Sacrificed At The Grand Trunk Station

JUST HOW THE ACCIDENT OCCURRED IS A MYSTERY — WAS ON HIS WAY TO THE BOARDING CAR — LEAVES WIFE AND FAMILY.

Another life, the third within four days, was sacrificed last night in the Grand Trunk Railway yards here.

The victim was Mr. Andrew Lowery who was acting in the capacity of foreman of a gang of men who are engaged in the erection of the new roundhouse just east of the station premises. Just when the accident occurred and how it occurred is not known, and will probably never be known. The body of the unfortunate victim was found at about 9.40 last night lying on the track and death which was instantaneous, had occurred some time previous.

It appears that Lowery, in the early part of the evening, was about the G. T. R. station talking with fellow employees and associates. Sometime about 9 o'clock he was seen to leave the station and proceed eastward down the track towards the boarding car, which was on a side track near where the new round house is being constructed. This was the last seen of him alive. Later his mangled remains were found upon the track. Lowery had been struck by either a light engine or a passing freight train. The cruel wheels had passed over him in such a manner as to almost severe the body and caused instant death. When the remains were first discovered they were unidentified, but later a fellow-employee who slept with Lowery identified the remains of his comrade. As soon as possible after the awful discovery was made Dr. Yeomans, coroner, was notified and he gave directions for the removal of the remains They were taken to Tickell and Sons undertaking establishment for the night.

The victim of the unfortunate affair was a man who was well known in the city and vicinity. He had been an employee of the G. T. R. company for some time. He had resided in the village of Foxboro for some years, previous to which he lived at Holloway. Deceased was about 50 years of age. A widow and one son Oliver who is connected with the C. P. R. at Montreal, and two daughters, Luella and Stella at home, survive.

It was decided that an inquest was unnecesary, as it was purely a case of accidental death. The remains were prepared for burial and this afternoon were taken to the home of the deceased at Foxboro.

Much Interest Shown In the Inquest.

COURT ROOM WAS CROWDED WITH SPECTATORS—CONSIDERABLE EVIDENCE TAKEN —SEMAPHORE WAS SET AGAINST THE SPECIAL. — INQUEST ADJOURNED UNTIL TO-NIGHT

The adjourned inquest to enquire into by what means and manner Peter Young, a G. T. R. engineer, and Edward Brewer, a car inspector, came to their death in the G. T. R. yard here on Saturday last was continued last night before Coroner Dr. Yeomans. Mr. T. W. R. McRae, of Montreal, was present in the interest of the Railway Company. Mr. Anderson on behalf of the Crown and Mr. E. G. Porter, M. P., on behalf of the Brewer family.

The interest manifested in the proceedings was considerable, the police court room being crowded with spectators during the taking of evidence.

Mr. John Archibald, being sworn, said he was employed by Messrs. Tickell and Sons, and on Saturday last saw the remains of Young and Brewer and prepared same for burial. Had no conversation with any person in reference to the accident.

Mr. M. Moorman, sworn, testified that he was baggageman at the G. T. R. station here. Young was not dead when brought into the baggage room. The accident occurred at the east end of the station platform. He saw the engine of the emigrant special strike the light engine on which Young was engineer. The special was upon its right track. Could not say how fast the special train was running. Did not take any notice to the semaphore.

In answer to a question from Mr. Porter, the witness stated that Brewer was in the vicinity of where his duties as car inspector called him.

Mr. Herbert L. Pearsoll, train despatcher at the station here, testified that his duties was to receive and give orders. On Saturday morning last he gave the conductor and the engineer of the special train an order to run from Brockville to Belleville. The conductor booked the train as arriving at Belleville at 5.57. At the time of the accident there were some passenger cars at the station, but no passengers in them. It was known as a dead train As far as he (witness) know Young had a right to be on the track he was on. Could not say anything as to the signals that morning. Fred Thompson was conductor on the special train and R. Weir was engineer The special passed Napanee at 5.31 a.m. On Saturday morning he verbally informed the yardmen that a special was following second passenger train No. 3.

Dr. Gibson testified that the cause of death to Young and Brewer were injuries they received in a collision at the G. T. R. station. Young died just as witness arrived at the baggageroom. Brewer was dead. Knew nothing of the cause of the accident.

Frederick Gariepy testified that he was fireman on the light engine. The engine was on the east bound track. Neither he nor Young had any knowledge that a special train was coming. At the time of the collision the light engine was standing still. Did not see the special train until it was within a few feet of the engine. Steam was escaping from a light engine, which was on the west track, in considerable quantities. Witness could not tell whether the semaphore was up or down. Young could not have done anything to have prevented the accident. Witness escaped injuries by remaining upon his seat and hanging on to the cab window. Witness did not know that Brewer was upon the engine at the time of the accident.

In answer to a question from Mr. Porter, Gariepy said he could not say that the steam from the other light engine hid the view of the semaphore.

Gordon B. Fletcher testified that he was a switchman at the G. T. R. station here. His duties was to look after the switches and semaphores at the east end of the yard. The east end semaphore was out of order and he (witness) notified the despatcher that such was the case. This semaphore governs west bound trains. The wire was broken and in consequence the semaphore was set for danger. Witness did not know the time of the arrival of the special train. Did not know that an emigrant special was coming in. He gave the special that morning what is known as a high ball signal. After he gave that signal there was no reason for the engineer to slacken up. This was about half a mile from where the accident occurred. When he gave the high ball signal the train was not running more than 9 or 10 miles an hour.

Albert E. Woolfe, a brakesman, testified that on Saturday morning last he was employed as switchman at what is known as the centre shanty. Saw engine 2048 on which Young was engineer. The engine was on the east bound track. Witness saw Bronson, a brakesman, give signal to back up and the engine backed up. He heard that a special was coming from the east, but he did not know the time of its arrival. He did not hear the special coming owing to another light engine passing at the time.

The semaphore he was working was set at danger and against the train Escaping steam from light engine 1002 might have prevented the engineer of the special from seeing the semaphore. Some time after the accident witness spoke to the engineer of the special train and the latter said it was a serious affair and might mean penitentiary for him.

Harry L. Bronson testified that he was a brakesman on the engine of which the late Peter Young was engineer. He received a signal from Woolfe and was nearly over the cross switch when the collision occurred. Before he gave Young a signal he looked at the semaphore which was set at danger. He saw the collision. Witness was not aware of the arrival of a special train from the east. Witness took his orders from Woolfe, who was the proper man to give them He did not see Brewer on the engine. He did not know of anything Young could have done to prevent the accident.

At this stage of the proceedings the enquiry was adjourned until to-night.

Policeman's Trying Trip.

BROUGHT A RAVING MANIAC THROUGH A WILDERNESS.

T. R. Folkes, a Dominion constable, has arrived at Port Arthur after one of the most arduous trips ever made by an officer of the law in that part of the country. He came from the National Transcontinental construction north of Pigeon Lake, and for three hundred miles had in charge Tony Conea, a raving lunatic, who repeatedly attempted suicide. Folkes had no other companion on the lonely trip across lakes and through muskegs and wilderness. Arriving there he was thoroughly worn out and bore every evidence of the horrors of the nights and days he had spent with the crazy man.

Unfortunate Man Arrested Last Night.

THE SAFETY OF "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

May Be Taken For Years

The Ideal Remedy For Young and Old

Nature's gifts do us good, if used judiciously. We eat bread from babyhood to old age without ever tiring of it. We drink water, year in and year out, with the greatest benefit to our health. So too, we eat fruit in season and are better for the change of diet. This is true, because such things are the natural foods and drink of mankind. It is for this reason that "Fruit-a-tives" may be used for years in correcting some ill of the body. As is well-known, "Fruit-a-tives" is made of the juices of apples, oranges, figs and prunes.

Just as fresh fruit may be eaten at every meal, so "Fruit-a-tives" may be taken every night for 20 years or more with the greatest benefit.

The absolute safety of "Fruit-a-tives" has been a great factor in its success. Those who suffered with chronic troubles such as Constipation, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, etc., naturally took a number of boxes of "Fruit-a-tives".

As they became better, they found that instead of being compelled to increase the dose as in most medicines, they were decreasing it, and gradually taking fewer doses.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c. At dealers, or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

B.-P. OPENS THE "EX"

Scoutmaster and the Boys Are Features at Toronto Fair.

Twenty-One Hundred Lads and One Girl In Line at Opening of Canadian National—English and American Boys Get Good Reception—Baden-Powell Not Strong on Ceremony and Dodges the Officials.

Toronto, Aug. 31.—"Boy scouts and Baden-Powell" was the keynote of the opening of the Canadian National Exhibition, great in design, greater in execution, greatest in spirit.

There is nationality, patriotism, cosmopolitan vitality about the big Toronto fair. No country in the world could present more varied products from more inexhaustible resources. No people in the world have such a heritage from the Lord. There is much of the spirit of the feast of tabernacles in the gorgeous ingatherings of the fruits of the land and the harvests of handicraft and the work of the deft artificer which year by year draw the multitudes to Toronto from the new world's Dan and Bersheba. The tremendous undercurrent of the national life throbs through the whole organization.

It was an inspiring sight to see those 2,100 boys with their good clean marching step moving along the big track, and many a father and mother's heart swelled with the thought that 'the boy' was shouldering his pole and keeping time in the tawny ranks.

SIR ROBERT BADEN-POWELL.

"If I'd had a chance like that I'd have been twice the man I am," was father's frequent reflection as he rejoiced for his son.

There was fine applause for the English contingent and the Buffalo boys had a cordial greeting. The little khaki vivandiere from Brampton was accorded a hearty recognition. Then the line swung to the south side of the track where all could see, and the smart pacing of the lads elicited a burst of applause.

"B.-P." was not very ceremonious with the officials, and continued to prove himself elusive and to disregard the program. He spent most of an hour with Frank Ritchie of the Dominion Y.M.C.A. Boys' Work Department, who is keenly interested in the scout movement, and with W. B. Wakefield, an English gentleman of means, who has devoted his entire time to the work. Mr. Wakefield had just returned from Silver Bay camp on Lake George, N.Y., and gave complimentary reports of the Toronto boys there.

No more impressive background to the grand stand performances than the glorious sweep of British waters represented on the canvas, the historic channels of Spithead and the Solent. The weather was excellent and the east wind did not chill, though it threatened rain which did not come till after the show was over. The grounds are more beautiful than ever and the removal of the buildings near the entrance gives a noble approach to the permanent architecture.

The directors' luncheon constituted the formal opening of the Exhibition. The address to Sir Robert had been set down for presentation at the grand stand, but Mr. Gooderham, who presided, read it after his introductory remarks.

The Lord Bishop of Toronto offered prayer. The National Anthem was sung after the royal toast, and the subsequent "Hip, hip, hip," scored its usual triumph.

The Exhibition had been honored many times by representatives of his gracious Majesty, said Mr. Gooderham.

They had had the Governor-General on several occasions. He was glad to welcome his honor the Lieutenant-Governor, whose health he then proposed. Mr. Gibson acknowledged the compliments he had received, partly for his position and he hoped he was vain enough to think, to a slight extent on personal grounds. (Applause.)

Mr. Gooderham agreed that they needed no introduction to Gen. Baden-Powell. The movement he was associated with was one which every man in the world, when he understood it, would support. Its object was the making of better citizens, and was in no sense of the word a military movement. The address was then read.

"B.-P." has no love for newspaper notoriety, and made this point clear several times during the day. At the luncheon he said he had been in Canada before, since the war, and he had been glad to see the country without the intervention of newspaper men.

He thought he had the elements of a mongrel, as he did not know of what nationality he was. He was born in England of Welsh parentage, he had spent a great part of his life in South Africa, but his heart was Canadian. (Applause.) He quoted Sir Wilfrid Laurier with approval and referred to the exhibitions he had seen at Regina, Edmonton and Vancouver.

There was local rivalry, but great unity of purpose in what was done. The Toronto Exhibition went beyond local aims and was of world interest. It united them with their neighbors and cousins in the United States. It was a great thing to bring them into friendly rivalry and in participation of industry.

May Conquer Leprosy.

Washington, Aug. 31.—Leprosy, the unconquered scourge of the ages, is making what is believed to be its last stand against science.

From Molokai, the Coral Isle and prison for the plague-stricken in the Hawaiian group, a few words have been flashed to Washington, telling of an achievement accounted second only to the discovery of the lepra bacillus by Hansen in 1878.

Three surgeons of the United States public health and marine hospital service, have grown lepra bacilli in pure culture outside the human body, and in tiny thin glass tubes in the laboratory the loathsome germs are now growing in their third generation.

This achievement is the first step in the production of a vaccine or a serum for the cure or prevention of leprosy. Precisely the same ground has been covered by the men who evolved the diphtheria anti-toxine and the serum for tetanus.

OLD CASE IS RECALLED

Police Think John Bagley Is Man Sentenced Years Ago.

Bigamist and Swindler, Named Lancelot Willoughby Middleton, Sent Down for Seven Years In Woodstock In 1898, Is Believed to Have Re-appeared In Person of John Bagley, Charged With Forgery.

Toronto, Aug. 31.—Is John Bagley, or as the police believe him to be Charles V. Knightley, arrested Thursday night, charged with uttering a forged $2,000 check upon the College and Yonge street branch of the Bank of Commerce, really Lancelot Willoughby Middleton, bigamist and swindler, who was sent to the penitentiary for seven years from Woodstock, in 1898?

His picture has been seen by one of Middleton's victims before his committal to Kingston, and she positively declares that Knightley is none other than her former husband.

Inspector William Greer of the provincial detective department, who arrested Middleton, last night, after comparing police photographs of Knightley with one of Middleton which he had preserved in his records pointed out a number of points of surprising likeness, and, indeed, when the ageing influence of a seven-year term in prison and the passage of 12 years in all are taken into account the pictures bear great resemblance.

Inspector Greer has a wonderfully clear recollection of the Middleton case. Middleton, then a man in his thirties, set out to let contracts for a supposed C.P.R. line from Woodstock to Brantford. He used C.P.R. letter paper for all his correspondence, and this is a point of resemblance to the methods of Knightley.

JOHN BAGLEY.

The line was surveyed and Middleton started to sublet the contracts for clearing the line, and work was begun. He asked for deposits as guarantees upon the contracts let, and would have received a number of these had he not been exposed just a little too soon.

He was arrested by Inspector Greer at Kanesville, near Brantford. The arrest was made upon a charge of false pretences or fraud, which was later dropped, when Middleton was sentenced at Woodstock to a term of seven years in Kingston for bigamy. He had married two estimable women, one of Woodstock and one of Sarnia. He was defended by present Crown Attorney Ball.

Inspector Greer says that he remembers hearing that Middleton met with an accident while in Kingston, which would account for the present lameness of Knightley, should the two prove to be identical. He also remembers hearing that Middleton turned very religious while in the penitentiary, but that he also tried to escape, which lost him any good conduct time. The inspector says that Middleton is at present wanted in New York, and remembers having heard that he had swindled one of the women of the Gould family out of a considerable sum.

A photograph of Middleton was sent to England to identify the man as an English crook, and was returned, first to Deputy Chief of Police W. Stark, and then to himself. The fact that Middleton was an Englishman is another point in the identification, as Knightley is apparently an Englishman, though claiming to be an American.

Angus Morrison Dead.

London, Ont., Aug. 31.—Angus Morrison, one of the best known oil operators in America, died here very suddenly from a hemorrhage of the throat. For many years he lived in Toronto, later going to Hamilton as manager of the Imperial Oil Co. Forty years ago he founded the Morrison Oil Co., London. He was 69 years old.

Saved From Fearful Death.

Calumet, Mich., Aug. 31.—At the Red Jacket shaft of the Calumet and Hecla mine, Mike E. Sunrich, a timberman, fell into the shaft. He fell 150 feet before he grasped the rope, saving himself from a fall of a mile to the bottom of the shaft. His hands were badly burned, but he was dangling from the cable when rescued.

Yankee Girl Will Wed a Jap.

New York, Aug. 31.—With the approval of her parents, Miss Ethel Maria Bagg, a graduate of Horace Mann School, is to marry Zentaro Morikubo, a Japanese, son of a member of the Japanese Parliament and Tokio City Council, next month. Following the marriage the couple will go to Japan to live.

Beneficial results are said to have attended experiments in a London hospital by which asthma, bronchitis and even tuberculosis patients were required to breathe compressed air for a few hours at a time.

FLOWERS IN HISTORY.

Some Costly Bouquets and Floral Wreaths—Queen Victoria's Rose.

It is stated that over $250,000 was paid to Covent Garden alone for flowers to be made into wreaths for Queen Victoria's funeral. It is safe to say that this large sum has been more than doubled in the purchase of floral mementoes for that of our late King, for many of the wreaths—like that of the Sultan of Zanzibar, which was 14 feet by 7 feet and contained over 500 chosen orchids, and that of the Emperor of Japan, which measured 5 1-2 feet in diameter—cost considerably over $500 apiece.

Flowers have played an important part in the world's history.

In the national insignia see what a place they take—the rose standing for England, the thistle representing Scotland, and the shamrock Ireland.

For a flower the late Count de Chambord lost France. There came a moment when the throne was offered "King" Henry. But he must accept, with the sceptre and the gilded chair, the tri-colored flag. Another man would have taken the bauble and the seat, the crown and all its troubles; but Henri Cinq was not that sort of pretender. "Either I have the lilies and the white flag, or I remain an exile," he said, and with this he crushed all the hopes of the Bourbons.

It was with a white rose that Queen Victoria wooed and won Prince Albert. "I gave him a flower," she writes in her diary. "It was a white rose." As the monarch of a great country, she could receive no proposal from a prince of a small state, and till she gave him the rose he could not aspire to her hand. With what feelings he received it is told in the story of his life.

Flowers have played a great part in politics. There were the Wars of the Roses—red and white; and Lord Beaconsfield's flower, the primrose, has a million devotees to-day in England.

A fight took place not many years ago over an artificial forget-me-not. A gentleman sent it to a damsel whom he knew, and it fell into the hands of the elder brother of the lady. There was nothing in the letter that contained the flower to indicate why it was forwarded, not a word of all the epistle alluded to it, but the brother challenged the sender. Each fired at the same moment, both fell dead, and to this day no one knows why the artificial forget-me-not was sent.

The First Aviator.

Was Harold the last of the Saxon Kings, our first aviator? This is a point seriously maintained by ancient biographers of the Saxon King who perished in the Battle of Hastings. In the course of an article in The Windsor Magazine a writer recalls a tradition which cannot of course be either disputed or disproved to-day, but was of sufficient interest to be retold even by the poet Milton in his "History of the Anglo-Saxons," where the poet-historian says: "Harold was, in his youth, strangely aspiring had made and fitted wings to his hands and feet; with these on the top of a tower, spread out to gather air, he flew more than a furlong; but the wind being too high, came fluttering down, to the maiming of all his limbs; yet so conceited of his art, that he attributed the cause of his fall to the want of a tail, as birds have, which he forgot to make to his hinder parts. This story, though seeming otherwise too light in the midst of a sad narration, yet for the strangeness thereof, I thought worthy enough the placing."

An Extraordinary Shower.

Daniel O'Connell, the Irish agitator, once complained in the House of Commons of a report of a speech in a London newspaper which, he said, put into his mouth opinions he had never expressed. He vowed that if the editor did not apologize he would move that he be brought to the bar for a breach of privilege. Next day the reporter of the speech waited upon O'Connell and gave a most remarkable explanation. He stated that during his walk from the House to his office in Fleet street the rain streamed into his pockets and obliterated the notes of his speech.

"I accept the explanation," said O'Connell good humoredly, "but let me say that it must have been a very extraordinary shower of rain, for it not only washed out of your notebook the speech I delivered, but washed in another of an entirely different character."

Kangaroos.

Kangaroos use their hands very readily to hold food in and to put it to their mouths. As their fore legs are so short that they have to browse in a stooping position, they seem pleased when able to secure a large bunch of cabbage or other vegetable provender and to hold it in their hands to eat. Sometimes the young kangaroo, looking out of the pouch, catches one or two of the leaves which the old one drops, and the pair may be seen each nibbling at the salad held in their hands, one, so to speak, "one floor" above the other.

Survival of a Custom.

On gateposts you will frequently find a stone ball. Who would ever suppose that the balls on the gateposts were the heads of family enemies? It was once the custom to stick your enemy's gory head as a trophy on the gatepost. On the gates of towns were stuck the heads of traitorous persons. In old London, for instance, the bridge gate and Temple Bar were always decorated with ghastly relics of the kind, and the memory of the custom survives on the gateposts of modern suburban villas.

Church Becomes Theatre.

A number of workmen are transforming an old building in Praed street, Paddington, London, into a "luxurious cinematograph theatre"—as the notice-board has it. The transformation is of somewhat unusual interest, notwithstanding the number of derelict chapels that have shared a similar fate. The building is the chapel where Dr. Clifford first commenced his ministrations.

Designed to withstand earthquakes, the foundations of Mexico's $6,000,000 national theatre, building at Mexico City, have shown themselves proof against several severe shocks.
